Lodge Assails Loyalty Probe Methods

2 Suspects Identified As Warring Holdup Men

Post Reporters

Two of the three gunmen wanted here in the Emmitt Warring holdup were in the hands of Pennsylvania authorities yesterday.

But the chances of their being returned to Washington in the near future appeared remote.

One, bulky Sidney Stromberg, 32, was held on a murder charge at Pottsville, Pa. after confessing to a 1948 slaying near Pottsville.

The second man, Malcolm Epstein, 40, was in Allegheny County Jail in Pittsburgh, facing 40 to 80 years imprisonment on 18 counts of armed robbery, holdup and larceny.

Third Suspect Sought

The third suspect in the Warring holdup is Arthur Miller, an underworld character in the Pittsburgh area. He is still at large.

Stromberg has been identified by photographs and Epstein in police lineups in Pittsburgh by two of the victims who were trussed up in the Warring holdup.

Police said the trio got an estimated $33,400 in loot last January 9 when they staged a holdup in the home of Warring, reputed gambler and onetime District numbers czar at 3900 Macomb st. nw.

Warring headed a two-million-dollar-a-year numbers racket in the 1930s before he was sent to Lorton for jury tampering and income tax fraud.

The bandits gained entrance to the Warring home through a ruse, pretending to be express men. Once inside, all three whipped out pistols.

Cady Beaten and Tied

Warring was not at home. In the house were William Cady, Warding's brother-in-law, a maid, Louise Enos, 39, of 2706 O st. nw., and a great dane dog.

The gunmen locked the dog in a closet, then severely beat Cady and bound him with tape. They took $900 cash from Cady's pockets. They also bound the maid.

They waited 2½ hours until Warring returned and gave him the same treatment accorded Cady. They took $1500 cash from his pockets, stripped his finger of an $11,000 diamond ring, and forced him to open a wall safe that contained about $20,000 cash.

The bandits bound and gagged Warring before they departed.

The Warring holdup was one of a series of "hoists" of big-shot Washington gamblers that came to light during January.

One such job was the holdup of a floating crap game in Northeast in November that netted the gunmen $25,000. Of this sum, $17,000 belonged to Robert (Ryebread)

Sub Yachts Saw Off California Was U.S.S. Charr

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—A submarine sighted by two sailing yachts Saturday near Santa Catalina Island, 20 miles off the southern California coast, was identified by the Navy today as the U.S.S. Charr, on a practice cruise out of San Diego.

Skippers of the yachts Odyssey and Lark radioed the Coast Guard here that the submarine surfaced between them and crash-dived. Carl Long, owner of the Lark, said the sub resurfaced shortly afterward close enough for him to see its identification numerals and United States flag.

A Navy spokesman said the Charr, with a crew of naval reservists aboard, returned last night to its San Diego base.

Action Delayed On 2 Judges' Nominations

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Federal Circuit Judges George T. Washington and William H. Hastie will be called for executive hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee before that group acts on their nominations to the bench, it was announced yesterday.

Both judges are serving under recess appointments.

Judge Washington, former Assistant United States Solicitor General, is serving on the United States Appeals Court for the District. Judge Hastie, former dean of Howard University law school and former Governor of the Virgin Islands, is serving in the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. It covers Pennsylvania, Delaware and the Virgin Islands.

Hearings Slated Soon

Judiciary Committee Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) announced the plan to call the two men into executive hearings at a future date. McCarran said the hearing will be held as soon as possible, but probably not this week. He said additional witnesses may be heard. He would not discuss the reason for the hearing.

Committee sources indicated the nomination of Judge Washington hit a snag over a question raised about an interpretation of the Taft-Hartley law attributed to him while he was in the Justice Department.

The same sources indicated Judge Hastie's nomination was delayed for further inquiry into the nominee's connection with certain organizations.

Two Approved

Delay of the nominations was disclosed after an executive session in which the committee approved two other nominations to the Federal Courts in Washington—Charles Fahy to the U. S. Court of Appeals here, and Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews to the District Court.

Both are serving under recess appointments by President Truman last fall. The committee approval placed their nominations before the Senate for final action which may come today.

'Separate But Equal' Doctrine Hit

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Before a standing-room-only audience, Attorney General J. Howard McGrath yesterday asked the Supreme Court to end the 54-year-old doctrine of "separate but equal" facilities for Negroes and whites and thus strike a major blow at racial segregation in this country.

The Cabinet officer, in his first appearance before the court in his current post, said that while "no act of Congress, no decision of this court can eradicate the evil of racial prejudice," the court's forthcoming ruling could either "solidify" present racial barriers in the United States or it could "to a large degree undermine these barriers and bring them into disrepute."

The court was hearing the case of Elmer W. Henderson, a Washingtonian who was denied service in a Southern Railway dining car because he was a Negro. He lives at 3729 Jay st. ne. After the Henderson case arguments ended, the court began consideration of the first of two associated cases involving segregation practices at the Universities of Okalahoma and Texas. Arguments will continue today.

There was an atmosphere of history-in-the-making in the high ceilinged courtroom yesterday. The

Reader's Digest Messenger Shot In $37,260 Theft

Chappaqua, N. Y., April 3 (U.P.).—Four bandits critically wounded a messenger in a Reader's Digest magazine truck today and escaped with $37,260 in cash and checks.

Police said the messenger, Andrew Petrini, 35, was shot in the head even though he made no sign of resistance. The driver, William Waterbury, 27, was not injured.

Truman Asks New Program For Farm Aid

President Truman yesterday called on Congress for a new farm program, including the Brannan Plan for "potatoes and other perishable commodities."

In a long and at times highly critical message, Mr. Truman explained that he signed the joint resolution providing for larger plantings of both crop-supported cotton and peanuts last Friday "with great reluctance."

He said that with a system of production payments "unavoidable surpluses can be sold to consumers and used, instead of taken off the market and largely wasted." At no time did he mention the "Brannan Plan" by name.

Mr. Truman's appeal did not win enthusiasm from Congress. Reaction was summed up by Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.), of the House Agriculture Committee, who told reporters the present law is "fairly well rounded" except for potatoes. The Brannan Plan, he added is a "dead duck" at this session.

Mr. Truman condemned the potato provisions in the resolution with faint praise. They are, he said, a "substantial improvement," but "not all that is necessary." He called the peanut section a "temporary aberration from proper legislation."

The good in the measure, he suggested, slightly outweighed the bad. Some of its provisions, he said, "seem to me to be definitely undesirable." Other provisions, he added, "merely undertake to alleviate defects in the existing farm program temporarily, without correcting those defects."

"Even this' temporary relief,"

Reds Labeled No. 1 Peril in U. S. History

By Ferdinand Kuhn

Gen. George C. Marshall pictured Soviet communism yesterday as an enemy just as dangerous as any in American history.

The wartime Chief of Staff was speaking at a ceremony marking the second anniversary of the European recovery program that bears his name.

He expressed the belief that the debates on continuing the Marshall Plan were "befogged by a failure to realize that we are now engaged in a great struggle."

"You here may not be in the same sort of physical danger as troops on the battlefield," he declared, "but you are engaged in a contest with a foe who has designs no less deadly than those we have ever faced.

"Chips Are Down"

"Make no mistake about it, the chips are down. Winning this struggle is as vital to the peace and prosperity of the world as any military campaign in history. Indeed, unless we achieve victory, our great military and financial sacrifices may have been largely in vain, I fear."

Senators, ambassadors and several hundred employes of the Economic Cooperation Administration heard the general make one of his rare speeches on foreign policy since resigning as Secretary of State.

They heard him say that "the line that now divides Europe was drawn by Mr. Molotov"—a reference to the fact that the original Marshall Plan invitation included Russia, and that the Soviet Foreign Minister walked out of the first conference on the plan in Paris in 1947.

Since then, General Marshall, now head of the Red Cross, said the plan has succeeded in spite of all the Soviet assaults against it.

"But your job is only half done," he declared. "I must emphasize the tremendous importance of carrying through on the scale planned.

Insists on Ending Date

"We must avoid proposals to emasculate and reduce ECA to a mere relief affair. At the same time, it seems clear to me that we cannot continue this sort of extraordinary aid indefinitely; therefore the termination date of June 30, 1952, must be adhered to.

"I feel that if this date is settled and clear it will spur the work of the European leaders and people to accomplish the extremely difficult task ahead of lifting themselves above the need for our financial assistance. . . .

"Let me sum it up: We are engaged in a perilous struggle with an implacable foe; we must carry this battle to the finish; we must avoid the temptation to imperil the whole investment—and it is just that, an investment in saving all those precious articles of faith and ways of life we call democracy. It is an investment in preserving the freedoms of men in a clean and decent world."

The two-year birthday ceremony had a setting designed to recall the nonpartisan beginnings of the program in the spring of 1948.

'Saucers' New-Type Aircraft, Probably Navy, Magazine Says

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

"Flying saucers" are in fact radically new type aircraft, conforming to known aerodynamic laws and probably developed by the United States Navy, the magazine United States News and World Report said yesterday.

This latest effort to explain the continuing reports of strange flying discs at various points over the country brought a prompt denial from the Navy Department that it is now "conducting research or flying" any such plane or missile.

A spokesman pointed out that the Navy did develop the "pancake-shaped" Chance-Vought XF5U-1, but that it never flew and was scrapped more than a year ago. A small, 3000-pound scale model of the plane was flown and pictures of it have been released, but this model is now at Norfolk awaiting shipment to the National Air Museum here.

The weekly news magazine did not quote any authority for its statement that the "flying saucers" are real American planes, but said that "engineers competent to appraise reports of reliable observ-

Bridges Jurors Still Seek Verdict After Four Days

The jury in the Harry Bridges perjury trial was locked up for the night tonight at 10:10 p. m. (PST) (1:10 a. m. EST), after four days of deliberation.

After taking two hours for supper, the weary jurors had filed into the courtroom to ask clarification of the court's instructions.

Bridges, president of the CIO Longshore Union, slumped in his chair, looking weary.

The Government charged he perjured himself at his 1945 citizenship hearing by swearing he never was a Communist. Two co-defendants, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, fellow officers in the longshore union, were charged with conspiracy. They were Bridges' witnesses at the naturalization hearing.

House Unit Acts to Stay Order After She Blames Girl 'Gossip'

By Robert C. Albright

A House Judiciary subcommittee yesterday unanimously voted to permit Mrs. Ellen Knauff, 35-year-old German war bride, to remain in this country. Five minutes after hearing her story, the subcommittee approved the Walter bill, canceling an exclusion order against her.

Mrs. Knauff, detained at Ellis Island off and on since 1948, told the subcommittee she did not know why she was detained, but "suspected" a jilted former girl friend of her husband was the cause.

She said the former girl friend had "sworn before witnesses" to prevent Mrs. Knauff's entry into the United States.

Her husband had a number of girl friends before they were married, but was engaged to none of them, she testified.

"They didn't mean anything, but they thought they did," she said.

She declined to identify the girl she suspected of informing against her.

"She couldn't understand how I, though born in Germany, had a Czech passport, nor how I could be a member of the RAF. The gossip was carried all over Frankfort-on-the-Main."

GOP Senator Asks 12-Man Nonpartisan Inquiry Unit

McCarthy's Charges Declared Unproved; Lattimore Releases Note; Jessup Replies

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The present method of publicly investigating charges of disloyalty is causing "mounting damage" to the United States position at home and abroad, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) declared yesterday.

He proposed that it be replaced with an inquiry into Communist infiltration in the State Department by a 12-man, nonpartisan commission, a sort of American equivalent to a British "Royal Commission."

So far, Lodge added in a Senate address, the Senate subcommittee investigation of Senator McCarthy's (R., Wis.) charges "shows clearly" that none of his accusations has been proved.

Memorandum Released

His statement came on the heels of a release by Owen Lattimore chief target of McCarthy's charges, of a memorandum on Far Eastern policy that he sent to the State Department last fall. It warned against "premature or excessive strategic deployment" by the United States in the Orient.

It said that if war comes, "it can only be won by defeating Russia—not Northern Korea, or Viet Nam, or even China." The major aim of United States policy in the Far East, the memorandum continued, should be to convince the nations there "that they can get along with the United States and with the countries of western Europe."

"To put it another way," the memorandum continued, "the aim of United States policy should be to enable the countries of the Far East to do without Russia to a maximum extent. This is a much more modest aim than insistence on and organization of hostility to Russia, but it is an attainable aim, and the other is not."

McCarthy in Hospital

The memorandum was made public by Lattimore's lawyers after a demand for it had been made earlier in the day by McCarthy.

The Wisconsin Republican, who has claimed that Lattimore is a "top Soviet espionage agent," a Communist, and the "architect" of American Far East policy, insisted on the disclosure in a statement he issued from the Bethesda Naval Hospital. He is undergoing treatment there for sinus trouble.

The statement implied, fairly bluntly, that Secretary of State Acheson was lying when he recently minimized the State Department's contacts with Lattimore. Actually, McCarthy said, Latti-

Engine Trouble Smashes Bixbys' Record Attempt

Calcutta, India, April 3 (U.P.).—The flying Bixbys' dream of breaking the late Bill Odom's unofficial round-the-world speed record was shattered at the halfway mark today by engine trouble.

But the California couple—Dianna, 27, and Bob, 38—said they would keep on going to put an official flying-time record into the books.

They were more than halfway around the globe and 45 minutes out of Calcutta en route to Tokyo when a cylinder head gasket in the right engine of their plywood Mosquito bomber blew out this afternoon.

They turned the sputtering plane around and flew back on one engine to Calcutta, where they checked in at the Great Eastern Hotel for the night.

Bixby said the engine would be repaired overnight and they hoped to leave for Tokyo Tuesday morning.

Western Cadets Win Battalion Drill for Fifth Straight Year

For the fifth straight year and the fourteenth time in 29 years a Western High School battalion won the annual drill competition for high school cadets yesterday at Central Stadium.

With interest in cadet training slackening, Western's supremacy was challenged by only three other schools. Anacostia High entered two battalions.

The whole winning lineup was a repeat of last year's event, Woodrow Wilson again taking second place and Anacostia repeating as third-place winner.

Representing the winner, Maj. Gary A. Phillips, battalion commander, accepted a gold medal from Col. Thomas H. King, USAFR, representing the D. C. Department of the Reserve Officers Association.

From Joseph A. Walker, sr., chairman of the Americanism Commission of the D. C. Department, American Legion, Major Phillips accepted a trophy which he will turn over to his school at a victory assembly today. Norman J. Nelson, assistant superintendent of schools, presented a silk flag to Western's guide sergeant, Barney Lawless.

Major Phillips, who is 17, a senior, lives at 5165 MacArthur blvd. nw., and expects to study accounting at George Washington University, credited the sharpness of the 64 members of his battalion to Lieut. Col. George A. Hawkins, its military instructor.

Colonel Hawkins in turn said "the excellent material" out at Western repeatedly turns the trick. N. A. Danowsky, Western principal, agrees. "They're just like a championship football team," says Danowsky, "they live cadets all day long."

Maj. Edmund H. Feldman, 17, of 3433 Oliver st. nw., commander of the second-place Wilson battalion, received a silver medal from Colonel King who also presented the third-place bronze medal to Maj. Robert T. Harris, 17, of 2108 28th st. ne., commander of Anacostia's second battalion.

Anacostia's first battalion and Roosevelt's battalion were the other two entered.

Along with the battalion competition, Part I of the annual band competition was also held yesterday. Anacostia's Seventh Regiment Band and Roosevelt's First Regiment Band took part.

The second part of the band competition and the annual company competition drill will be held at Griffith Stadium May 22 and 23.

Judges for the drill yesterday were Capt. Robert D. Glaser, 1st Lieut. Byron D. Greene, jr., and 1st Lieut. Robert J. Lamb, all of the Third Infantry.

Judging the bands were Chief Warrant Officer Louis S. Yassell, USA-ret., Chief Boatswain John I. Carey, USN, of the Navy School of Music, and Master Sergt. Louis V. Hegedus, USMC, of the Marine Band.

Sign of Early Spring Pickup

Unemployment Drops 561,000 In One Month to 4,123,000

By The Associated Press

The Census Bureau yesterday reported there were 561,000 fewer unemployed in March than in February.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, who released the figure, said this "encouraging" improvement apparently indicated the spring business pickup had started earlier than expected.

Employment jumped from 56,953,000 in February to 57,551,000 for March, an increase of 598,000 more people with jobs.

The March unemployment figure was 4,123,000. This compares with 4,684,000 unemployed in February, when the total was the highest in more than eight years.

The increase in the number of people at work was larger than the decrease in unemployment because of new additions to the labor force; the result, for instance, of young people leaving school and looking for work.

Sawyer, in announcing the figures, said:

"The improvement in the employment situation expected in the spring has apparently started in March.

"Although the drop in unemployment is encouraging, it is too early to say whether it reflects much more than the normal pick-up in seasonal industries and the end of the coal dispute just prior to the March survey."

The Census Bureau said that much of the drop in unemployment was due to the reemployment of workers previously laid off in nonagricultural industries.

Agricultural employment rose seasonally from 6,223,000 in February to 6,675,000 in March.

As 'Secrets' Controversy Grows

Tory MP Launches Petitions To Oust Strachey, Shinwell

London, April 3 (AP).—A controversy over the status of War Minister John Strachey—and how much access he should have to United States defense secrets—brought these developments today:

1. A Conservative member of Parliament began circulating petitions seeking removal of Strachey and his superior, Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell.

2. A spokesman at No. 10 Downing st., Prime Minister Attlee's home, said the Associated Press had distributed an "obviously untrue" report when it quoted a well-informed source at The Hague as saying arrangements had been made by American and British military chiefs to bypass Strachey on top-secret matters. The London Daily Mail printed an account from its own correspondent at The Hague giving much the same version as the AP story. The Downing st. statement did not mention the Daily Mail's account.

3. In Washington, Secretary of Defense Johnson said it was up to Shinwell to determine how much information should be given Strachey.

In London developments, Sir Waldron Smithers, Conservative MP, announced plans to distribute 5000 petitions declaring appointment of Strachey and Shinwell was a political blunder because they "have in the past expressed their sympathy with Communistic aims."

Sir Waldron said a nation-wide drive to oust both Shinwell and Strachey would be pressed while Parliament is in recess for Easter. The story to which the spokesman or Attlee referred was writ-

Commentator Calls Saucers Top Secret

New York, April 3 (U.P.).—"Flying Saucers" reported hurling through the North American skies actually are two types of top-secret United States military inventions, radio commentator Henry J. Taylor said tonight.

The facts behind both are good news for the Nation, Taylor said in a broadcast over the American Broadcasting Co. network.

One type is the true flying saucer, he said, a disc that whizzes through space, halts suspended in the air, soars to 30,000 feet and more, drops to 1000 feet, and then usually disintegrates in the air. The saucers are harmless, pilotless discs, ranging from 20 inches to 250 feet in diameter, he said, and they've been haunting the skies for three years.

The other zooming objects, which some persons have thought were saucers, really are "Flying Phantoms," the XF-5-U jet-propelled aircraft, with which the Navy acknowledges it is experimenting at Patuxent, Md., Taylor said.

Capable of Fantastic Speed

These planes he described as circular, wingless and capable of fantastic speed. Persons who have seen them claimed they looked like a flying cigar, giving off sparks, but Taylor said anything round, moving at such speed, looks elongated.

As Taylor described the "true saucers," there are several types, but no one is inside any of them. Some are flat and edged upward like a saucer, he said, while others are raised in the center, more like a pie.

"Some are guided," he added. "Others are not. They have no stream of light or smoke, or indication of a propelling mechanism, and no sound. They can stand stationary in the air . . . then they dash off to left or right, wobbling and picking up speed until they they move like lightning. But they are utterly harmless."

Taylor said the chances were slight that anyone had found an original, genuine "flying saucer," because they disappear in the air after a given time. But, because there is a possibility that they will fall to the earth intact, something is printed on the saucers.

Air Force Phone Number

These words, Taylor said, are stencilled in black letters on every real saucer:

"Military secret of the United States of America Army Air Forces—" and a number, and then this:

"Anyone damaging or revealing description or whereabouts of this missile is subject to prosecution by the United States Government. Call collect at once."

Then there is a long distance telephone number, and the address of a United States air base, and finally the words, in big, black letters:

"Nonexplosive."

Taylor said that in addition to other models, which he could not mention, the Phantom is a great jet airplane which really looks like and is shaped like a pancake.

"It has roughly circular outline," he said. "Around the edge of its disc-like body is a series of jet-engine ventilators. These are squares framing the blazing light of the exhausts. They are not windows. Its jet motors are inside the pancake shape and flying at night it looks for all the world like a flat flaming disc in the air, and flies faster than I am permitted to say."

a subcommittee subpena the yhad previously ignored.

A New York Appellate Court last week cleared the way for her appearance by ruling 2 to 1 that she could not be deported so long as legislation affecting her case was pending in Congress.

Immigration Commissioner Watson Miller and Deputy Commissioner A. R. Mackey appeared at the hearing, but declined either to question the witness or to spell out the reasons for the exclusion order, other than that she was regarded as a security risk.

The diminutive brunette, who was previously married to and divorced from a Czech native and lived in Czechoslovakia from 1934 to 1939, told the subcommittee her parents were "exterminated" in a Nazi concentration camp in Germany.

She said she went to England as a refugee in 1939, and later worked as a nurse's aid with the Czechoslovakian Red Cross in London and as a flight sergeant with the RAF. In the latter post she said she "briefed" raids on Axis targets before the data was turned over to the RAF pilots.

Her husband, Curt W. Knauff, is now a civilian employe of the America nmilitary government in Germany.

She proteste dthat she had never had a formal hearing and had to rely on "gossip" as to why she was being detained.

"That's all we've been able to get—over-the-back-fence gossip—which is the lowest form," Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.), chairman of the subcommittee, and author of the bill to cancel her exclusion order, told her.

Walter read excerpts from a report from Assistant Attorney General Peyton Ford, which he said was delivered five minutes before the hearing.

Ford said that in the "ordinary" exclusion case an alien is accorded a hearing before a board of special inquiry, but such a hearing is not required by the United States code in cases involving questions of security.

"The provisions of the latter provide a means whereby the Government may exclude an alien in the interest of the Nation's security without jeopardizing the source of confidential information upon which the exclusion is based," Ford's report stated.

Voisine Found Guilty of Lying On Steel Sales

By The Associated Press

Former Mayor William W. Voisine of Ecorse, Mich., was convicted yesterday of lying to a congressional committee in testifying he had not received overpayments for steel his company sold.

The jury of seven men and five women was out a little more than two hours before reaching a verdict.

The 52-year-old former mayor was charged with falsely swearing to a House investigating subcommittee in 1948 he had received only the regular price for steel that his firm sold.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff denied a request that Voisine be left free on $1000 bail. He said he would sentence Voisine Thursday. He is subject to a 2 to 10 year prison term.

Prince Georges County Police Seek Mother Who Left Baby Daughter Two Months Ago

The Washington Post
Mrs. Lucy Taulbee holds 4-month-old "Alice Miller"

Prince Georges County police yesterday were trying to find the mother of a 4-month-old blue-eyed baby girl who "boarded" the infant at a home in Seat Pleasant, Md., two months ago and hasn't returned since.

Mrs. Lucy Marie Taulbee of 7020 Central ave., Seat Pleasant, told police yesterday that a woman who called herself Mrs. Alice Miller left the child in her care February 2.

At that time, Mrs. Taulbee said, "Mrs. Miller" gave her $64 for a month's care of the infant.

The child's mother, Mrs. Taulbee reported, said the child's name was also Alice Miller.

Mrs. Taulbee said she did not obtain the mother's address or any information about the child.

She described "Mrs. Miller" as blonde, between 25 and 30, weighing about 125 pounds, and about 5 feet 3 inches tall.

The child, Mrs. Taulbee said, has brown hair and is "very good" and "very healthy."

"At that age," she continued, "you can't tell if they miss anyone."

Mrs. Taulbee said she learned that "Mrs. Miller" came to Seat Pleasant in a car with a man, then took a taxi to the Taulbee home.

"She told me she was leaving the child with me so she could go to work," Mrs. Taulbee said.

The Seat Pleasant woman, mother of two children herself, said she has plans to start a boarding home. "Mrs. Miller" came to her, she said, through a nextdoor neighbor who boards children.

Detective Richard A. Pearson of the Prince Georges force, said if the woman returned for her child now, criminal charges would not be pressed, if not, he said, a lookout will be broadcast on a charge of abandonment.

"They are aircraft of a revolutionary type, a combination of helicopter and fast jet plane. They conform to well-known principles of aerodynamics."

They are "exactly 105 feet in diameter, circular in shape" and "are made of a metal alloy, with a dull whitish color. There are no rudders, ailerons or other protruding surfaces. From the side, the saucers appear to be about 10 feet thick."

"Each saucer appears to have a series of variable-direction jet nozzles around its rims . . . fuel used is unknown. . . . Direction of the aircraft and its velocity, in turn, evidently are controlled by the angle at which the jet nozzles are tilted, the number operating, the power applied.

"By choosing which nozzles to turn on or off and the angle of tilt, the pilot could make the saucer rise or descend vertically, hover, fly straight ahead or make sharp turns. A right-angle turn, for example, could be made by turning off the rear jets, turning on the side and front nozzles.

"Great speed can be obtained by focusing to the rear all nozzles in the after half of the aircraft. With all nozzles pointed downward, the saucer could rise straight off the ground, and with less power, could descend the same way.

"Jet helicopter action . . . makes takeoffs and landings almost completely safe."

The magazine said that an early model of the saucer was built by National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics experts in 1942 and made 100 successful flights. The Navy then took over development and "much more advanced models now are being built."

NACA Engineer Charles H. Zimmerman designed the first model, which had a speed of from 400 to 500 miles an hour and was powered by two piston propellers, said the article.

"Surface indications," the magazine went on, "point to research centers of the United States Navy's vast guided-missile project as the scene of present flying-saucer development." The project, it was said, has the "scientists, the engineers, the dollars, the motive and the background" for the job.

"This likelihood will remain, despite any future denials by the Navy front office, until secrecy is lifted," the magazine added.

The Navy declared it was true that its abandoned "flying pancake" was designed by Zimmerman, and was called the "Zimmerman Skimmer." It added that a still smaller scale model—one-third of actual size—is still at NACA's Langley, Va., laboratory for wind-tunnel tests, but the Navy insisted it had no such project now active.

The Air Force, after many months of investigation of "flying saucer" reports, concluded that all the evidence pointed to "misinterpretation of various conventional objects, a mild form of mass hysteria, or hoaxes."

Alexandria Safety Meeting Tonight

The newly formed Alexandria Safety Council will conduct a public meeting at the Alexandria Recreation Center tonight at 7:30 to hear suggestions on means of eliminating safety hazards.

The city-wide council, formed as the result of a project fostered by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is asking interested citizens to step forward with constructive hints that may be passed on to the Alexandria City Council. Although its interests center primarily on traffic hazards, it plans to air all forms of safety problems.

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—Singer Kay St. Germain won a divorce today from Comedian Jack Carson. She said Carson deserted her four years ago. They were married in 1940.

Deveze Fails To Clear Up Belgian Crisis

Brussels, April 3 (AP).—Premier-designate Albert Deveze has failed to solve Belgium's crisis, it became clear today.

Gaston Eyskens, Social Christian Premier of the caretaker government, is now likely to be designated Premier to form a government for the purpose of bringing King Leopold back from Switzerland.

This was indicated today when the Liberal, Deveze, went to Geneva and met with Leopold. Deveze had hoped to win the King over to the solution of returning to the throne for the purpose of abdicating.

Instead, a communique issued by agreement between Deveze and the King's secretary, said Leopold stood on his position of March 16. This stand was that the plebiscite in which the King won 57.6 percent of the vote was an expression of the national will, and that Parliament must now either restore him to his throne or reject him.

House to Vote on Woman's Deportation

A bill to cancel deportation proceedings against Mrs. Marie Y. Mueller of Spokane, Wash., is slated for a House decision today.

Mrs. Mueller, orphaned at 16, and operator of a bawdy-house in Toronto when she was in her 20s, is now the wife of an AFL labor union official in Spokane, according to documents included in the House Judiciary Committee report urging approval of the bill.

The Senate has already approved the bill. Its sponsor is Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.). Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) also supported the bill.

A Justice Department letter opposing the bill said Mrs. Mueller is a native of Canada, born May 11, 1908, and entered the United States in 1933 on a 3-month visitor's permit. She was arrested in 1944 on a deportation warrani, and in 1948 was found subject to deportation.

According to the Justice Department letter, she was arrested in 1932 for having maintained a bawdyhouse in Toronto for about 10 months to a year, and was given the choice by the judge of leaving town or serving two years in jail. The letter also said the record showed that in 1938 and 1941 she managed a hotel in Idaho as a house of prostitution.

The House report also quoted Senator Cain as declaring that the record showed Mrs. Mueller had freely admitted actions of misconduct in Canada, and as insisting that the record shows no proved or provable misconduct since she came to this country.

"Mrs. Mueller has confessed her sins," Cain's statement declared. "She has frankly admitted indiscretions committed 17 years ago. Such conduct is regrettable.

Mrs. Mueller's husband, Cain said, is Paul Mueller, secretary of an AFL local 15 years, and since February 1, 1949, a supervisor in 13 counties for the Washington State Department of Labor and Industry.

Among character testimonials presented to the House in the committee report were ones from a pastor, a county sheriff, and Superior Court Judge Raymond F. Kelley of Spokane. The judge said he was aware of the background of Mrs. Mueller and that he also knows her now to be a woman of exemplary character and conduct and "potentially an outstanding citizen."

The Justice Department said Paul Mueller is Marie Mueller's fifth husband and she is his fourth wife.

Senate Opens Debating on DP Program

Debate on the bitterly controversial displaced persons law got off to a slow start in the Senate yesterday, with voting scheduled to start Wednesday.

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), one of the 18 bipartisan sponsors of the so-called Kilgore substitute, told the Senate the Kilgore substitute continues the present definition of a DP by merely changing the date.

The committee amendment, he said, also changes the date but completely redefines a DP by including eight million expellees or refugees of German ethnic origin.

The present DP law, passed in 1948 and expiring June 30, provides for the entry of 205,000 DPs. The committee bill would increase this to 320,000, the substitute to 339,000. Both would extend the program another year.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) said the committee amendments would entirely change the definitions of displaced person and eligible displaced persons. He told the Senate these amendments would so change the nature of the displaced persons program as to make it impossible for the United States to fulfill its international obligation and its moral commitment toward the original group of displaced persons.

Appropriations Bill Called 'War Budget'

Sherman Troubled

Snorkel Sub Still Threat, Navy Says

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, said he is "far from satisfied" with the progress made in combatting the new-type snorkel submarine.

Warning against dependence on "some new gadget" yet to be developed, he said the answer to the sub problem probably lies, "as before," in a combination of better techniques, new inventions, training large numbers of personnel and use of a great many ships and planes.

The CNO also described a proposal of Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee to add 383 million dollars to the defense budget for additional procurement of Navy planes as "very desirable."

6000 Planes in Reserve

Sherman was asked about the Vinson plan at a press conference called on his return from a European trip. He said that while the Navy has a reserve of some 6000 planes, most of them were built during or just after the war.

While many of these, such as patrol planes, are satisfactory with some new equipment, fighters and dive-bombers which may come in contact with the enemy should be "first-line" modern craft, said the CNO.

"I believe the sum Vinson talked about is the amount needed to bring the first-line combat aircraft up to standard," Sherman commented, "That project is very desirable."

Momsen Statement Recalled

The Navy chief's comment on antisubmarine defenses was prompted by questions regarding Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's recent testimony and a statement by Rear Admiral C. B. Momsen, assistant chief of naval operations for undersea warfare.

Momsen said he had "reason to believe" that the United States is on the edge of a development that "will be able to drive submarines off the seas." The big problem in antisub warfare, he declared, revolves around the question of range of detection.

Sherman said he understood Eisenhower's recommendation that funds for antisubmarine warfare be increased concerned the planes and ships allowed in the active fleet for such work. Ike already knew that the Navy was given 78 million dollars additional this year for new antisub equipment, he added.

Situation Not Satisfactory

The economy cutback this year, which reduced the number of destroyers in service from 170 to 140 and the number of patrol plane squadrons from 30 to 20, is not a "satisfactory" situation, Sherman said. He declared he hoped to get more ships and planes by "readjustments" within the Navy budget.

Meanwhile, the Navy disclosed that its forces in the Far East will be strengthened next month. Sixteen warships, including the aircraft carrier Valley Forge, will relieve nine vessels now making up the Seventh Fleet, based at Guam. At the same time, the Japan-based Far Eastern Fleet of a cruiser and four destroyers will be relieved by an equal number of ships.

The Navy also announced that Vice Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, a submariner who has been in command of the Twelfth Naval District, relieved Vice Admiral John Dale Price as vice chief of naval operations. Price will take over the Air Training Center at Pensacola.

Poised for an economy drive on the 29-billion-dollar omnibus appropriation bill, the House heard it described yesterday as a "war budget."

"You can't economize at the expense of national safety," Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) warned. "You can't balance the budget at this time and it would be the height of folly to try it."

Cannon opened debate on the big, single-package bill, as Republicans postponed formal unveiling of their economy goals until after the 10-day Easter recess, starting Friday.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., told newsmen a GOP policy huddle on a projected cut had been put off to give members a chance to tap economy sentiment in their districts.

Sees Pressure for Economy

"The boys are going to find a lot of pressure for economy back home," Martin said.

Cannon told the House he was not opposed to "constructive" reductions, but warned against "drastic" cuts in essential services. At the same time he opposed amendments that might raise the total of the bill, and called for bi-partisan support to block them.

Aroused by a series of three quorum calls, all prompted by GOP parliamentary points, Cannon charged "an apparent filibuster" was being conducted against the bill.

Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking minority member of the Appropriations Committee, said the people "must wake up and see to it Government expenses are kept within bounds."

Terming administrative and personnel items in the bill "too liberal," he said provisions for personnel alone totaled seven billion dollars.

"In my opinion we can come close to making a one-billion-dollar cut in personnel, without impairing operations," said Taber.

He said he was "thankful" for reductions already achieved by the committee, "but as this bill is read I hope to be able to point out items where substantial additional savings can be made."

Taber charged the Truman Administration has been "hiding" from Congress Federal payroll details previously made public with the Budget.

No Limit on Debate

Said Taber: "The failure of the Budget Bureau to furnish Congress this information, in my opinion, is a direct violation of Federal law."

On Cannon's motion, the House proceeded with the bill without any fixed limit on debate. Cannon said he would ask for action when the House ran out of speakers. Actually it meant there will be little if any voting before the House returns from its recess.

As the debate continued, it was becoming apparent that former Chief of Staff Dwight D. Eisenhower's recommendations for increasing defense appropriations, particularly for planes and Alaskan defenses, had helped slow the economy talk.

Representative Martin, for example, told newsmen he has a high respect for Eisenhower's opinion, and would hesitate to vote contrary to his judgment on defense matters.

Says The Statements Don't Jibe

Taber said he may read on the floor the statement Eisenhower made to the House Appropriations Committee. Taber said it didn't "jibe" on all points with what Eisenhower later told the Senate committee.

Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee, who may take the floor today, will lead the House fight to increase defense outlays.

Vinson will offer amendments carrying 583 million dollars for new Navy and Air Force planes to strenghten anti-submarine defenses, and will also ask $34,500,000 to bolster radar defenses in the Northwest.

Reds Quiet as French Troops Unload Planes From Carrier

Bizerte, Tunisia, April 3 (U.P.).—French troops today unloaded the first shipment of American arms for France—48 Navy warplanes—from the French carrier Dixmude, with none of the interference threatened by Communist labor leaders.

The fighters and dive bombers supplied France under the Atlantic Pact arms aid program, were hauled from this French naval base to an airfield seven miles inland.

The Dixmude prepared to sail for Toulon. It arrived under cover of darkness last night and troops began unloading at dawn. Communist-led dockers did not even try to penetrate the Bizerte Naval Base for demonstrations.

Unloading of the Helleat bombers and Corsair fighters brought from Norfolk, Va., was finished this afternoon in the presence of French naval officials, Earl L. Parker, United States Consul in Tunis, and three American naval officers who accompanied the shipment aboard the Dixmude.

As the last planes were unloaded, Parker and French naval officers recorded a message to be broadcast over the Voice of America.

There were no incidents despite French Communist threats to halt all American military shipments and weeks of agitation in Tunisia urging widespread demonstrations.

The unloading site is within the Sidi Ahmed naval air base area, surrounded by desert country and difficult to reach from Bizerte—a factor that prevented the Communists from halting delivery.

SEC Charges Kirby With Court Contempt

Cleveland, April 3 (A.P.).—The Securities and Exchange Commission today charged Josiah M. Kirby of New York City with criminal contempt of court.

The SEC and Don C. Miller, United States district attorney, claim the former Cleveland financier ignored two injunctions by U. S. District Judge Emerich B. Freed to stop dealing as an over-the-counter securities broker without registering with the SEC.

Kirby served five and a half years in Atlanta Federal penitentiary in connection with the 30 million dollar collapse of the Cleveland Discount Co. in 1923. He was president of the firm.

Peace Group Fasts Against H-Bomb Plan

A delegation of the Washington Fast for Peace Committee yesterday went to the White House to ask President Truman to rescind the order to produce the H-bomb.

The national group also staged a day-long poster march outside protesting "preparations for hydrogen warfare."

Meanwhile, the 36-member group completed its second day of fasting at Inspiration House, 1867 Kalorama rd. nw. Starting midnight last Saturday, they will live on water until sunrise services Easter Sunday. Two persons who became weak early yesterday morning were ordered to bed and last night were reported in improved condition.

The pacifist move is sponsored by Peacemakers, New York Fellowship of Reconciliation, and the Catholic Worker.

Prescott S. Bush Asks Nomination For Senate Seat

Hartford, Conn., April 3 (U.P.).—Prescott S. Bush of Greenwich, Republican State finance chairman, disclosed today he would seek the GOP nomination for a United States Senate seat.

Bush, long active in the Republican Party in Connecticut, although he never has held public office, made known his candidacy in letters to GOP leaders, who leased them without comment.

If Bush is nominated, he probably will compete for the seat now held by Senator William Benton, the Democratic incumbent who was appointed to an unexpired term. Former Representative Joseph E. Talbot of Naugatuck is considered the most likely nominee to run against Senator Brien McMahon.

King's Sister to Open Home to Sightseers

London, April 3 (U.P.).—The princess royal—Princess Mary, Sister of King George—has decided to open her house to the public this summer to help pay for its upkeep it was made known today.

Visitors will be charged half a crown (35 cents) to see Harewood House itself and one shilling (14 cents to see the grounds alone, every Wednesday starting May 3.

City Officials Insist U. S. Lags On Aiding Civilian A-Defense

Four big city officials accused the Federal Government yesterday of dragging its feet in organizing civil defense against an A-bomb attack and in telling Americans how to protect themselves.

Mayor Elmer E. Robinson of San Francisco charged Federal authorities with "fumbling the ball of civilian defense" and urged that "a policy of total defense be inaugurated immediately by the Federal Government."

Robinson and other civic leaders charged with defense responsibilities bluntly told the joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee that "we are not prepared to protect ourselves against the resuks of an atomic attack."

Federal planners have said local officials will have to assume primary responsibility for civilian defense against atomic warfare. The Government's major role will be coordination, they said.

Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), underscored this point in a statement issued as the hearings opened:

"The basic principle of civil defense is self-help. If atomic war comes, it is the cities and States that must be fundamentally responsible for civil defense."

But all the city officials emphasized the need for a basic Federal plan to guide communities in setting up their defense programs. They also demanded that steps be taken to funnel more information to the public.

Clyde E. Dougherty, Detroit civil defense coordinator, said that up to now there has been little emphasis on civil defense from Washington.

Mayor Dennis J. Roberts of Providence, R. I., said a civil defense department should be set up uider the Department or Defense.

G. A. Parkinson, coordinator of the Milwaukee civil disaster relief committee, called for a "central office of information."

Handling Point 4 Aid Through U.N. Asked

The Quakers and the Federal Council of Churches urged yesterday that American aid for undeveloped areas of the world be channeled through the United Nations.

Their views were given to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at hearings on President Truman's "Point Four" program. This is his plan for American technical aid to raise living standards in and develop economic possibilities of backward areas.

The Administration has asked for 45 million dollars for the plan in the 12 months beginning July 1. The house has voted to scale it down to 25 million dollars.

Clarence E. Pickett of the American Friends (Quakers) Service Committee said it would be fatal if the program became a political one aimed at buying support in the cold war.

Church Spokesman Heard

"It is my conviction," he said, "that the time has long passed when it is either expedient or right to deal with people as political pawns.

"There is deep suspicion now in the world that Americans are primarily interested in using their power for the purpose of buying the support of allies."

Dr. Walter Van Kirk, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, told the committee the program should be handled through the United Nations. He said he believed this was the only way to raise living standards throughout the world.

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) asked if the Federal Council of Churches would be opposed to point four if it were not handled through the United Nations.

Van Kirk replied that he doubted a program outside the U. N. would get its support.

Connally Would Avoid U. N.

Connally has said the United States should direct the program without "getting messed up" with the U. N.

United World Federalists, Inc., placed a statement in the record indorsing the Point Four plan and urging that as far as possible it can be channelled through the United Nations.

Wallace J. Campbell representing the Cooperative League of the U. S. A., supported the Point Four program and said: "We look upon Point Four as a practical means through which the United States may assist the peoples of the underdeveloped countries of the world to help themselves."

Campbell urged that cooperative organizations throughout the world and U. N. agencies be given a place in carrying out the plan.

War Minister In Controversy

Dispute Grows Over Strachey

ten by Joseph E. Dynan of the AP Paris staff and carried from The Hague Saturday night. Shinwell denied the story Sunday and said it was silly. A spokesman for the Associated Press in New York said the information in Dynan's dispatch had been obtained from a well-informed source, with the stipulation only that the source's name not be used, and was distributed on that basis.

On his return to Washington today from conferences in The Hague, Johnson was asked:

"Did Mr. Shinwell give you any assurance that secret information given to him would not be passed on to Mr. Strachey?"

Johnson replied:

"No such assurance was given. No such assurance was asked.

"I am satisfied with the safekeeping of all information exchanged at The Hague conference."

Up to Shinwell

Johnson said he had concurred in a statement prepared by Shinwell which denied that American military chiefs had agreed to hold back information from Britain.

He said it was up to Shinwell whether Atlantic Pact military secrets are passed on to Strachey.

Moved up from Food Minister to War Minister a month ago, Strachey has been a target of some British newspapers. The papers of Lord Beaverbrook, in particular have accused him of not disavowing a belief in communistic aims.

Strachey, supported by Attlee, has vehmently denied ever having been a Communist, and has declared he put himself on record as early as 1940 as being fundamentally out of sympathy with communism.

2 Premiers 'Clearing Air' In India Talks

New Delhi, April 3 (AP).—Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan and Jawaharlal Nehru of India have reached agreement on "several points" for preserving Hindu-Moslem peace, informed sources said tonight.

The announcement was made after the two leaders met for the second time in strictest secrecy. Liaquat came to New Delhi yesterday for discussions on bitter disputes which extremists on both sides have been pumping into war talk.

Liaquat and Nehru themselves in a joint communique said their talks were conducted in an "atmosphere of frankness and cordiality."

Liaquat and Nehru met for more than 2 hours yesterday, and again today for 2½ hours while their secretaries conferred on a lower level.

After the conferences, informed sources said the discussions "largely centered on the minority problem in both countries, with special reference to conditions in East and West Bengal and Assam."

The informants said both parties agreed there was need for machinery to implement the terms of their agreement and further discussions would take place on that problem. The two leaders are to meet again Tuesday.

Hundreds of persons have been killed in Hindu-Moslem riots in recent weeks on both sides of the Pakistan-Indian border in East and West Bengal. The stories of refugees from the areas stirred up trouble elsewhere and disorders spread to Assam.

Plane Is Destroyed By 'Baby Tornado'

Tulsa, Okla., April 3 (AP).—A baby tornado demolished a single-engined airplane at the Harvey Young Airport today with a loss estimated at $2000.

It did no damage to nine other planes tied down near the wrecked craft. No one was hurt.

2 Chiang Fliers Downed; Soviet Plane Blamed

Taipei, Formosa (Tuesday) April 4 (AP).—The Chinese Nationalists announced today that planes of Russian origin shot down two Nationalist fighters over Red China Sunday.

The announcement implied that the planes bore Chinese Communist insignia but gave no clew to nationality of their pilots.

This was the first aerial opposition encountered by the Nationists in four years of civil war.

Nationalist air headquarters said the attack occurred over Chapu, on Hangchow Bay 45 miles southwest of Shanghai, as the Nationalist Mustangs were strafing Red junks at low level.

Four or five Russian planes made the attack, it said. One Nationalist plane was hot down immediately and the pilot of the other had to bail out a little later. The second pilot returned safely to his base.

The announcement alleged large numbers of Soviet planes recently arrived at Suchow, 220 miles northwest of Nanking.

It stated Soviet insignia had been painted over with a Chinese Red star, so that the planes ostensibly were part of a Chinese Communist air force.

(Presumably the attacking planes over Hangchow Bay were similarly marked as Chinese Communist, although the announcement was not specific. The announcement made no mention of the nationality of the pilots.)

Air headquarters also stated that Soviet troops had installed and were manning antiaircraft batteries and radar detection stations in the Shanghai-Hangchow area.

26 Sentenced By Bulgaria In Spy Trial

Sofia, April 3 (AP).—Six Yugoslavs and 20 Bulgarians were sentenced by a district court today to long prison terms—two of them to life—on charges of spying for Yugoslavia and plotting to overthrow the Bulgarian government. All had confessed.

Branka Svieratz, former Yugoslav security captain, and Arinka Stoikova, a Bulgarian, were given life imprisonment and fined one million leva (about $3500). Half of their property was confiscated.

Four got 15 years' imprisonment and were deprvied of civil rights for 18 years. One of these, Modrag Miloshevich, is a Yugoslav.

Ten of the defendants were given 10 years in jail and deprived of civil rights for 12 years.

Two were sentenced to 8 years, five were given 6 years; one, 3 years and 4 months, and two were sentenced to 2 years 2 months and 20 days.

The trial lasted four days. Prosecutor Petko Patrinsky, in his summation ,accused the United States Ambassador to Yugoslavia, George V. Allen, of trying to "turn the Balkans into a powder keg" to set off a new war. Ambassador Allen declined to comment on the accusation.

Reds Labeled No. 1 Menace

Administrator William C. Foster, both Republicans; Secretary of State Acheson, Democratic Senators Lucas (Ill.), Connally (Tex.), Green (R. I.) and Robertson (Va.); Republican Senators Ferguson (Mich.) and Smith (N. J.) and Representative Charles A. Eaton (N. J.), Republican chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee when the Marshall Plan was born.

Vandenberg Absent

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chief congressional architect of the program, could not attend because of illness, but Acheson praised him as a "valiant fighter for peace."

Hoffman, in turn, praised Acheson as an "extraordinarily competent Secretary of State" who had constantly helped and supported ECA—a tribute that won a standing ovation for the Secretary.

And President Truman, in a message from Key West, Fla., congratulated Hoffman and his associates on "a job well done."

"You have set a fine example of devoted public service," the President wired. "Under your able leadership, as a result of your efforts, the threat of Communist aggression has been averted in many countries, and great strides have been made toward those conditions of world stability and progress which are necessary if we are to achieve a peaceful and prosperous world.

"Though much has been done, a major portion of the task and many difficulties and perplexing problems lie ahead. We must attack these problems with all our energies and with fully adequate resources if we are to solve them.

"Imbued with that spirit and determination, we will carry this momentous program—a program unprecedented in world history—to a successful completion."

Difficulties Stressed

Secretary Acheson also stressed the difficulties of the months and years ahead. The recovery of trade, he said, would require more international "give-and-take" than the recovery of industry and agriculture in Europe.

The United States and the Marshall Plan countries "are going to have to continue to cooperate in many ways," the Secretary declared, "to draw more closely together, to coordinate our economic policies, if we are to build a system that works."

Hoffman read birthday messages from the Marshall Plan organization in Paris, from Sir Stafford Cripps in London, and from leaders of citizens' organizations here. He also handed General Mashall a huge leather-bound album of photographs illustrating Europe's recovery since the start of the Marshall Plan.

Mother-Slayer's Trial Postponed One Dav

Roanoke, Va., April 3 (AP).—Clarence Ellis Decker, 24-year-old war veteran charged with killing his mother, will be tried here Wednesday instead of Tuesday as originally scheduled.

Hustings Court Judge Dirk A. Kuyk authorized the delay because of Tuesday's city council primary election in Roanoke.

Haiti Requests Cuts in Arms By Neighbors

The Republic of Haiti yesterday called upon its neighbors to reduce their armaments as one way to stop the plotting and counter-plotting that have agitated the Caribbean area.

A five-nation investigating committee last month accused Haiti's neighbor, the Dominican Republic, of aiding and abetting conspiracies to overturn the Haitian government. It also accused Cuba and Guatemala of permitting political exiles to organize invasions of the Dominican Republic.

Yesterday the 21-nation Council of the Organization of American States began considering the committee's report, and heard all five committee members call for prompt acceptance of its findings.

It was by no means certain that the council would act; some members yesterday asked for further time to "study" the committee's recommendations. But other delegates, including Chairman Luis Quintanilla of Mexico, argued that this case would test the effectiveness of the OAS machinery for keeping peace in the hemisphere.

The Haitian delegate, Foreign Minister Vilfort Beauvoir, proposed a resolution asking the Dominican government to cut its armaments, and Haiti to do likewise, "so as to maintain a balance between the forces of the two countries and of the other neighbor countries."

The resolution also called on the Dominicans to expel Alfred Viau and Astrel Roland as being "unworthy of the right of asylum." The investigating committee had blamed these Haitian exiles for stirring up the recent plots on Dominican soil.

The Haitian Foreign Minister argued that the recent grant of war powers to Dominican President Rafael Trujillo was contrary to the principles of inter-American treaties. He said his country would not make a bilateral agreement with its Dominican neighbor unless the OAS gave guarantees against a further violation.

Foreign Minister Ernesto Dihigo of Cuba argued that there would have been no conspiracies to invade Dominican territory if democracy existed in the Dominican Republic.

"If there are exiles who conspire against their country's government," he said, "it is because there is something abnormal in it . . . If this situation is lengthened into years, and the number of exiles increases instead of decreasing, and they persist in not returning for fear of what may happen, then we are compelled to believe that there is something out of order in that nation and that, under the appearance of constitutional normality, a violation of the basic principles of democracy exists."

He said Cuba had been getting a constant flow of such Dominican exiles, who constituted a difficult problem, especially since many Cubans sympathized with them.

But he insisted that Cuba respected the priniciple of nonintervention in other nations' quarrels, and would not allow in its territory "formation of expeditions or movements having as their purpose aggression on other countries or on their governments."

Alien Subs Contacted, Naval Officer Says

San Francisco, April 3 (AP).—A naval officer returned today from a submarine hunt and said he believed he had made instrument contact with one or more unidentified underseas boats about 17 miles offshore.

Officially, the Western Sea Frontier said: "Results and comment, negative."

But Capt. J. A. Holbrook, a former submarine officer who commanded the destroyer U. S. S. Colahan on the search, said:

"It is my opinion, as a submarine officer, that we probably had contact with one or more submarines in the area."

The search centered off Cape Mendocino, about 230 miles north of San Francisco.

Holbrook and his crew put to sea Thursday following a report by a Navy patrol plane pilot that he had seen a submarine 40 miles off Cape Mendocino. The Navy said no United States submarines were in the area.

Westbrook P-TA to Elect

Election of officers will take place at the Westbrook Parent-Teacher Association meeting at 8 p. m. today in the school auditorium. Slate of officers consists of Ben B. Treadwell, president; Mrs. Warren B. Hughes, vice president; Mrs. A. B. Black, secretary and Fred H. Heenan, treasurer.

Treason Case Figure 'Lost' From Boat

THEODORE DONAY
. . . Deserted boat found

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—The mysterious disappearance at sea of a man who wrote that he lived in constant dread of deportation after a wartime conviction for treason baffled authorities today.

Missing is German-born Theodore Donay, 51, of Detroit. He was sentenced to 6½ years imprisonment in 1943 for misprision of treason. He was charged with failing to report the presence in Detroit in 1942 of an escaped Nazi flier.

Found at sea, empty save for a suitcase of clothing, was the 18-foot motorboat a man giving the name of Theodore Donay of Detroit rented at Avalon, Catalina Island, Saturday. Donay was the first man in the United States history to be convicted of misprision (concealment) of treason.

A note saying "the outlook for my future is very dark" and "goodby to my good friends," and signed "Theodore Donay" was found in the missing man's Avalon Hotel room at about the time the Navy said an unidentified submarine had been reported sighted off the southern California coast.

Officials said they have been unable to determine whether there is any link between the two occurrences.

Yesterday Navy planes made an all-day search north of Santa Barbara, after Coast Guardsmen reported seeing a surfaced submarine at 6:20 a. m. The Navy said there were no United States submarines in the area at the time.

Just 5½ hours before the reported sighting of the sub the Coast Guard at Catalina found the empty motorboat 8 miles northeast of Catalina Island.

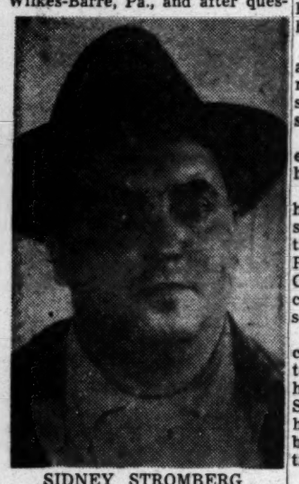
2 Warring Holdup Suspects Arrested

Shulman, District gambler. Stromberg has been linked to this holdup, too.

Stromberg, described by police as the "kid brother" of Nig Rosen, onetime numbers boss in Philadelphia, was named as one of the gunmen in the Warring holdup in circulars sent out by Washington police March 1. A $500 reward was offered for his capture.

He was arrested Sunday by Pennsylvania State police near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and after questioning signed a statement confessing the murder of Harold (Red) Rowe, 42, at Conners Crossing near Pottsville on August 13, 1948.



SIDNEY STROMBERG
. . . Charged with murder

MALCOLM EPSTEIN
. . . Held in Pittsburgh

"I Decided to Kill Him"

Held without bond, Stromberg said in his confession to the slaying of Rowe: "He was a Jew-baiter. I decided to kill him."

He said he met Rowe, doorman of a Reading, Pa., bookie room, six months before the murder. He said he did not disclose to Rowe he was Jewish and became increasingly irritated when Rowe continued his remarks against Jews.

Police quoted Stromberg as saying he concluded a drinking party with Rowe by shooting him in the head on a lonely dirt road.

Detective Sergts. Nunzio Bonaccorsy and James Roche of the Washington police robbery squad were sent to Pennsylvania yesterday to question Stromberg.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, said Cady and the Warring maid have identified pictures of Stromberg, and that one of the complainants in the holdup of the floating crap game has also singled him out.

Barrett said Stromberg, Epstein and Miller worked as "muscle men" for al East Coast gambling syndicate that operates an interstate baseball pool.

He said they apparently broadened their activities to include holdups of out-of-town gamblers.

Although Stromberg gives his home address as Chicago, police said he is a "floater" who travels the country constantly. He told Pennsylvania police he was in California two weeks ago and recently visited New Orleans and several cities in Mississippi.

According to Barrett, Bonaccorsy and Roche went to Lancaster, Pa., a week after the Warring holdup after receiving a tip that Stromberg and Epstein were in a hotel there. They checked out before the arrival of the detectives.

Several weeks ago Washington police got another tip that Stromberg was in a New York City hotel (Epstein had been arrested by this time) but again he departed before the police called.

The second of the Warring holdup suspects, Epstein, was described by Pittsburgh authorities as "a squealer, a liar and a dope fiend."

He was said to be a member of the T-Shirt Gang, a mob of toughs that operates in the Pittsburgh area.

He was arrested in Washington, Pa., last June 23 in connection with a series of Pittsburgh area robberies and holdups. He has been found guilty on three counts, has pleaded guilty on five counts and faces 10 more counts of armed robbery, holdup and larceny.

The office of the District Attorney in Allegheny County estimates that as of now Epstein is "good for 40 to 80 years."

Epstein jumped his $7500 bond early in January and was at large until February 6 when Pittsburgh police nabbed him when he stepped from a train in Pittsburgh.

Ailing Youngsters in District Hospitals Are Counted by Staffers in 2nd Census Day

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

THREE MORE FOR THE RECORD—Census-taker Hope Isherwood of 4512 9th st. nw., interviews Harold Kogod, 12, while, from left, Dennis Cooke, 3, and Walter Finnin, 8, look on in Polio ward at Children's Hospital

It was Census Day at Children's Hospital yesterday as two staff members sworn in as enumerators for Uncle Sam tallied his ailing young nephews and nieces.

Though most of the questions on the census blank could be answered from hospital records, two of them called for interviews of those patients old enough to know what it was all about.

These were the questions on how much schooling the subject has had, and where he lived a year ago. Some 117 boys and girls were "caught" in their beds.

Children's was one of several hospitals and other institutions being canvassed yesterday as the official 1950 census went into its second business day after a Sunday rest.

At St. Elizabeths Hospital, 15 staff employes, working on their own time under a crew chief, were similarly checking patients. They will be paid the regular "piece work" rates of enumerators for canvassing the 7000-odd men and women under their care.

Statistics on patients at other hospitals, and on inmates of the jail, are sent individually to the home district of the patient or inmate, so they will be accounted for in the enumerators' block records.

At St. Elizabeths, however, the patients are regarded as permanent residents and are credited to that district.

Also covered yesterday were patients at Freedmen's Hospital, and students at Dunbarton College, the Georgetown University School of Nursing, and the Georgetown Visitation Convent.

A class of '30 "reserves" went into training yesterday to replace about a dozen enumerators who got either cold or tired feet over the weekend and decided to call it a day, and to fill future needs.

A few became discouraged at the amount of work, a couple got permanent jobs elsewhere, some became nervous at the last minute, and others didn't complete their training satisfactorily, District supervisors reported.

Man Indicted in Bribe of Policeman

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Lawrence Parks, 44, of 607 N. Randolph st., Arlington, on a charge of bribing a Metropolitan policeman with $10.

Parks gave the money to Pvt. Jack D. Cornett, of the traffic division, on January 31 with the understanding that Cornett would return "certain lottery evidence," according to the indictment.

Police said Parks had been taken into custody by Cornett for speeding. At the time, Cornett found three adding machine tapes with figures on them in Parks' car, according to police.

Parks admitted the figures on the tapes represented the "take and pay off" in the numbers racket, and offered Cornett the money if he would return them to Parks, police said.

After consulting with his superior officers, Cornett accepted the money from Parks, who was then arrested on a bribery charge, police reported.

Ask your retailer about this Economy Way to Buy Ham from one shank half you get...

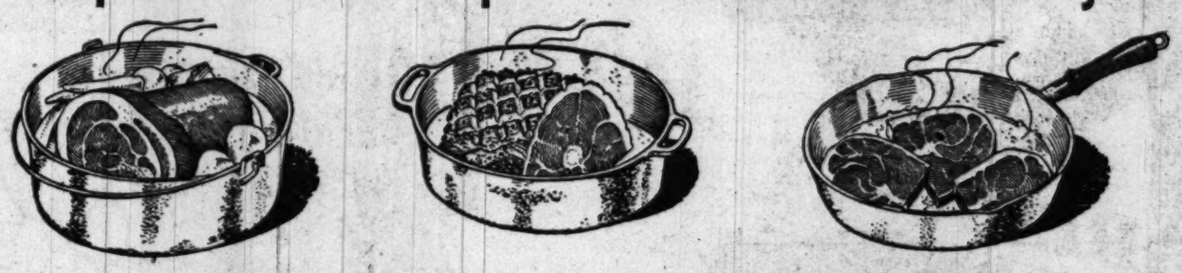
a piece to boil...a piece to bake...slices to fry



Looking for good marketing tips in meat? Look to the thrifty shank half of ham—featured this week at your store. Want ideas that help you put meat in more of the week's meals? Try this way to get four fresh-cooked meals from a shank half of ham. Your meat-man will show you how.

Ideas like this help you to give your family more often the good nourishment—the complete body-building protein, B vitamins and minerals that meat so generously provides.

Ask your meat-man about this thrifty-use idea the next time you shop.

HERE'S HOW TO CUT IT to get 4 fresh-cooked meals!

Meal 1—Have your meat-man saw off shank end. Simmer with vegetables for lots of flavor in a "boiled" dinner.

Meal 2—Later in the week, divide the center part of the ham into two portions as shown here. Bake the piece with the bone.

Meal 3 and 4—Cut slices from the remaining boneless piece and fry or broil larger first slices. Use thinner slices from the small end in casserole dishes.

Lodge Hits 'Harm' Of Loyalty Probe

more had been requested to send in a memorandum for the guidance of Acheson and Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup, about to depart on a Far East mission.

Threatened Release

If the State Department did not make that memorandum public, McCarthy's statement said, he would be compelled to do so.

McCarthy went on to say that although Acheson said he thought he had never met Lattimore he was nevertheless reported by Drew Pearson to have arranged a 30-minute meeting between Lattimore and President Truman. This was just before the Chief Executive departed for the Potsdam Conference.

Later, Lattimore said he had met with Mr. Truman, but that Acheson had not arranged the session. He emphasized that he did not know Acheson.

Meantime, Jessup himself reentered the fray yesterday to set aright a "misstatement of fact" made by McCarthy in his Senate speech last Thursday.

Brandishing two photostats of checks, McCarthy said that Jessup, while controlling the Institute of Pacific Affairs, accepted $3500 from Frederick Vanderbilt Field, admitted Communist and wealthy "angel" for several pro-Red publications. The allegation was that Jessup was "publishing the Communist Party line for a fee."

Jessup's reply:

First, in 1942 and 1943, when the donations were made, he had ceased being chairman of the American Council of the IPR. He was only a trustee, among about 50 others.

Sproul Headed Council

Next, "At that time, Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, was chairman of the American Council of the IPR; Mr. Francis Harmon was treasurer, and Mr. William R. Herold, now president of the International General Electric Co., was chairman of the finance committee.

"During that period, Mr. Juan Trippe, president of Pan American Airways, and Mr. Henry Luce of Time and Life were sponsors of a drive for funds in behalf of the American Council of the IPR.

"Surely these gentlemen would never have accepted payments from Mr. Field or anyone else for 'selling the Communist Party line.' Neither would I if I had been in control.

"These contributions, according to Senator McCarthy's own figures, total only $3500 as compared with total expenses for the two-year period of approximately $200,000.

"About half of the amount was met by contributions from the Rockefeller Foundation and Carnegie Corp. Generous donations by large industrial concerns made up a large portion of the remainder."

The State Department declined to make public the Lattimore memorandum, on the ground it had been requested and submitted on a confidential basis. But through his lawyers, Lattimore released the memorandum within a few hours.

In an accompanying statement, Lattimore said he had intended to make it public when he appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee. He was doing it, however, now "because Senator McCarthy in typical fashion is seeking by insinuation and concealment to spread some of the poison of which he has an inexhaustible supply."

Lattimore said he wrote an article for January, 1950, issue of the Atlantic Monthly expressing publicly virtually the same views as were in the memorandum.

Rejects Chiang Tieup

The memorandum dismisses any possibility of working out a solution in China through cooperation with Chiang Kai-shek. It calls for the United States to "disembarrass" itself as quickly as possible from entanglements in south Korea. And it stated that it was impossible to "make Japan a satisfactory instrument of American policy."

Lattimore's memorandum will probably be used as a basis of argument both pro and con about him. His supporters can contend that it marks him as a man of objective judgment about the Far East. Others, who contend with McCarthy that opposition to Chiang is the mark of knowing or unwitting adherence to the Communist line, will assert that the paper shows the Johns Hopkins University professor to be a Soviet stooge.

Senator Lodge's comments, his first on the matter of the McCarthy investigation, were made in a Senate speech. He is one of the two Republicans on the Senate investigating committee.

Lodge said the present method of hearing charges of communism often smeared innocent persons, missed "the really dangerous individuals," and could actually protect "the real Communist ringleaders."

He added:

"All we can learn so far shows clearly that none of the current charges have been proven."

Condemns Bar to Files

He condemned President Truman's refusal to disclose Government loyalty files of those accused by McCarthy, although he said it was justified in the case of FBI material. Lodge did not mention either man by name in this attack on the methods permitted by the committee.

He told the Senate that if a political purpose exists in the investigation, "it merits unreserved condemnation."

Lodge's proposal was received either indifferently or with only lukewarm feelings by Senators, both Democrats and members of his own party. The most common reaction was to question whether the Senate could give up its own investigating subcommittee, which it had authorized, in favor of a new body.

Lodge declared that damage is mounting from the present way Congress is trying to check disloyalty charges. He cautioned that because the inquiry affects the Nation's foreign relations, it has a life and death meaning for every

The impartial commission Lodge proposed in a bill that accompanied his speech would be composed of 12 members—half of them Democrats, half Republicans; half from Congress and the Government, half from private life. Four would be named by the President, four by the President pro tempore of the Senate and four by the Speaker of the House. The commission would have access to any and all pertinent Government records.

Other Developments

Other developments yesterday:

The hearing of Lattimore before the Senate subcommittee was postponed from today, as previously planned, to Thursday.

President Truman notified Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the subcommittee that he has instructed Federal agencies not to comply with the Senate subpenas for the loyalty files. His action, a pure formality, had been expected.

Tydings announced later that the subcommittee planned to have the entire State Department Loyalty Board, headed by Brig. Gen. Conrad E. Snow (retired), before it Wednesday for testimony on its clearance procedures. He said that Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the Administration's top Loyalty Review Board, also might appear at the same hearing.

20-GAME WINNERS OF BASEBALL

HOWARD POLLET

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS (WON 20)

"The throat specialists' findings in the 30-day test don't surprise me," says this veteran southpaw. "I've smoked Camels for many years. I know they're mild, and they're always right for my throat. No matter how much I smoke, Camels don't tire my taste—they have the rich, full flavor I like."

MEL PARNELL

BOSTON RED SOX (WON 25)

Top winner in the major leagues last season, left-hander Mel Parnell made the Camel 30-day mildness test, and reports: "I'm certainly glad I made the test. Camels agree with my throat. And they're a cool, mild, great-tasting smoke. Camels for me—for keeps!"

VIC RASCHI

NEW YORK YANKEES (WON 21)

The "Big Wheel" of the World Champions, Vic Raschi, smokes Camels—because, "Camel mildness agrees with my throat. There's nothing so cheering as a Camel—that Camel flavor hits the spot with me."

BOB LEMON

CLEVELAND INDIANS (WON 22)

"The 30-day test really opened my eyes," says Bob, only major league hurler to win 20 or more games in each of the past two seasons. "Camels have a mildness all their own and they're welcome to my throat."

NOTED THROAT SPECIALISTS REPORT ON 30-DAY TEST OF CAMEL SMOKERS...

Not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking CAMELS

These were the findings of noted throat specialists after a total of 2,470 weekly examinations of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.

Yes, that's how mild Camels are! But prove it for yourself. Compare Camels in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste). See if you don't agree Camels are the mildest, best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked!

Lamont Was Party Member, Former Red Says He Was Told

New York, April 3 (AP).—An admitted former Communist who said he was a onetime undercover man for the FBI testified today he had been told by a Communist leader that Corliss Lamont was a member of the Communist Party.

The witness, John J. Huber, made the statement in a deposition in connection with a $200,000 suit brought by Paul Draper, dancer, and Larry Adler, harmonica player, against Mrs. John T. McCullough, wife of an associate editor of Time Magazine.

The entertainers charged Mrs. McCullough of Greenwich, Conn., injured their reputation by accusing them of pro-Communist sympathies. The suit is scheduled for trial in Hartford, Conn., April 25.

Huber also said he was told that Lamont was "disinherited by his father for joining" the party and that Lamont, son of the late Thomas E. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., was "living on a small fund received from his grandmother.

Lamont was not immediately available for comment.

Under questioning by MacDonald DeWitt, attorney for Mrs. McCullough, Huber said he attended a party given by a Regina Wilson in honor of Corliss Lamont.

"Everybody present was a member of the Communist Party," Huber said.

Huber testified that Draper's mother, Muriel Draper, was a member of the Communist Party and that the son was a "front."

Among the alleged "fronts" he gave the names of Representative A. Clayton Powell, jr., of New York; Stanley M. Isaacs, former borough president of Manhattan and now a New York City councilman; Lee Pressman, J. Raymond Walsh, Richard Watts, jr., Philip Jaffe, Norman Corwin, Hugh Delacy, Prof. Henry Pratt Fairchild, Rockwell Kent, Carey McWilliams and Herman Shumlin.

Personal Independence— one of America's most prized possessions

PERSONAL INDEPENDENCE, founded on individual freedom, has always been one of the proudest possessions of the people of this country.

It is exemplified by the self-reliance and initiative which has made America so great. And the high value people place upon it may be measured by the ever-increasing amount of life insurance Americans own.

Through life insurance a man attains security, not through compulsion of the state, but through personal choice. Thus he achieves security without sacrificing his freedom.

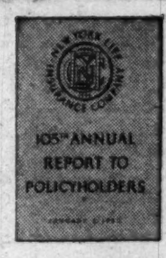
Life insurance is a man's private, personal means of fulfilling his hopes and desires for his family's future . . . of seeing to it that his sons and daughters will be properly educated . . . of making sure that his wife and children need never suffer hardship if he should die. And, at the same time, it offers him a means of providing for his own later years.

Today more people in America are safeguarding the financial independence of their families with life insurance than at any other time in history—or in all the other countries on the face of the earth.

The New York Life Insurance Company is proud to report that it has shared in this growth—as the 105th Annual Report to Policyholders, just published as a 36-page illustrated booklet, shows.

The essential facts and figures of this Report will, of course, be sent to policyholders as usual with their premium notices. The complete booklet will be sent gladly to anyone requesting it.

NEW YORK LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY
51 Madison Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.



HIGHLIGHTS FROM OUR 105th ANNUAL REPORT
December 31, 1949

At the close of 1949 the Company had 3,864,338 policies in force for $9,970,371,347, an increase of 84,797 policies and $430,787,118 of insurance protection as compared with the end of 1948.

Sales in 1949 amounted to $852,385,500, the third consecutive year that new sales have ranged between $850,000,000 and $860,000,000.

The Company in 1949 paid $131,802,411 to living policyholders (an increase of $13,755,982 over 1948) and $88,447,839 to beneficiaries (an increase of $118,268). The total was $220,250,250 (an increase of $13,874,250).

For 1950 the Company is continuing the same scale of dividends to policyholders as was in effect in 1949. New York Life has always been a mutual company and pays dividends to policyholders only.

Text of Lattimore's Memorandum of Last August on American Policy in Far East

MEMORANDUM

United States Policy in the Far East

By OWEN LATTIMORE

Submitted to the Hon. Philip C. Jessup, Mr. Raymond Fosdick, and Mr. Everett Case, in response to Mr. Jessup's request of 18 August 1949.

In clearing the way for a fresh approach to the problems of United States policy in the Far East, several negative statements can usefully be made.

1. The type of policy represented by support for Chiang Kai-shek does more harm than good to the interests of the United States, and no modification of this policy seems promising. Chiang Kai-shek was a unique figure in Asia. He is now fading into a kind of eclipse that is regrettably damaging to the prestige of the United States, because the United States supported him. His eclipse does not even leave behind the moral prestige of a good but losing fight in defense of a weak cause. On the contrary, he put up the worst possible fight in defense of a cause that was originally strong and should have won. The kind of policy that failed in support of so great a figure as Chiang Kai-shek cannot possibly succeed if it is applied to a scattering of "Little Chiang Kai-sheks" in China or elsewhere in Asia.

2. China cannot be economically coerced by such measures as cutting off trade. Nothing could be more dangerous for the American interest than to underestimate the ability of the Chinese Communists to achieve the minimum level of economic stability that will make their regime politically secure. Sound policy should allow for a cautious overestimate of the ability of the Chinese Communists in this respect, and avoid a rash underestimate.

Two Alternatives in Japan

3. It is not possible to make Japan a satisfactory instrument of American policy. There are two alternatives in Japan. The first alternative is to keep Japan alive by means of American "blood transfusions" of raw materials and credits. Under this alternative, Japan can be made to put on the surface appearance of a strong ally; but the reality will be an overcommitment of American resources to a distant and vulnerable region. Under the second alternative, Japan can keep itself alive by coming to terms, economically and politically, with its neighbors in Asia, principally China. Under this alternative, Japan cannot serve as a trusted American ally. Its own interests will compel it to balance and bargain between what it can get out of Asia and what it can get out of America.

4. South Korea is more of a liability than an asset to the interests and policy of the United States. It is doubtful how long the present regime in South Korea can be kept alive, and the mere effort to keep it alive is a bad advertisement, which continually draws attention to a band of little-and-inferior-Chiang Kai-sheks who are the scorn of the Communists and have lost the respect of democratic and would-be democratic groups and movements throughout Asia.

5. The colonial and quasi-colonial countries of Southeast Asia cannot be forced to grant priorities to the economic and military recovery of Europe, at the expense of their own economic and political interests. In this region as a whole there is a rapid development of combined political and military resistance to coercion which can be indefinitely sustained by local resources. On the other hand, attempts at reconquest by European countries are so expensive that they defeat their own ultimate purpose, which is the strengthening of the country attempting the reconquest. The situation can now be handled only by convincing the nationalist leaders in those countries that any sacrifices they are asked to make are matched by sacrifices made by their former or titular rulers, and are not designed to give priority to the interests of these rulers, but to bring joint benefits both to the ruling countries and to the colonial country, on terms that satisfy the colonial aspiration to equality.

Russia Not to Obligate Self

6. The United States cannot assume that Russia will move in to take over direct control in China, and will thus be subjected to heavy strategic and economic strains. It is dangerous to assume that there will be a diversion and commitment of Russian resources in Asia which will limit Russia's ability to maneuver in Europe. Recent developments in the Far East have been favorable to Russia, but not in a way that lessens the resources that Russia can deploy toward Europe. Policy toward Russia and policy toward the Far East meet at the point where such a move as the imposition of an economic cordon sanitaire around China is considered. Such a move would increase Chinese dependence on Russia; but it would probably not make it necessary for Russia to undertake a large-scale program in China. The Russians would get credit in Asia, multiplied by propaganda, for any grants they might make to China, but would probably not have to make grants large enough to distort or strain their own resources. It would be possible, therefore, if the mistake is made of waiting for the Chinese Communists to come "hat in hand" to ask for American terms, for United States policy to encounter another setback in Asia, without even the compensating advantage of hampering Russia's ability to apply pressure in Europe.

The foregoing statements define negative aspects of the situation in Asia, limiting the freedom of maneuver of United States policy. Within these limitations, it seems advisable that a number of positive objectives should be defined.

1. Policy in the Far East and policy toward Russia have a bearing on each other. It certainly cannot yet be said, however, that armed warfare against communism in the Far East, on a scale involving a major commitment of American resources, has become either unavoidable or positively desirable. Nor can it be said with any assurance that, in the event of an armed conflict undertaken for the purpose of forcing Russia back from Europe, the Far East would be an optimum field of operation.

Two Alternatives Still Open

There are still two alternatives before us—a relatively long peace, or a rapid approach toward war. If there is to be war, it can only be won by defeating Russia—not Northern Korea, or Viet Nam, or even China. Sound policy should therefore avoid premature or excessive strategic deployment in the Far East.

If there is to be a long peace, the primary factor in making peace possible will be a stabilization of relations between the United States and Russia. Sound policy should therefore maintain a maximum flexibility. If and when negotiated and mutually acceptable agreements with Russia become possible, American policy in the Far East should be in a position to contribute to Russo-American negotiations. It should not be so mired down in local situations that direct American-Russian negotiations are actually hampered.

2. Any new departures in United States policy in the Far East must be able to fend off any accusation of "appeasement" of local or Russian communism. In view of the effectiveness of the Russian issue as a weapon in in-fighting in American party politics, it would seem that the advice of experts on domestic politics should be coordinated with the opinions of those who are consulted on foreign policy.

Dilemma Called Simple

The dilemma is simple, but not easy to solve; but unless it can be solved, no successful United States policy in the Far East is possible. Any United States policy that is interpreted in various countries in the Far East as pressure applied for the purpose of creating a league against Russia will merely increase the ability of those countries to bargain with both the United States and Russia. It will also increase the identification, in those countries, between local nationalism and local communism. On the other hand, any proposed United States policy in the Far East that is attacked in America itself as a bid for better relations with Russia runs the danger of being defeated.

3. The success of United States policy in the Far East will be measured largely by the contribution that it makes to the recovery of economic relations between the Far East and Europe. This recovery will be possible only if the assent and good will of the Far Eastern countries are won. Assent and real cooperation, in turn, can only be won if the representatives of the Far Eastern countries, including those that are still technically the subjects of European countries, are convinced that they have as direct access to the highest American authorities as do the European representatives, and if they are convinced that their economic needs and political standards are not being given a second priority, lower than that of the European countries involved in the same negotiations.

The two test cases in Southeast Asia, on which the leaders of various nationalist movements will rate the difference between what can be attained through friendly association with representatives of the United States and what can be attained through outright defiance of a European country which has strong economic support from the United States are Inonesia and the Viet Nam regime under Ho Chi-minh.

Results Could Hurt U. S.

If the negotiations between Dutch and Indonesians, brought about largely through benevolent United States pressure, eventuate in a settlement which seems, in Indonesia, to contain too much of hope deferred, while the resistance in Indo-China under Ho Chi-minh achieves more and more of hope fulfilled, the results throughout Southeast Asia will be adverse to the United States interest.

Heavy and primary United States commitments in Western Europe make it difficult to bear constantly in mind that when the Dutch-Indonesian negotiations are consummated, the satisfaction or dissatisfaction of popular opinion in Indonesia will have wider repercussions than the satisfaction or dissatisfaction of Dutch public opinion. It is a fact, nevertheless, that Indonesian opinion is more difficult to satisfy than Dutch opinion, and it is also a fact that the repercussions will be more serious if Indonesian opinion is not satisfied than if Dutch opinion is not satisfied. These facts mark an important difference between pre-war and post-war colonial Asia. They are facts that American public opinion has by no means fully accepted; but they are also facts that are critical for the formulation of an over-all United States policy in Asia.

4. The foregoing considerations indicate that the major aim of United States policy in the Far East should be to convince the countries of the Far East that they can get along well with the United States and with the countries of Western Europe. They must be persuaded that they can get along well because of the mutual benefits to themselves, to the United States, and to Western Europe.

They must not be made to suspect that the real aim of the United States is an ulterior aim of using them against Russia.

To put it in another way, the aim of the United States policy should be to enable the countries of the Far East to do without Russia to the maximum extent. This is a much more modest aim than insistence on and organization of hostility to Russia; but it is an attainable aim, and the other is not.

A few suggestions for implementation are appended.

1. Conferences with the independent governments of the Far East, on the basis of helping them to build their own economies, to revive their trade with Europe, and to expand their trade with us. Emphasis on positive steps that can be taken. No negative conditions, such as prohibitions of trade with Russia or Communist China; no conditions that could be interpreted as American regulation of their political parties.

2. Working relations, and a refusal to be bound by protocol, with legitimate nationalist leaders in countries whose full political aspirations have not been met by their European rulers.

3. The United States should not allow any European country, in its relations with any country in the Far East, to state openly or to imply by propaganda that its policy is "backed by the United States." European representatives, in negotiating with the representatives of countries in Asia, should be discouraged from stating or implying that they are authoritative interpreters of United States policy, or intermediaries without whom the United States cannot be approached.

4. It should be made clear that if there is delay or difficulty in establishing relations between the United States and Communist-controlled countries, such as China, the trouble comes from the Communist side and not from the United States side.

Depend on Friendliness

5. It should be made clear that friendly and beneficial relations with the United States depend essentially on the inherent friendliness or unfriendliness of the nation concerned, and not on the formalities of diplomatic recognition. In order to facilitate the contrast between countries which are on friendly terms with the United States and countries which are not, the number of countries formally recognized by the United States should be increased.

As a first step, the United States should accept the list of countries recommended for admission to the United Nations by Mr. Trygve Lie, Secretary-General of the United Nations. In the first place, it would at this time be a good move for the United States to accept with good will an initiative from the Secretariat of the United Nations. In the second place, the list is on balance more favorable to the United States than to the Soviet Union. In the third place, and with particular reference to the Far East, the move would bring within the scope of United States diplomatic activity the Mongolian People's Republic (Outer Mongolia), an increasingly important potential listening-post country in the heart of Asia.

6. The United States should disembarrass itself as quickly as possible of its entanglements in South Korea.

VFW Plans Loyalty Day To Offset Red Event

The Veterans of Foreign Wars announced yesterday it will sponsor a Nation-wide "Loyalty Day" program the weekend of May 1 with community ceremonies "designed to express the unfailing loyalty of all Americans to the United States."

Commander in Chief Clyde A. Lewis said the organization's 10,000 posts will sponsor parades throughout the country "to counteract Communist May Day activities."

Like millions of other Americans, these men have found that there's a world of opportunity in America.

They've found that initiative, ideas, self-reliance and drive pay off. They're on the road to real security!

They know from experience that real security has to be earned. And earnings come from the work people do . . . from what they produce.

Such security as is provided by government can only be the sum total of what the people contribute through taxes, from their earnings. For government, by and large, is not engaged in production . . . earns no money. Its income comes from taxes everybody pays whether these taxes are collected directly from the individual or indirectly through corporations.

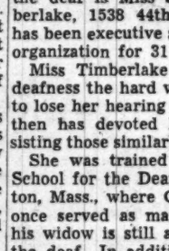
Volta Bureau Fights Plight of the Deaf

By Gershon Fishbein
Post Reporter

When Helen Keller recently stressed the need for better understanding among the deaf and hard-of-hearing, the sightless author was spotlighting the daily task of a private Washington organization.



Miss Timberlake

The Volta Bureau, 1537 35th st. nw., acts as one of the Nation's leading contacts between educational institutions, social workers, physicians and others interested in easing the plight of the deaf.

It maintains the largest library in the world on deafness—between 15,000 and 20,000 volumes in 14 languages. Its monthly magazine contains numerous articles by people who have overcome their handicap, a valuable inspiration to victims who easily lapse into despondency.

Advice Sought All Over World

Distraught parents write from all over the world seeking the Volta Bureau's advice. A few years ago a young mother in Palestine wrote, "I don't feel that my child is real because it can't hear." With Volta's guidance, the mother brought the baby to the United States. Today the child is attending school, well on the road to "real" living.

The Volta Bureau has records of 1504 boys and girls who, after special preliminary training, have graduated from schools or colleges with students of normal hearing.

The driving force behind Volta's position as a beacon of hope for the deaf is Miss Josephine Timberlake, 1538 44th st., nw., who has been executive secretary of the organization for 31 years.

Miss Timberlake learned about deafness the hard way. She began to lose her hearing at 20 and since then has devoted her life to assisting those similarly handicapped.

She was trained at the Clarke School for the Deaf in Northampton, Mass., where Calvin Coolidge once served as mayor and where his widow is still active in aiding the deaf. In addition, she taught at the Virginia School for the Deaf at Staunton, where she grew up.

Miss Timberlake points out that the courageous is the commonplace among the deaf. "It takes real courage," she says, "for a deaf person to ask directions of a man on the street, knowing full well that he cannot hear a single word the man says. He can only hope to learn enough by lip reading to guide him."

Founded by Bell

Through its extensive information program, the Volta Bureau seeks to minimize self-consciousness by the deaf in their contacts with the hearing.

The Volta Bureau owes its existence to Alexander Graham Bell, who founded the organization in 1887.

Bell became interested in the experience of the deaf while still a young man. He later learned, much to his surprise, that there was nothing wrong with their vocal organs.

He later married a deaf woman, but Miss Timberlake, an authority on the life and works of Bell, scoffs at the widely-held belief that he invented the telephone to help his wife's hearing.

"He was working on the telephone long before he met his wife," Miss Timberlake declares. "It's just another Bell legend."

When someone asked Bell what the purpose of the Volta Bureau was to be, he replied, "simply to increase and diffuse knowledge relating to deafness." According to Miss Timberlake the bureau still considers this its main function.

Comes April, comes the allergies.

The belief is more common than true, according to a Washington authority on the city's pollen polls, a doctor who's been catching and counting the airborne sneeze-makers for at least 15 years.

Actually, says Dr. Grafton Tyler Brown, allergic Washington is divided into three seasons, the first of which we are now well in.

Since around Washington's Birthday time, this year, the city's trees have been sending out their male fertilizing grains. The elms pollinated in March, and now the nastier oaks are ready to follow, spreading sneezes to the sensitive in their willy-nilly search for the pollen chambers of other elms and other oaks.

Sneezing Season

Dr. Brown, instructor of clinical medicine at Georgetown University School of Medicine, recently published a monograph, "Pollen Slide Studies," on seasonal allergies in the Capital City.

The city's first season to bring suffering to its sensitized citizens is the "tree season," beginning in February and lasting through May, when sycamores and hickories add their seeds to the air.

But the "tree season" is bad only to a relatively small percentage of persons allergic to pollens, Dr. Brown explained. He pointed out that percentage-wide only about 4 in every 100 so-called hayfever victims are that way because of tree pollens.

Second season in Washington's annual air attacks is the "grass season," commencing around May 10 and lasting till mid-July. The offending pollens are spread by the winds from sweet vernal grass, then June orchard timothy, red top, and also plantain.

Welcome Lull

The "grass season" brings sniffles, sneezes, red eyes and general discomfort to an estimated 32 percent of the "hay fever" victims.

Nature then provides a lull in pollen allergies till the ragweeds begin to stir, bringing the heaviest seasonal attack of allergies. This so-called "fall season" commences during the second week in August and continues through to frost.

This, then, is the true "hayfever" season, accounting for the remaining 64 percent of seasonal allergies. Ragweed, not hay, nor goldenrod, nor roses, is the offender.

Fortunately, the allergic can do something about their troubles. They can get away from them, they can keep the pollens away from themselves, they can guard against them with inoculations, or they can get relief from the symptoms of their troubles.

Pack Up Your Troubles

The first is admittedly harder than it sounds. To get away from the pollens that bother you, you pack off to some city or resort that is pollen-free for the duration of the particular Washington siege.

Keeping pollens away from you is also a toughie. It means, Dr. Brown said, eating, sleeping, working, playing, in fact continuous living in air-conditioned atmospheres for the "duration."

The preventive inoculations do work, allergists and allergy victims say. Even when they don't entirely prevent allergy attacks they reduce the degree of those attacks.

Attempt to Kidnap Girl, 8, Reported

Kidnaped Sunday

Baby Search Continues In Va. Area

Though clues dwindled in their investigation two New York City detectives continued search last night in the Winchester, Va., area for 13-day-old Chaneta Holden and the woman who kidnaped her last Thursday.

The detectives went to Winchester Sunday on a tip from Troy Tucker, Greyhound bus driver of Roanoke, Va., that he took a woman answering the description of the kidnaper to Winchester, last Friday. She carried an infant he said.

The child, prematurely born daughter of Mrs. Clarence Holden, was snatched from an incubator in Lincoln Hospital, the Bronx, N. Y., last Thursday night. She weighed but 2 pounds, 11 ounces, and physicians said her chance of survival outside the incubator are slim.

The Associated Press reported that Detectives John Gannon and William Mara, working with police assigned by Chief J. Thomas Boyd of Winchester, have combed lodging houses, tourist camps and other sites in the area where the woman kidnaper might be hiding without success. But the New York men said last night that they will continue.

In New York a police official told the Associated Press the two detectives reported by telephone they have also checked the towns of White Plains, Md., and White Plains, Va. The woman believed to be the kidnaper told attendants at a New York bus terminal she was bound for White Plains, Md. That is a tiny hamlet near LaPlata.

Screams by an 8-year-old girl foiled what may have been an attempted abduction last night in Georgetown.

The girl, Barbara Crampton of 3825 M st. nw., told police at the Seventh Precinct this story:

She was playing with her sister and another girl in the 3600 block of Canal rd. nw. at about 7 p. m. when an automobile occupied by four men stopped where they were playing.

A middle-aged man with a small black mustache, wearing a gray suit and gray hat, reached out and grabbed Barbara's wrist and attempted to drag her into the car.

The small, blonde child pulled back and screamed so loudly that the man let go his grasp and the car sped away west on Canal rd.

Barbara was taken to Georgetown University Hospital where she was treated for minor bruises to her wrist.

Police said she was so frightened that she could hardly tell her story. The car, she said, was light green and either a coupe or a two-door sedan.

Public Barred From Hearing On Sex Charge

A 5-year-old girl was allowed to testify behind closed doors in a sodomy case yesterday to spare her the ordeal of telling details of the case in a crowded Municipal Court room.

Judge Thomas D. Quinn held the hearing in his chambers at the request of both prosecuting and defense attorneys.

"In the future all such hearings, which involve young children and sordid sex matters, are going to be held in my chambers," Judge Quinn said later.

The defendant, Rudolph K. Fairfax, 34, a Baltimore construction worker, was ordered held under $5000 bond for grand jury action on the sodomy charge.

Fairfax is a friend of the child's mother, who is separated from her husband. The child said Fairfax molested her "sometime before Christmas and many times since then."

She never informed her mother, but Sunday, while her father was driving her and her 3-year-old sister to visit relatives in nearby Maryland, she suddenly blurted out the story, police said.

Fairfax, father of six children, is separated from his wife, according to police.

Prince Georges Jury Urged to Watch Reds

A Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday was told to pay especial attention to any subversive activities it finds in the county.

Judge J. Dudley Digges, making his first charge to a Prince Georges County jury, warned the 23 members of the panel that the court is required to direct their attention to the antisubversive statute known as the Maryland Ober law. The law recently was upheld in a court test of its constitutionality. Digges was appointed to the bench of Maryland's Eleventh Judicial Circuit in February, 1949.

"It should be of particular importance in Prince Georges County," said Digges, and added, "Here we are on the threshold of the United States Capital where activities of those who would overthrow our Government by force may occur."

Sits With Marbury

Judge Digges, who sat with Judge Charles C. Marbury at the biannual grand jury convention, was giving the charge on the Ober law for the first time since its passage.

Under terms of the Ober law, the grand jury must file a written report of its findings under the antisubversive law before it may be dismissed. Judge Marbury said late yesterday that there was "no hidden motive" in Judge Digges' charge; that he was simply carrying out statutory provisions, cautioning jurors to exercise diligence in seeing that terms of the law are met.

Commenting on the work which the grand jury has before it, Judge Digges told the veniremen they have 94 presentments to consider. This he classified as not a great number, "considering the population of the county and its location. In fact," he said, "it is a little on the low side."

One Murder Slated

Among cases which the grand jury will consider during the April term are one murder, five robberies, eight aggravated assaults, nine burglaries and housebreakings, 11 larcenies, 9 cases of false pretense and 31 minor cases.

Selected as jury foreman was W. Landon Turner, a Washington real estate man who operates a farm at Nottingham, Md.

Other jury members are Mrs. Naomi Cohee, John Chesley, William D. Cochran, Roy Booth, Harry Haas, Thomas F. Patterson, Harry Fowler, Edwin G. Coswell, Clarence A. Carroll, Charles Felix Johnson, Jessie Baggott, Robert W. Weiss, Claude W. Boswell, George R. Boyce, Charles A. Adell, jr., Harry I. Allen, Morris L. Ziller, Edward L. Allen, Ernest M. Officials Ordered to Comply With Ober Law in Bladensburg

Bladensburg town officials and employes were directed by the town council last night to comply with the Ober law and take an oath that they are not members of any subversive groups.

Other business at its monthly meeting included a report by William C. Morrison, town treasurer, that the Bladensburg assessment base had risen $512,340 in the last year from $3,625,732 to $4,138,072.

The council also discussed proposed regulations for the police department, but postponed action until next month's meeting. The police committee, meanwhile, will remain in charge, it was announced.

An ordinance was discussed in regard to control of coin operated machines which would ban children below 18 years from playing the machines from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., on school days. Action was postponed pending a conference with school officials. It was alleged that children were spending lunch money on the machines.

The Council went on record favoring passages of a referendum proving a 10-cent fire tax for the 2d election district. The money would be divided among the several fire departments of the area, with the Baldensburg Volunteer Fire Department getting almost $5000, it was brought out.

Look how you save with Dynaflow

IT has been two years now since Dynaflow Drive* made its bow to a warmly welcoming public.

And some things can be said which would have been claims before—but now stand as cold, recorded fact.

It's a fact, for instance, that the first thing you notice about Dynaflow is the bother and effort it saves.

Next, it strikes home that Dynaflow saves you physically — that after long trips it leaves you less tense and tired, more relaxed at journey's end.

But then, as the miles pile up, you begin to spot some savings you hadn't expected . . .

You save on tires, because of the steady, even application of power.

You save on clutch repair or replacement — Dynaflow eliminates the usual friction clutch.

You save on transmission maintenance, and the rear axle expenses likely to go with it. And the way your engine is oil-cushioned against normal shocks and strains shows up in less engine upkeep.

Meantime, you may well discover something very surprising indeed, if hearsay has been your guide so far.

We are getting a steadily mounting number of well-satisfied letters about gasoline mileage with Dynaflow cars.

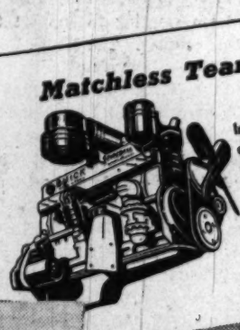
The SPECIAL has shown some records little short of phenomenal. The SUPER is delivering mileage that compares most favorably with gearshift cars. And the ROADMASTER more than holds its own with cars of its size and bulk.

In short, there's a lot more to please your budget in the 1950 Dynaflow than its new, lower price. Refinements over the past two years result in savings that are sizable over the life of the car.

Knowing that, don't you want us to demonstrate the big side of Dynaflow — the utter smoothness of America's first drive in which oil does it all?

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Matchless Team—DYNAFLOW and F-263



In the Buick beauty pictured here you can have both Dynaflow and Buick's very latest in power. For every 1950 SUPER has the F-263 engine, that lively high-compression stepper that's the big power thrill of the season. Dynaflow Drive is optional equipment at extra cost.

ONLY BUICK HAS Dynaflow

AND WITH IT GOES: HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD forefront, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube • WIDE ARRAY OF MODELS with Body by Fisher.

FOUR-WAY FOREFRONT

This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs—vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "locking horns," (4) makes parking and garaging easier.

Quotaless Army

Army chieftains have been wholly realistic in abandoning the racial quota on enlistments. Morally, the quota system has never been defensible. Practically, the virtual ban on Negro enlistments because the Army has been "over-strength" in Negroes has deprived the Army of a source of efficient manpower. The substitution of the criterion of intelligence and aptitude, as determined by the Army General Classification Test, will mean that men of equal ability will get an equal chance. The level of acceptability can of course be moved up or down as conditions warrant. Moreover, the weeding out of culls who do not qualify for promotion—the "professional privates"—will enable the Army to concentrate on enlistees of greater promise regardless of color.

Abolition of the quota system means that the Army has adopted, in principle at least, all the major points advanced by the President's Committee on Equality of Opportunity in the Armed Services. These advances have been made quietly and without fanfare, and they bring the Army to the same basic standards as prevail in the Air Force and Navy. They reflect the sane, broad-minded attitude taken by Secretary Gray and the workmanlike approach of the Fahy Committee. If Army commanders clearly understand the policy and implement it progressively, we feel that it will work so smoothly that they will wonder why it was not instituted long ago.

Halfway With ECA

The second anniversary of ECA—midpoint in its career—was celebrated yesterday by a radio program which included some of its chief architects and engineers. Gen. George C. Marshall, the originator of the European Recovery Program which the ECA was established to carry into operation, took part in the ceremony. He recalled the seemingly desperate state of Europe in the late spring of 1947—a state in which the need for material reconstruction seemed paramount. "But slowly I learned," General Marshall said yesterday, "that the most serious phase of rehabilitation was related to other considerations—political, moral, spiritual."

ECA is accomplishing something even more important than the reconstruction of Europe; it is contributing to a process of self-regeneration. "Looking again at the conditions prevalent in the spring of 1947, and again considering the situation at this moment," the general declared, "I can only feel that one near miracle has been accomplished. We must work for, and expect, another miracle."

Secretary of State Acheson had something to say about that other "miracle." He spoke of the tremendous task lying ahead in the remaining two years of the ECA undertaking. "We must remind ourselves," he observed, "that the answer to the forces opposing recovery is the same which we—the United States and the participating countries—gave in 1947, namely, to proceed confidently, seriously, deliberately to the constructive work at hand. Peace is what men make it and the only way to win it is to plug away at it. The European Recovery Program lights a path to a future to which men can look with confidence for peace and order in a system based on freedom and justice." There should be no faltering at the halfway mark.

Investigator Wanted

Senator Lodge probably voiced the fears of a majority of his colleagues yesterday when he complained that the McCarthy imbroglio "has weakened the position of the United States before the world." The fact that Senator Lodge, in restrained language, voiced his disgust with the proceedings to date is especially signficant because he is not only a Republican but also a member of the investigating subcommittee. His courageous statement suggests that other Republicans are also concerned over the circus of serial sensationalism that Senator McCarthy has created in the Senate.

It seems improbable, however, that the Senate will accept Mr. Lodge's suggestion that the investigation of disloyalty charges against Government employes be turned over to a 12-man nonpartisan commission. The present Loyalty Review Board is headed by a Republican and it has functioned in a strictly nonpartisan fashion. But it has not stopped the scandal-mongers of the Senate from airing charges of disloyalty against Government employes and others. Much as we should like to see this controversy reduced to an unbiased review of the facts, we doubt that the harm which is being done could be arrested by such a board as Senator Lodge has suggested.

No doubt the Tydings Subcommittee will insist on finishing the task it has started. Its difficult work of unearthing the facts could be greatly facilitated, however, if the committee employed an outstanding investigator. Let it hire a lawyer of such standing that his impartiality in conducting the probe could not be reasonably questioned—a man of the standing of Owen J. Roberts. Such a step would go a long way toward substituting fact and trustworthy evidence for rumors and gabble.

National Advisorate

Mr. Baruch has contributed to the current discussion of how to meet our world problem the thought of setting up a "general staff for peace." Along with Senator Vandenberg and many others, he is worried over the big issues confronting the United States. "We still stagger from crisis to crisis," he said last week, "with the initiative left to the enemy." As part of a general mobilization plan, he would create a nonpartisan "G. H. Q. for peace" that "would sit in continuous deliberation on the whole of the peace waging, serving as a central point of decision, weighing all the many commitments pressed upon us, guiding the best disposition of our strained resources, determining where we can achieve a decisive breakthrough—and at what effort."

Mr. Baruch's worries are the common worries. He sees the country in this critical time of transition failing to take full advantage of its resources of brain power. He would like to drown out factionalism and pettifoggery with a new drive for unity under the leadership of our wisest and most trusted statesmen. That objective we wholly applaud, as has been evident in these columns for several months. But it seems to us that Mr. Baruch goes astray in calling the agency that is needed a "general staff for peace" and in suggesting that it should make "decisions." To our way of thinking, any such committee of nonpartisan statesmen that may be assembled ought to be wholly advisory. It should generate ideas and pass them along to the President, Congress and the public, but it should not at any point attempt to take over the functions of existing administrative officials.

We ourselves suggested such a committee at the time of the H-bomb decision, saying that it should explore the implications of that decision and acquaint the public with its meaning. The need for such a service has grown daily more acute. Decisions of far-reaching significance are being made without the scrutiny of Congress, the people, or any representative body. One of the first acts of such an advisorate, we surmise, would be to suggest a more enlightened policy as to information to be given to the public. A dangerous misconception is taking hold of the country. Millions of people are assuming that, because we have undertaken construction of the H-bomb, the country is now safe from the menace of Communist aggression. There is no foundation whatever for such an assumption, and the facts ought to be known.

Other reasons for wanting an advisorate of the country's wisest men are to steady the course of our whole foreign policy, to give the people new confidence in what the Government is doing, and to look constantly ahead into the vast problem of security for the free world. Such a group would lose its influence and blur its function if it should venture into operational activities. The first great need is for bold thinking about the world situation. We have faith enough in our system to believe that policies thus evolved would be implemented if they had the support of the people.

Old-Age Grants

We are glad that an influential Government official, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, has called attention to the abuses flourishing under the Federal-State old-age assistance program. Mr. Sawyer points out that Federal cash grants for such purposes are becoming increasingly burdensome, "with less and less incentive upon the State to make the conditions of payment [to the aged] reasonable." As a matter of fact, these Federal old-age assistance contributions have tempted some States, especially the poorer ones, to increase payments to the aged at the expense of other needy groups. In some States, too, tests of need have been made so liberal that an aged person can become eligible for aid, even though he may own a considerable amount of property or have relatives who could well afford to support him. In certain parts of the country the old-age assistance program shows signs of degenerating into a handout system.

Furthermore, the scale of old-age assistance payments varies tremendously from State to State, as do the numbers on the old-age assistance rolls. For example, last June average payments ranged from $19 to $71 a month, with the average monthly payment for the Nation amounting to approximately $44. Contrast this figure with the $26 monthly average payment to retired workers under the Federal social insurance system! Incidentally, at the end of the last fiscal year only 1.8 million aged men and women were beneficiaries of the old-age insurance system, whereas more than 2.6 million were receiving old-age assistance.

Congress is largely to blame for the growing pressure to give relief handouts to the States, because of its failure (1) to provide larger benefits under the old-age insurance system, and (2) to extend coverage to millions of excluded workers. The House has already passed a bill providing for substantial increases in the scale of insurance benefits and bringing into the system about 11 million additional persons. However, even under the revised schedules of the House bill, average benefits would be lower than the average amounts paid to recipients of old-age assistance in about half the States, while 14 million workers in special need of insurance protection would still be outside the system.

The first step in arresting the dangerous trend toward universal pensions based on need is, therefore, to correct the defects and the deficiencies of the existing old-age insurance system. To force the States to finance the entire cost of public assistance programs under present conditions would inflict great hardship on aged pensioners in the poorer States. The Government can and should act promptly, however, to curb the abuses of the present Federal-State assistance program. Instead, pending legislation provides for increases in Federal grants that would encourage the States to put more needy aged on their rolls. When and if the inadequacies of the social-insurance program are corrected by legislation, the great majority of retired workers will not have to rely on charity, the cost of public assistance will be greatly reduced, and the States will then be in a position to care for their own needy without asking for Federal grants-in-aid.

Memo On China

It is evident that originally Senator McCarthy had in mind a person other than Owen Lattimore as his "top Soviet spy." He spoke about a man in the State Department. He later mentioned Alger Hiss' boss. Something happened, it would seem, that diverted his attention, and he chose Owen Lattimore as the recipient of his foul label. But the job remained to connect him with the State Department. So Owen Lattimore was said to have a desk there, to determine Far Eastern policies through such minions as Mr. Jessup, to be a consultant, and to be on a mission to Afghanistan for the United States.

Secretary Acheson last week disposed of the staff connection that Owen Lattimore was supposed to have with the State Department. He has just come back from Afghanistan, where he was on a mission for the United Nations, not the United States. He has never been on the State Department's staff, though he was once on the payroll, as one of the experts attached to the Pauley reparation mission to Japan. Along with a number of other Far Eastern experts, too, he was asked last year to contribute his ideas in connection with a panel discussion on policy in the Far East. This he did in a memorandum. It is this memorandum that Mr. Lattimore has now released ahead of his appearance before the Tydings Subcommittee. The step was taken because Senator McCarthy had implied that somehow this would support Senator McCarthy.

The memorandum does nothing of the sort. Far from being a pro-Russian document, it is Mr. Lattimore's guide in the conduct of the cold war with Russia in a sort of neo-Churchillian framework. Nor does it indicate an affinity between Lattimore ideas and State Department policy. On the contrary, there are divergencies on Japan, on Korea, on Formosa and Chiang Kai-shek, on Indo-China. The memorandum merely reiterates Mr. Lattimore's views on Far Eastern events and policy which are already widely known through his articles and books. In fact, the substance of this memorandum has already appeared in a national magazine. It is a good thing that the memorandum is getting publicity, for it might well serve as the occasion for the national debate on what to do about China which the ailing Ambassador, Dr. J. Leighton Stuart, recommended when he returned to America. Instead of that, the Republican critics of American diplomacy have been inviting the country to indulge in self-flagellation, if not a sort of primal appeasement of the gods by way of expiation.

Chinese Students

Among the most pitiable victims of the imbroglio in China have been the Chinese students stranded in the United States. Cut off from their homeland without money, they have been prohibited by the immigration laws from working to support themselves in this country. The House Foreign Affairs Committee deserves plaudits for appreciating their plight and for including in the omnibus foreign aid bill authority to spend six million dollars from leftover ECA China aid funds to assist Chinese students. A similar act of practical humanitarianism was the acceptance on the House floor of the Walter amendment which would waive the immigration laws and permit Chinese students to accept employment while in this country. This country can do little in China itself, though Senator Knowland has recommended that aid be given to the famine-ridden area in China, subject to guarantees; but the present gesture is an indication of American sympathy with the Chinese people.

THE MAGIC OF MUSIC

What is it
That makes of me
The thing I want to be
When I hear music?
Dumb, my lips,
No words can I conjure
To make it known
What depths its magic stir.
I, who play the strings
Know their language brings Me nearer thee,
To me, they speak
What human voice ne'er understand.
Music makes of me
Just what I am.

Bankrupt GOP

Herblock's cartoon of March 29 (Republican leaders trying to push the elephant to a stand on a platform built of McCarthian tar pots) brings out a phase of this business which I have not yet seen touched on in the press.

I have long realize that the Truman party and the following of court-house politicians and third-rate industrialists and businessmen of which it is largely composed, should, for the good of the country, be removed from power.

Since 1948 it has seemed to us that the Truman party has been making every possible preparation to present the 1952 election to the Republicans on a silver platter. All that the Republican leaders have to do in preparation for 1952 is to play the game straight and exercise reasonable restraint over their apparently asinine impulses. And so what now?—a smear campaign which for cynical and knowing dishonesty, or abysmal ignorance, or both, makes any other "political" move of recent years seem clean by contrast. One would expect the Republican leadership at least to repudiate McCarthy—the really wise and honest move for them would be to initiate impeachment proceedings against the man, and to drum him out of the party. Instead, they actually seem to be supporting him.

If this sort of thing continues, if what we now see about us is truly what it appears to be, evidence of the state of bankruptcy in leadership and ideas to which the two major parties have degenerated, then what can we do at the polls in 1952? Our votes will be little more effective in getting us good government than the votes recently cast by the Russians in their own election. NAUSEATED VOTER.

Direct Election

In 1823 Senator Thomas Hart Benton of Missouri introduced a Senate Joint Resolution providing for the election of the President and Vice President by popular vote. These are its simple provisions:

"In the election of the President and Vice President of the United States the vote shall be taken by congressional districts, the persons receiving the highest number of votes for President and Vice President in each district shall be holden to have received one vote, which shall be certified to the Governor of the State, to each of the Senators in Congress and to the President of the Senate.

"The prominent features of this plan are: (1) The abolition of electors and direct vote of the people; (2) a second election between the highest on each list when no one has a majority of the whole; (3) uniformity in the mode of election."

Thirty years afterward Senator Benton wrote, "It requires years of persevering exertion to produce the unanimity of opinion necessary to popular reformation." True, and 127 years later the end is not in sight.

A fourth advantage of the proposed system would be in the nomination of the strongest possible candidates for Congress, since it would bring about a reversal of presidential coattails as a means of advent to office. Indeed, the heavy responsibility of electing the President would rest on congressional candidates and the devotion to party of those humble, unknown persons who serve as committeemen and women in the precinct, which is the unit of government in the United States, and the place where victories are won—or lost.

Farm Solution

I would like to offer a suggestion to alleviate the condition of high prices of food at a time of plenty. The anomalous program of subsidies to farmers, encouraging a further glut in the market and more taxes to everyone, can be rectified by the following remedies: (1) Take away the subsidy program but help the farmers by easier Government credit. (2) Campaign for less working hours per man; this will absorb the five million that are unemployed and also the farmers who will go into industrial work. (3) Start a training program for former farmers' rehabilitation and an intensive educational program elucidating the problems of abundance.

These measures will help the consumers, as they will now pay less taxes and less money for food. The Government will be relieved of supporting farmers. Industry will benefit as there will be less taxes and greater purchasing power of the consumer. The farmers will be acquiring more freedom by having less perplexing governmental restrictions. The marginal farmers will be absorbed in industry and the remaining farmers will find credit easier. There will be more leisure time for everyone, and our political institutions will be strengthened. PAUL D. LEE.

Pentagon Cafeterias

The Pentagon cafeterias have all the earmarks of a meagerly supported charity institution—they serve poorly prepared food, selected apparently only on a basis of its cheapness, and with very limited variety. Yet the prices are as high and sometimes higher than in those Government or commercial cafeterias where the food is well prepared, well selected, and has variety. This is not a careless generality. I have compared Pentagon food with that in other cafeterias on the same days.

Although the higher ranking officers and civilians have special dining rooms (they pay for it and no complaint is intended on this score), the average employe has no choice except the cafeterias and the snack bars. If the Pentagon post cafeterias had any competition they would most probably have to go out of business. IRRITATED.

Debased Memorial

The National Park Service should give serious and immediate consideration to the rerouting of the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in order that Alexandria may be by-passed.

Washington Street once had charm and dignity in keeping with the character of the pilgrimage route linking Washington's home with the Nation's Capital. Unfortunately, adverse interests, aided and abetted by politicians devoid of any concept of planning or esthetics, are rapidly converting this section of the road into a cheap and dismal counterpart of Highway No. 1.

Possibly a tunnel could be constructed similar to the one in Williamsburg, beginning near Slater's Lane and emerging at Hunting Greek.

"Straw Poll, Straw Men"

Your satirical effort of April 1, "Straw Poll, Straw Man" seemed to run counter to The Washington Post's usual inclination to boost democratic processes. The editorializing of your staff on radio station WTOP against standard time was equally unsavory.

Perhaps the "straw poll" is unscientific. But even Messrs. Gallup and Roper must retain a few misgivings as to whether "scientific sampling" is a foolproof reflection of public opinion.

As I recall, the local clamor for daylight time came on the heels of a congressional decision to impose standard time on a disfranchised city. True, it has "worked" here for three seasons. Equally true is the fact that some former "pro-daylighters" have had a belly full of it.

If sport-participants, gardenmakers and seaside-commuters, etc. outnumber those concerned with sleep in the cool morning hours, transportation schedules, etc., let there be daylight time! But let's vote on it occasionally. Or do you prefer to reserve for women the right to change one's mind?

JOSEPH T. REYNOLDS,

Washington.

You seem to assume that all of the more than 600,000 residents of the District of Columbia love and want daylight saving time because a lot of office workers and idlers with plenty of time on their hands have made themselves heard by visiting Capitol Hill and other places, telling all and sundry that they love and must have daylight saving time. Well 95 percent of the people within a radius of one-half mile of my home hate and abhor daylight saving time. So let those that want to go to work an hour earlier and quit work an hour earlier urge their office heads to put out a memorandum to that effect. JOSEPH HERMAN.

Washington.

The District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs at a regular meeting during the year 1947 passed a motion against the principle of daylight saving for the District of Columbia, unless daylight saving is established for the entire country. In our organization a motion stands until it is rescinded.

It seems to us that daylight saving for one isolated locality means great confusion and annoyance in traveling. At best daylight saving is an artificial expedient for young people who want more time for golf or for gardening or other outdoor exercise. The motive is commendable but it is hard on older people. It is not desirable for mothers with young children, or for housekeepers, who must serve the evening meal and put their children to bed in the heat of the afternoon. It is extremely hard on farming people.

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY,
Chairman, Department of Legislation,
D. C. Federation of Womens Clubs.

The summer evening used to be quite an institution, one that people welcomed after intense summer days. After 8:30 the temperature began to drop, houses (and people) began to cool and there were a few hours for relaxation before retiring. Not so with daylight saving time. The wilting sun keeps everything hot and humid, far into the evening. After an entire day of such heat it seems like extreme nonsense to have the time pushed forward so that we must endure an additional steamy hour of sun.

Communist Espionage

By Marquis Childs

How Not To Meet It

IN THIS phase of the cold war, the Soviet Union must have in the United States a very effective espionage network. Only the most innocent-minded or wilfully blind fellow traveler could doubt that.

The difference lies, in so far as the difference has a reasonable and more or less objective base, in what to do about it. We have in this country valid and tested means of countering an alien spy system.

That is one of the functions of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It seems to me significant that the FBI contributed largely to the exposure of the British atomic spy, Klaus Fuchs. The military establishment has a counter-intelligence system with somewhat the same function, and there is the highly secret work of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The McCarthy technique is aimed for the most part at traitorous thoughts. We have seen in recent weeks how indiscriminately it smears and besmirches, and we have seen, too, how it divides and distracts Americans at a critical moment in history.

A STRIKING study has just been published, called Treason, the Story of Disloyalty and Betrayal in American History. (Public Affairs Press, Washington.) The author, Nathaniel Weyl, has done a service in putting this business of treason in the long historical perspective.

It is not exactly new in our national history. There were traitors during the Revolutionary War, some of them, like Aaron Burr, getting into the history books. The Civil War saw the Copperheads and the riots against the war incited in several large eastern cities. During the Spanish-American War, a commanding general of the United States Army was an agent of the Spanish secret service.

But Weyl makes it clear that no foreign power has ever had an instrument of infiltration and intelligence such as the Soviet Union has in the Communist parties of the world. He suggests that in the early 1930s there were probably four functioning Soviet underground rings in this country, three of them political in nature and centered in Washington. Weyl writes:

"The Comintern apparatus was instructed to recruit influential Government men—either in key jobs or destined for them later. The central objective was to push these agents forward into strategic positions of Government power. In a future period of crisis between the Soviet Union and the United States, it was thought that their services would be invaluable."

IN THE conclusion of his book, Weyl makes what seems to me to be an important point about the concept of treason under the American system with its freedoms. The American guilty of treason has betrayed not merely a ruler, a government. He has betrayed freedom itself. It is this that compounds the crime of those intellectuals who have surrendered mind and conscience to totalitarian communism.

"There is also," Weyl writes, "a more personal and immediate failure of democracy: the truancy of the intellectuals from the philosophy of individual freedom. The totalitarian movements—particularly communism—were and are led by intellectuals. These men want an absolute faith and an absolute truth; they want to be absolved from the painful function of moral choice, not realizing that without such choice creativity is impossible. In short, theirs are minds too tender and too immature for the hard philosophy of freedom."

It may be much later by the clock of history than most of us realize. The atmosphere created by the McCarthy charges in the Senate is strongly reminiscent of the months that preceded Pearl Harbor. Some of the same people who resisted Roosevelt's every effort to help Britain and France stand up against the Nazis are now behind the "get Acheson" movement.

Their motives may be somewhat different this time. They are, or some of them are, the spearhead of a kind of war party. There are even some who seem to belong to a Civil War party.

Surely those responsible for the feuding must see that it is doing more harm than good. For one Hiss case ending in conviction in the courts, it has produced several hundred misfires, sowing doubt and division and misery.

Many, both in and out of Government, were slow to understand the threat of communism at home and abroad. Surely no one can have any illusions. To pursue the method of public feud is to further the kind of division in this country that is both tragic and dangerous.

6B at Flower Show

The whole Barnard School group enjoyed going to the Flower Show at the National Guard Armory.

I liked the rose bed best. The red roses were the first I have seen all winter. The flowers were arranged very nicely. I saw many new ones that are not in my neighborhood.

If I had some medals to give out I would give them to Dr. H. M. Corning and to the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists for arranging for school children to go free. BOBBY NUSSEY.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Total Diplomacy In Southeast Asia

THE DEFENSE of Southeast Asia, which turns in the first instance on Indo-China, will soon provide a critical test of whether Secretary Acheson is able to develop a policy, and of whether the Republicans will permit him to do it. As yet the basic problems which must be solved have not yet been described and defined, at least publicly by Mr. Acheson and Mr. Jessup.

Lippmann

THE BASIC fact in the situation is that the only military forces in this region are the French army, and behind them the British colonial forces in Malaya. The French army in Indo-China consists of about 140,000 French regular troops. Of these some 110,000 to 120,000 are French regular troops from metropolitan France, the rest coming from North Africa and the Foreign Legion. There are besides some 25,000 native troops fighting with the French forces. The hard core of all these forces are these French regular officers and regular troops.

It is a measure of the gravity of this situation that while the Atlantic powers have been making military plans at The Hague, the substance of French military power is in Indo-China. In the planning for the defense of western Europe, the British and we are looking to France to raise the bulk of the ground forces. Both in Europe and in Asia, therefore, the Western alliance, which is long on air and sea power but very short indeed on infantry, is counting principally on the French infantry to hold the front line.

THE FRENCH army in Indo-China holds a part of the country precariously. It is suffering serious losses and, as respects French financial resources, it is maintained at great cost. Yet this army does not have the support of the bulk of the population and the Emperor Bao Dai has not done much to rally even the anti-Communist elements among the people.

"Everyone knows that the great majority of the people of Indo-China are bitterly opposed to the continuation of French rule, and that they could be united behind a government only if that government were clearly and certainly destined to make Indo-China as independent as Indonesia, the Philippines, India, Pakistan, and Ceylon.

But if Bao Dai or anyone else were promised independence, it is equally certain that the French army could not be induced to continue the war. The French officers and troops and the French Assembly may be willing to fight for the preservation of French interests in this rich colony. They cannot be counted upon to fight a dangerous, dirty, inconclusive war which is to end in the abandonment of the French interests in Asia.

A CRISIS is developing, therefore, like that which caused the British to induce us to take over their responsibilities in Greece, or even more like that which caused the British to give up their mandate in Palestine and to lay the burden upon the United Nations. We must expect the French government to do something very similar unless we can meet two conditions which are for us exceedingly difficult if not impossible to meet. One condition is that we abandon the idea of genuine independence for Indo-China and subscribe to the continuation indefinitely of the essentials of French imperial authority. The second condition is that we should provide enough arms and money and on a large enough scale and for a long enough time to keep that army going and to support the economy of the region.

Put bluntly but truthfully, the French army can be counted on to go on defending Southeast Asia only if the Congress of the United States will pledge itself to subsidize heavily—in terms of several hundred million dollars a year and for many years to come—a French colonial war to subdue not only the Communists but the nationalists as well.

FAILING that, short of that, what else can be done? Only one thing, it seems to me, and that is to turn now to the United Nations, to take the problem there deliberately rather than to let it be dumped into the United Nations later on.

For it will be dumped if it is not taken there. We shall not be able to reverse our whole position in Asia and to support a colonial war against national independence. That would shatter our prestige in the rest of Asia. And even if we were willing to do that, there is no way that this Congress would or could promise enough money and enough military aid to enable the French army to plan a campaign of pacification which would last for many years.

IT IS NOT EASY, however, for us to take the problem to the United Nations until the question of Chinese representation has been resolved and the Security Council is once again able to operate. But if that thorny, at the moment well-nigh insoluble, question could be resolved, then the foundation of a policy in Southeast Asia would exist.

The protection of the borders of Indo-China and of Burma could then be developed around a United Nations commission, akin to that which was established for the borders of Greece. Behind that barrier which, whatever its weakness, would be at least as strong as any that can be erected by the French army, it would be possible, at least conceivable, that the leading Asiatic powers—India and Pakistan—could be brought in to mediate. There is little chance that the French, the British or we can, in the light of the bitter history of the region, assist and guide the people of Indo-China and Burma to work out the problem of their national independence. It is conceivable that Nehru and the Prime Minister of Pakistan, Liaquat Ali Khan, could do in that part of the world what no Western statesmen can hope to do.

WE HAVE as yet no adequate policy in Southeast Asia because we are trying to solve the problem with altogether inadequate diplomatic means. We are like a chess player who, failing to develop all of his pieces, advances two or three pawns and one knight, hoping to capture the king.

The French colonial army, Bao Dai, a little American money and some arms, a little bit of Point Four, a few visiting warships, and a lot of ringing declarations are not enough to make a policy that has any prospect of success. The problem is too big for measures of that kind. We shall have to rise above the notion that it can be dealt with by giving some help to the French, and we shall have to put the problem in a different and larger frame of negotiation where, through the medium of the United Nations, the leading powers of Asia and the influence of the whole world can be brought to bear upon it.

Cooper Takes Oath as Envoy, Pledges 2-Party Policy Help

By the United Press

John Sherman Cooper, former Republican Senator from Kentucky, took the oath of office as an ambassador-at-large yesterday with a pledge to help carry out a bipartisan foreign policy.

Cooper will accompany Secretary of State Dean Acheson to London next month for meetings of the western Big Three foreign ministers and the North Atlantic Council. He was chosen by Acheson in a move to improve the Administration's relations with congressional Republicans.

The swearing-in ceremonies in Acheson's office were attended by Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Senators Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) and H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) and several members of the Kentucky congressional delegation.

Acheson said there was no one "upon whose loyalty and wisdom I would prefer to lean."

Cooper said the present debate over foreign policy should not be allowed to "obscure the primary interests of the American pepole."

"They want the assurance that the policy of the United States is the best possible course for national security and toward a true peace," he said. "It is in this sense that a true bipartisan policy is indispensable.

"I shall present my views to the Administration as objectively and independently as I can, and in the spirit of what I shall conceive to be the sole interest of this country."

The light which lighteth every man

There is within us all a certain intuition — a calm and quenchless light, ever ready to kindle into spiritual understanding.

The mission of this precious light, and right, this capacity to know the truth, is to "make us free" — free, as Jesus promised, from whatever is untrue or unlike God.

Today this kindling light has come. Thoughtful, honest study of the Christian Science textbook is mercifully releasing men from all manner of human want and woe.

A devoted study of this great book shows clearly, in a plain and practical way, how to avail oneself of this spiritual understanding of God.

'Separate but Equal' Ruling Hit Before Supreme Court

only vacant seat while the Henderson argument was going on was that of Justice Clarke, who, as Attorney General, had approved the Government's intervention. He returned for the Oklahoma case.

On hand, along with scores of Negro and white lawyers, were such spectators as Mrs. Alben Barkley, wife of the Vice President, and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Washington society figure. There was attention to lawyers' arguments such as is seldom paid by the casual tourists who drop in for a few minutes to see the court in action.

It appeared the audience sensed it was sitting in on a case the like of which the court had not seen since the days of Dred Scott some 93 years ago.

Much of the argument by attorneys for both sides added to a feeling that the issue was more political than legal.

Henderson's Lawyer Speaks

McGrath declared that if the lower court's position is sustained and dining car segregation rules upheld, "then I believe that a serious blow will have been struck at the free institutions which our democracy so proudly proclaims before the world and the last hope will have vanished that under our constitutional system all men can expect to be treated with equality based upon their human dignity and personality."

Henderson's lawyer, Belford V. Lawson, jr., declared McGrath's position was "encouraging to us who have lived and suffered so long under the iron heel of the proconsul Jim Crow."

He asked the court to strike down the ruling in the Plessy case of 1896, the basis of the "separate but equal" practices, "so that the words written on the facade of this temple (the Supreme Court Building)—'Equal Justice Under Law'—will be a reality."

On the other side, Allen Cranshaw, attorney for the railroad, declared Henderson was not kept from sitting at a table reserved for whites when all seats reserved for Negroes were filled because of his race.

He said the dining car segregation was "to keep peace and order." His statement brought a round of laughter from the audience and Justice Frankfurter observed:

"Then the way to keep peace and order is to keep empty seats at tables?"

Finally, Representative Sam Hobbs (D., Ala.), told the Court that God was the "first author of segregation" because "he made mankind to be different in color and facial characteristics." He said the two late Negro leaders, Booker T. Washington and George Washington Carver, had been his friends "and if they were living today they would echo my sentiments."

ICC on Railroad's Side

Hobbs was asked to appear by some of his colleagues on the House Judiciary Committee but the Congressman ended his appearance by thanking the Court for listening to "the case which I have presented for the Congress."

Cranshaw, Hobbs and Charles Clark, attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission, all argued that Congress has been "silent" on segregation and that any action to strike it down is up to the legislative, not the judicial, branch of the Government. The ICC is on the railway's side of the case. The Justice Department entered the case to take the opposite position. The department also is on the side of the two Negroes in the Oklahoma and Texas university cases.

It was far from clear, yesterday, however, that the court would accept what Lawson called "an historic obligation" to decide the issue of segregation and whether it is forbidden by the Fourteenth Amendment, which calls for equality for all.

Justice Frankfurter several times stated that it would not be necessary to decide such a constitutional issue if the railway segregation is illegal under the ICC law. Justice Burton indicated agreement at one point.

Perlman Follows McGrath

Solicitor General Philip B. Pearlman reinforced McGrath's contention that the act of segregation itself is unequal. He contended that there can be no such thing as "equal" facilities even though physical facilities are equal.

McGrath put it this way:

"Unless the law deals only with the trappings of equality and not with its substance, unless we are prepared to say that the requirements of equality are to be measured solely in terms of knives, forks, food and table linen, then this court should strike down the provisions of the ICC holding" dismissing Henderson's complaint against the railroad.

Before hearing the arguments, the Court handed down one decision. In it Justice Reed, for the majority of five, outlined a new procedure under which a person convicted in a State court could appeal direct to the Supreme Court. If the high court refused his plea, Reed said, then he may take his case to the Federal district court.

Justice Frankfurter wrote a caustic dissent in which Justices Black and Jackson concurred.

The court was asked to outlaw the Georgia county unit system of voting with a request for a ruling before the Democratic primary in that state on June 28. The ancient system is backed by the forces of Gov. Eugene Talmadge who have advanced the primary three months this year. A special three-judge Federal court has upheld the system, 2-to-1.

The high court agreed to hear the case of a Quaker teacher sentenced to prison for telling one of his students to stand his ground in refusing to sign a draft card. The teacher is Larry Gara, dean of men at Bluffton College, O.

New Farm Program Is Asked

Mr. Truman declared, "which is urgently needed, will require additionl expenditures of public funds, and increase the likelihood of future difficulties for the farm program."

Throughout Mr. Truman's message he indicated concern over criticism of present farm price support operations, particularly their cost. He told Congress that it should correct "the fundamental shortcomings in the present farm program rather than patching it up with makeshift legislation."

"This joint resolution," he emphasized at one point, "furnishes additional grounds for the charges that the present farm program is costly and piles up unmanageable surpluses at the same time that it maintains artificially high prices for agricultural commodities."

The part of the measure that drew most presidential approval, was that removing price supports from potatoes in 1951, unless Congress in the meantime provides for strict marketing rules, and potato growers vote to accept such regulations.

The relief that the bill gives to some cotton producers, who suffered unusually high acreage cuts under the original bill, also got Mr. Truman's approval. He pointed out however, that the original cotton acreage allotment system was adopted by Congress last year "against the advice of the Secretary of Agriculture."

"Just as the Secretary has warned," he said, "this legislation has had grossly inequitable results. Some cotton farmers were required to make little or no reduction in cotton acreage to comply with their allotments. Other cotton farmers were required to reduce their acreage as much as 80 percent."

Mr. Truman's appeal for the Brannan Plan was part of his criticism of Congress' delay in enacting controls over potato production. "To amend present law to provide for effective marketing quotas would be a substantial improvement over the present situation. It would not, however, in my judgment, be all that is necessary. I again urge the Congress to authorize a system of production payments . . ."

The amendment by Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) providing a "two-price" system for peanuts—one price for edible nuts and another for peanuts to oil—drew particular criticism.

The George provision, he said, "represents a breach in the integrity of the quota system upon which the support price program depends. If it should be taken as a precedent for other crops, the whole support price program might be endangered."

The peanut section, he said, carried "very unfortunate implications for future years and other crops.

"If farmers produce large quantities of peanuts for oil at no profit," he said, "there will inevitably be pressures for supporting the price of peanut oil in the future . . ."

"Even more serious," he later commented, "if these special provisions for peanuts were to be regarded as a precedent, it may be urged that similar provisions should be enacted for other crops, regardless of the disruption that could result to domestic and world markets."

Winkie's Heart Knew When He Was Fed Up

Coral Gables, Fla., April 3 (U.P.)—Police today sought Winkie Wildgoose, 32, for kicking in the glass panel of a juke box which was playing a popular song containing the lines, "My heart knows what the wild goose knows, so I must go where the wild goose goes."

Officers said they believed Wildgoose was headed north.

House Talks Start On Airport Aid To Nearby States

Debate began in the House yesterday on a Federal aid bill to airports that would include $515,000 for fields in Virginia and $280,000 for those in Maryland.

The District is not in line for any Federal funds because it has no airport improvement program for 1951 at this time.

These are the Virginia airports proposed for Federal funds, with the Government's contribution listed first and the local sponsor's share in brackets:

Roanoke Field, $150,000 ($200,000); Norfolk Municipal, $100,000 ($10,000); Newport News, Patrick Henry Airport, $75,000 ($75,000); Richmond, Richard E. Byrd Airport, $100,000 ($100,000); Martinsville Municipal, $52,000 ($57,500), and Orange County, $37,500 (37,500).

The Maryland airports are:

Baltimore, Friendship Church, $225,000 ($675,000); Frederick Municipal, $50,000 ($50,000), and Cumberland Municipal, $5000 ($5000).

BENEFITS FROM WATERWAYS

The Great Lakes System

One of the marvels of America is its amazing rate of growth. What are the greatest contributions to this growth? One of them is the unparalleled Great Lakes transportation system, making for the economical movement of iron ore, grain, coal and lumber. Eighty-five percent of all steel made in America is from ore transported down the Lakes and through connecting channels made navigable by the Federal Government. Since 1855, approximately 2,100,000,000 tons have been delivered from Upper Lake Superior points to steel mills along Lake Michigan and Lake Erie or to ports there for short transshipment by rail to inland mills. The average 1000 mile haul costs about one mill per ton mile—lowest cost transportation in all the world. It saves money for every taxpayer in America, and more than pays for the entire Great Lakes waterway system during every single year of normal operation. The improved St. Clair and Detroit Rivers carry more tonnage than any other channels on earth. Deeper channels for deeper draft vessels for still more economical operation will add to the already incalculable value of the Great Lakes system.

Retailers Told How to Avoid Major Setback

By S. Oliver Goodman

Expansion of the economy through full employment will make a major economic setback impossible, leading retailers were told here yesterday.

Stanley Marcus, chairman of the American Retail Federation, which opened its annual meeting yesterday in the Shoreham Hotel, urged retailers to do their share in providing more jobs.

He also counseled the merchants to "assist our country in its preparation for war—if war it must be"—and to "help prepare our country for peace, as we hope will be the case."

The federation, representing 20 national and 35 State member retail associations, devoted yesterday's session to discussions of problems affecting the retail industry and to the development of a program for the coming year.

Director of the Budget Frank C. Pace, jr., whose appointment as Secretary of the Army went yesterday to the Senate, told the retailers that Americans can be classified as either bad, second class or first class citizens. The "bad" ones take no interest or responsibility in governmental activities, the second class ones take an interest but don't do anything about it, and the first class citizens try to do something constructive, Pace said.

Concluding sessions today will feature the theme "What Price an Expanding Economy?" with addresses by Senators Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, and Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota. At the banquet tonight, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio will speak on the subject "Are We Heading for Financial Disaster?"

Marcus was reelected federation chairman and Rowlapd Jones, jr., was renamed president. Charles B. Dulean, sr., of Washington was elected a member of the executive committee.

EAL NET DIPS: Eastern Air Lines, Inc., reported profitable operations in 1949 for the fifteenth consecutive year. Eastern's net income of $1,967,905 or 82 cents a share, however, was under the $2,346,871 or 98 cents a share for 1948. Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president and general manager, said revenues of $70,318,269 were the highest in the company's history, but rising costs and effects of accidents on traffic volume were responsible for earnings declining somewhat during the last half of 1949.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Paul Roberts, former chief of personnel procurement for the Office of Strategic Services, has joined McKinsey & Co. to direct its sales and supervisory training. . . . Don Underwood, Washington manager for advertising firm of Bozell & Jacobs, Inc., of New York, has been elected a vice president . . . John D. Camps has been named general sales manager of overseas division of Sun Chemical Corp. . . . Robert C. Hendon, former administrative assistant to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover in Washington, has been appointed general manager of the Allegheny Department of Railway Express Agency.

RECORD GROSS: The Knott Hotels Corp., which operates the Houston here, reported record gross of $20,482,822 for 1949, compared with $16,237,701 in 1948. Net income, however, slipped to $777,669 or $4.53 a share, against $877,920 or $5.09 a share in previous year.

ODD LOTS: The Standard of Detroit group of insurance companies has relocated and enlarged its Washington office, added personnel and expanded its services in this area . . . Price of zinc has risen a quarter of a cent to 10½ cents a pound . . . Steel output rate this week has risen to 96.8 percent of capacity . . . Cadillac set a new output record in March with production of 9125 cars . . . General Tire & Rubber Co. has sold controlling stock interest in Marquardt Aircraft Co. of Los Angeles to Laurence S. Rockefeller and a group of investors.

PROMOTIONS: Election of Russell Hatch Tucker as executive vice president of A. DePinna Co. and Ashbel T. Wall as a vice president of Brooks Brothers was announced yesterday. Both New York stores are subsidiaries of Julius Garfinckel & Co. Inc., of Washington. Tucker, before joining the DePinna Co., was a Garfinckel divisional merchandise manager. Wall is the fifth straight descendant of the Brooks family to be in the management.

EARNINGS' Stone & Webster, Inc., reported net income of $6,583,086 or $3.03 a share for 1949, compared with $6,494,598 or $3.09 a share in 1948. Other earnings statements:

Court Upholds Conviction Against Byas

Judges need not explain what simple word like "arrange" mean to jurors in all criminal cases, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

With this observation, among others, the Appeals Court affirmed the conviction of Lawrence Byas, 45, who was sentenced to serve 15 to 45 months in prison for receiving money in "arranging" for a woman to engage in prostitution.

The trial judge told the jurors the elements of the offense, but did not tell them what "arrange" meant.

"'Arrange' is a common word in the lay vocabulary. It is a word of universal usage among the English-speaking peoples. It admits of no double entendre which casts an umbrage of legal nicety, beyond its ordinary meanings, and under the wording of this statute there is little basis for construction," Judge Clark writes.

Byas' lawyers also complained that some Government workers on the convicting jury were prejudiced against their client.

Commented Judge Clark on this point:

"Though a party may so exercise his peremptory challenges as to antagonize a juror or group of jurors, it is a matter with which this court has no concern.

D. C. Attorney Indicted for Grand Larceny

Albert F. Graham, 43, a Washington lawyer, yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury on a grand larceny charge involving the theft of $2000 from a client.

The client is Francisco Gal, 47, of 2242 Cathedral ave. nw. He told police he had retained Graham to represent him in two disorderly conduct cases and also to help him get citizenship papers.

It was after his arrest the second time that he turned over the money to Graham, who had told him he needed money to take care of the arresting police officer, Gal told police. He said he gave Graham $100 on February 2 this year and $1900 the next day.

Graham has denied that he said anything to Gal about taking care of the arresting police officer, a spokesman in the United States Attorney's office said yesterday.

Police first started to investigate the case February 26, when homicide detectives were called to Gallinger Hospital to talk to Gal, who had been admitted there with his wrists cut.

Woman Found Dead in Fire In Apartment

Mrs. Lillie Wolfe, 58, died in a fire shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday in her basement apartment at 4211 2d st. nw.

She was the wife of William Wolfe and sister-in-law of Detective Lieut. Jacob Wolfe, head of the automobile squad.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he believes Mrs. Wolfe died of asphyxia, but will perform an autopsy today to make certain. There were slight burns about the face and hands, Dr. MacDonald said.

Mrs. Nancy Wenzler, who occupied the apartment above the Wolfe apartment, smelled smoke. She got the janitor and together they went to the Wolfe apartment to investigate.

The door was unlocked but they could not enter because of the smoke. When firemen arrived they found Mrs. Wolfe, clad in a nightgown, lying in a linen closet on smouldering bedding. She was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. J. M. Rogers of Casualty Hospital.

Fire Marshal Ray Roberts said it has not been determined how the fire started. Homicide squad detectives also went to the scene to investigate.

Dr. MacDonald, who withheld a death certificate pending completion of his investigation, said he was informed Mrs. Wolfe had been in ill health.

Senate Group Opposes Shift Of Comptroller

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday decided to oppose President Truman's proposal to shift the Comptroller's Office to the Treasury Department.

The action was taken at a closed session.

A hearing will be held April 11 on a resolution to block the plan, part of the President's recommendations for reorganizing the Government. The resolution, offered by Senator Robertson (D., Va.) was referred to the Senate Expenditures Committee.

Robertson contends the Comptroller's Office—watchdog of Government spending—should continue as a semi-independent agency. Under the reorganization plan, the functions of the office would be absorbed by the Treasury Department.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Court Orders Retrial of $50,000 Suit

The United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that District Court made a technical error in dismissing a $50,000 damage suit brought by a woman claiming her physician negligently failed to determine whether she needed a Caesarian section. A new trial was ordered.

Bringing the suit were Mrs. Alice Ann Robbins and her husband, Russell Orin Robbins, now of Kansas City. The defendant was Dr. Joseph R. Jordan of 5412 Colorado ave. nw.

It was claimed that after the alleged negligence, the child died and Mrs. Robbins was subjected "o pain and suffering.

At the beginning of the trial, through their lawyers, Douglas A. Clark and Charles H. Quimby, the Robbinses asked to be allowed to amend their pleading to introduce evidence that the defendant held himself out as a specialist in obstetrics.

The trial judge refused the request, holding that it would prejudice the defense lawyers who had already prepared their case.

The Appeals Court in sending the case back for retrial ruled that the amendment was proper, the trial having not yet begun. Such amendments should be allowed liberally, the higher court said.

Court Denies Review of Condemnation

The Supreme Court yesterday refused to consider an attack on the District's right to condemn dwellings endangering the health of occupants.

Thus a United States Court of Appeals ruling of last December will stand. The ruling sustained the constitutionality of the city's 44-year-old condemnation law, designed to attack the slum problem here.

The case grew out of a suit filed by Miss Minnie Keyes, owner of 11 detached houses in the 100 block of P st. sw., against the District Board of Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings. The dwellings were vacated after the board had urged the owner to make repairs to the property and, in 1944, had brought a condemnation suit.

Dr. Lang to Lecture Here on Passion Play

Dr. Anton Lang, jr., son of the man who formerly played the part of Christ in the Passion Play at Oberammergau, Bavaria, will speak on the play at 8:15 p. m. today. The talk will be at the Study Guild Catholic Library, 1725 Rhode Island ave. nw. Dr. Lang is a teacher of German at Georgetown University.

Amphitheater Building Pact Due This Week

A contract for construction of the main portion of the Sesquicentennial amphitheater in Rock Creek Park probably will be signed this week, it was disclosed yesterday by Frank T. Gartside, assistant superintendent of National Capital Parks.

It will go to the Jay Cee Construction Co., for $290,017, if signed. That company became low bidder when the previous low bidder, E. L. Daniels, was allowed to withdraw his $260,466 estimate. He claimed errors were made in his bid. Comptroller General Lindsay Warren allowed the withdrawal because no contract had been signed.

Even if work begins this week, Gartside said, the structure will not be completed before July 1, instead of June 15, as originally planned. The amphitheater will be the scene of the symphonic drama, built around the life of George Washington, a major event of the Sesqui.

Gartside said National Capital Parks officials will seek approval of the Sesquicentennial Commission today on the main construction contract. Under the law creating the commission, it was empowered to call on Government departments to serve it in certain cases, and it asked National Capital Parks to handle the amphitheater construction.

Greenbelt Signs Pact With PHA

Mayor Elizabeth Harrington signed a new contract with the Public Housing Administration last night after the Greenbelt city council met and authorized her to do so.

The contract provides for a PHA payment of $177,015 for municipal expenses during the calendar year of 1950, only $4617 less than the city government originally asked.

Greenbelt and PHA officials originally had been unable to agree on terms of the new contract.

From the $177,015, PHA will deduct $11,377 for money it claims was paid over the past 10 or 11 years to Greenbelt for upkeep and replacement of equipment owned by the Federal Government.

The council also discussed the possibility of raising the fee at the Greenbelt swimming pool to nonresidents.

It approved the proposed survey of Greenbelt by the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Maryland but with the proviso that information gathered in the survey can only be made public by the council.

The council also passed an ordinance requiring the registration and inspection of all bicycles in August at a fee of 25 cents. Thereafter, bicycles will be reexamined annually at no charge.

Dies Ex-Aide Says He Listed Reds In 1941

Dr. J. B. Matthews, former director of research for the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities, said last night that he included Alger Hiss, Nathan Witt and the late Harry Dexter White in a list of "Communist suspects" in Government in 1941.

Matthews, addressing a town hall forum at Gonzaga auditorium, said the list was sent to the Attorney General at that time, Francis Biddle, "who could find nothing wrong."

On the staff of the Dies Committee from 1939 to 1945, Matthews debated with Dr. George Brown, economist for the AFL, on the dangers of socialism. The forum was sponsored by the Washington General Assembly of Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

Matthews lashed out at Americans for Democratic Action, and said it differed from "the old Socialist Party of Eugene Debbs" inasmuch as the ADA is "a master of double-talk."

"ADA carries on the fantastic pretext that it is the only bulwark against communism," he said.

He also attacked John Foster Dulles, former Republican Senator from New York, for criticizing Senator McCarthy's probe of alleged Communists in Government.

HAINES CITY, FLA., APRIL 2.—Clyde Milan, the noted thief who used to steal most of the American League's bases—he says he's now coaching the Nats in the art of stealing first—may or may not tell the truth, as the mood seizes him.

He once won a liar's contest on two counts as the biggest liar, and as the straightest-faced liar. And when it is considered that the competition was limited to native Texans, the prodigiousness of Milan's victory brooks no dispute.

POVICH

Among liars, Milan is held in a special sort of respect. "He's a dreamy liar," observed one of the contest judges.

"He just rambles and sort of reaches out for his lies as he goes along in a slow, foggy way, and that's the best test—what we call an ad libbing liar. No script."

Clark Griffith, who can appreciate a good lie under the proper circumstances is somewhat proud of Milan's feats, and had deduced the key to Milan's success. "He lies when there is no need for it, just to keep in practice," points out Griffith. "He always keeps himself in shape."

WELL, SIR, now that Milan has been properly introduced, it must also be told that he is highly respected, too, as a talent-scout by Griffith, who dispatches him hither and yon to tab young players for future reference. Right now, he has Griffith in a tizzy about a lad he came upon in Texas.

The trouble is, Griffith has not yet determined whether Milan is telling the truth or merely drawing the long bow again. "I can never tell whether he is giving me a scouting report or telling me a story," Griffith complains. "He lies and tells the truth with the same expression. You could call him a one-faced liar."

Milan's latest story concerns a pitching prospect he encountered in Texas under story-book conditions one day last fall after he packed his hunting gear and started for the Texas deer country in his high-wheel Model T. "Baseball isn't on my mind while I'm wheeling along those gutted roads when all of a sudden I see a boy I judge to be about 13, and he's knocking squirrels out of a tree with rocks.

"NATURALLY, I gotta stop and watch this, because our Texas squirrels are little pigmy squirrels tough enough to knock over with birdshot, and anybody who can take dead aim with a rock and knock one down I'm interested in. I got out of my car and asked him, 'Sonny, do you do this all the time, or are you just having a good day?'"

"He said 'No, suh, I do this all the time,' and he picked up another rock and without winding up, he's got beautiful rhythm and everything, and another squirrel drops right at our feet.

"Now I'm real interested in anybody who can throw like that so I ask him to try it one more time, and it ain't no trouble at all for that lad. He spots a squirrel on the top limb and actually cuts loose with a hook, honest. That squirrel comes tumbling down beautifully stunned, and not a mark on him.

"I'm telling him he's got a future in the game, and that lots of our great pitchers like Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove came right off the farms and made a lot of money pitching baseball, and we could do a lot for him.

"HE WAS a big boy for his age, too, and I said that would be in his favor, and the Washington club would give his parents a nice bonus for letting him sign one of our contracts, and we'd arrange to send him to school and everything.

"He said he reckoned they would like that, although he never was one who figgered to need much schooling. He said his paw and maw mentioned it sometimes, though.

"I told him that what I 'specially liked about his throwing was his control—that usually kid lefthanders were wild, but he was an exception. That's when he set me back a little bit by saying, 'Mister I ain't lefthanded. I'm really a righthander.'

"Now he's got me real curious and I say, 'You mean you ain't a natural lefthander?'

"And he says, 'No, suh, I like to knock those squirrels down righthanded but paw says no, cause that way he says I tear 'em up too much'."

Magnet Runs Fastest 6 Furlongs in Md. History

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., April 3.—Registering the fastest 6 furlongs in Maryland racing history, W. P. Taylor's Magnet was an easy winner of the Silver Spring Purse, featuring the Monday program.

The 4-year-old son of Fenelon got home 3½ lengths in front of the closest opposition and hung up 1.09 2/5 for the three quarters, knocking four fifths of a second off the track mark set here last Saturday by D. K. Kerr, jr.'s, Fleet Argo.

Magnet's time was only a second off the world record for 6 furlongs, the property of Fair Truckle and made at Golden Gate Fields in California October 4, 1947.

Not only was Magnet's time close to the world record on a course with turn, but it was within a second and two fifths of the record for a straightaway of three quarters of a mile set by Artful, who ran 6 furlongs in 1:08 on October 15, 1904 at Morris Park, N. Y.

The Monday crowd of 10,278 failed to install Magnet as the favorite despite the gelding's victory here in the Capitol Handicap opening day. With a treacherous track under him, he had been clocked in a buggy-horse 1.16. Magnet returned $10.80 for the usual deuce investment.

Jockey Raymond Shufelt again was in the saddle and despite the sensational time, fairly coasted Magnet into the wire. R. E. Carter's Oriole, the favorite, was second and probably broke the track mark himself. The close-up third in the field of eight was Samuel Adelson's Manchac.

Shufelt rode confidently. He swung Magnet wide into the stretch, straightened him neatly and then went into a handride. The son of Fenelon responded as if he were shot out of a cannon, zoomed into the lead and was opening more and more daylight approaching the wire despite Shufelt's efforts to make the finish look close.

IT WENT THAT WAY—Don Hebsch, catcher for Vermont University, looks one way as George Washington University's First Baseman Lou Ciarrocca runs the other way in yesterday's game on the Ellipse. Ciarrocca lines out with two men on in the seventh inning. Vermont came from behind to win, 11-10. George Washington has now won one and lost two

He Failed To Act for Best Interest Of Members

Chicago, April 3 (AP).—The Professional Golfers Association of America tonight announced that George Schneiter had been fired as PGA tournament bureau manager.

Joe Novak, PGA president, said that Schneiter's "immediate" dismissal has no connection with a reported revolt of star players against tournament practices.

It was reported that Schneiter personally negotiated and contracted for the summer tournament tour of top-flight golfers as a representative of the players, and that this was probably one reason for his dismissal.

The announcement of Schneiter's dismissal followed a nine-hour conference by PGA officials at which Schneiter had appeared by a summons sent last Wednesday.

Schneiter had met with the top-ranked professional players in a meeting at Wilmington, N. C., last Thursday night at which it was reported the players threatened to withdraw from the PGA unless they were given control of tournament policy.

Executive Group's Okay

Novak said that Schneiter's dismissal was done with the authority of the PGA's executive committee.

Novak's statement to the press said, "in taking this action, the association's tournament committee took the position that Schneiter had failed to carry out his duties in a manner consistent with the rules and policies of the PGA or with the interests of its membership."

Schneiter had become the tournament bureau manager in 1946, succeeding Freddie Corcoran.

Schneiter said that he felt he had appeared at the meeting simply in the capacity of "carrying out my duties in the best way possible." He had no other immediate comment, except to say that in order to achieve the program sought by the players there should be a meeting of the PGA officials and the players.

Schneiter said his dismissal was "not a satisfactory answer to the problems of the players."

He declared the matter could not be solved in correspondence and it was necessary to have a meeting between the two groups—the PGA officials and the players.

Schneiter was referring to a March 7 letter sent by Novak to the players, proposing a revision of the tournament program.

Novak said tonight that the search for a successor to Schneiter as tournament bureau manager was being conducted on an immediate basis, but he did not mention any prospective condidates.

The PGA president said an attempt would be made to continue discussions with the players on their demand for stronger tournament control at the Masters' tournament. The Masters' meet starts at Augusta, Ga., Thursday and runs through Sunday.

Schneiter said he probably would continue as a tournament player despite his discharge as tournament bureau manager.

Tivnan Stars But Vermont Outslugs GW

Vermont University got its baseball season off to a winning start yesterday by downing George Washington University, 11-10, on the Ellipse.

John Goulet singled to left field to drive in two runs to climax a four-run eighth inning that won the game for Vermont. The batting star of the game, however, was Jack Tivnan of G.W. with a homer, double and single in four times at bat.

Williams Tko's Elkins Brothers

Vern Williams was awarded a seventh round TKO decision over Elkins Brothers in the feature bout at Turner's Arena last night when Dr. Clark Halstead stopped the bout after six rounds because of severe cuts above and below Brothers' right eye.

The fight started slowly with Williams boxing cautiously and Brothers scoring mainly on body punches. Brothers' eye was opened in the first round and Williams concentrated his attack on that eye until Referee Eddie LaFond was forced to call in the doctor at the end of the sixth round. Six stitches had to be taken to close the cuts.

Three of the five preliminary bouts ended all even. Ralph Brown, 148, Washington and Jimmy O'Brien, 151, Baltimore drew in a four-rounder. Scott Richardson, 161, Washington and Tex Newby, 163, Washington finished even in a five and Red Gaddis, 127, Washington and Joe Wilkinson, 121, Washington, provided another five-round draw.

The opening four-rounder saw Frank Ball, 137½, Washington, score an easy decision over Bobby Busick, 139, Baltimore. The last preliminary, a five, had Harvey Jones, 171, Baltimore, taking a unanimous decision from Johnny Holt, 165, Washington.

Baseball Shorts Here to Stay . . . Hollywood Plays, Draws Better

Hollywood, April 3 (AP).—It looks like shorts are in baseball to stay.

After two games the Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League are ready to claim they play better in their short pants and skivvy shirts. And attendance figures are soaring.

Hollywood, for instance, played to only 3000 customers on opening night last Tuesday. Sunday, in short pants, the Stars lured 9269 to a doubleheader with Portland, the cellar team.

The Twinks wore their scanties in the first game and won, 8 to 7. In the seven-inning nightcap they donned regulation longies and lost, 4 to 3. The players say the briefs give them freer movement, more speed, less fatigue.

Mount Vernon Frolics, 17-7

Mount Vernon High, which defeated Chamberlain, 9-8, Friday, upped their margin of victory to 17-7 yesterday on the Mount Vernon field.

Four homers marked the game. Ed Bowman got one for Chamberlain with the bases loaded in the second. Bob Harding hit one with two on in the fourth for Mount Vernon and Eddie West and Ralph Brown hit successive round-trippers in the seventh. West's came with two on.

Villemain Wins Over Graham

Philadelphia, April 3 (AP).—Robert Villemain, the fast punching French middleweight from Paris, won a unanimous 10-round decision from Otis Graham tonight as he gave the young Philadelphia Negro a lesson in the finer points of boxing he won't soon forget.

Villemain weighed 158½ and Graham 156.

The two judges and referee scored the fight as onesided as it had appeared to the 5,225 fans who paid $16,227 for the privilege of watching France's challenger to Jake LaMotta's middleweight crown.

Scarborough Gives Up 17 Hits To Springfield

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Haines City, Fla., April 3.—Ray Scarborough, who is supposed to be the Nats' best pitcher, acted like nothing of the sort today, and they collected a humiliating 7-4 licking from the Springfield, Mass. Cubs, of the International League.

The Chicago Cubs farmhands showered down against Scarborough for all of their 17 hits in the seven innings he worked. It was the longest stint of the spring by a Washington pitcher.

It was at his own request that Scarborough went the seven innings in an attempt to pitch himself into condition for season's opener in Washington. Unperturbed by the frequency with which he was being hit, the rugged righthander bore down.

But the fact remains that he hasn't pitched a decent game in any of his appearances this spring and Manager Bucky Harris is not pleased with Scarborough's work.

"I know he likes to pitch himself into shape methodically," moaned Harris, "but the time is getting short and I'd like to see him start showing me something worthwhile."

The Nats otherwise didn't distinguish themselves against the Springfield minor leaguers. After the first three innings they were held to three hits and one run by a pair of right handers, Allen Ihde and Gene Costello. All of their 10 hits were singles.

Springfield, in contrast, was belting Scarborough with emphasis. Right Fielder Bob Thurman bashed a pair of triples, and First Baseman Dan Taylor also whacked a three-bagger. They made at least one hit in every inning until Rookie Earl Davis stopped 'em in the ninth.

They hopped into a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Scarborough with four solid hits. The Nats wiped out that margin in the third with the help of an error, a wild pitch and singles by Coan, Dente, Noren and Mele.

The Nats made it 4-2 in the fourth without a hit, scoring on a walk, a fumble and a wild throw, but that was the last run they ever

PGA Defended By Houghton

Al Houghton, president of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association, said yesterday that the whole point is being missed in the current P. G. A. fuss over how tournament prizes should be split.

The point, Houghton said is that with a wider distribution of prizes, more youngsters will be interested in playing tournament golf.

"I know," the Prince Georges pro said, "because I drafted the resolution that all the fuss is about.

"We felt that if we had at least 15 prizes of $100 each in a $15,000 tournament more youngsters would take the tour. I think golf needs those kids. After all, boys like Sam Snead aren't going to last forever."

Walker Cooper's Pinch Homer Beats Yankees, 6-5, for Reds

Tampa, Fla., April 3 (AP).—Walker Cooper hit a pinch hit home run in the last of the eighth today to give the Cincinnati Reds a 6-to-5 victory over the world champion New York Yankees. It was the final Florida exhibition tilt for the Reds.

The big blow came after the Yanks had tied the score in their half of the inning by belting the veteran Ken Raffensberger for a pair of runs.

Stewart Quits As Maryland's Basketball Coach

Athletic Director Jim Tatum announced yesterday that A. L. (Flucie) Stewart had "asked to be relieved" as basketball coach of the University of Maryland.

Stewart has been coach for three years. The team won 7 and lost 18 the past season.

Stewart will stay on at Maryland as end coach of the varsity football team, a post he filled in 1947.

Tatum said he hoped to name a new basketball coach in a few days.

Stewart came to Maryland from Appalachian State Teachers in North Carolina where he was football and basketball coach. He previously coached at Furman, his alma mater, and Tampa.

Real Life 'Who-Dun-It?'

District's Arnold Heft Kept From Refereeing NBA Playoff in Syracuse by Phony Telegram

The National Basketball Association, in the midst of its long and complicated playoff, today had a first class "who-dun-it" on its hands.

The mystery: Who sent the telegram to Arnold Heft, cancelling the Washingtonian's refereeing assignment for Sunday night's Syracuse-New York Eastern Division championship game at Syracuse.

The telegram which Heft received from Syracuse Saturday night was signed "Walter Kennedy."

Walter Kennedy, who has charge of assigning the NBA officials, said he knew nothing about the telegram.

In fact, he said, he wasn't even in Syracuse at the time the telegram was sent.

The real Kennedy went right to work yesterday, trying to trace the wire through the Western Union office in Syracuse.

Here's what Kennedy discovered:

"Heft told me he had received a telegram Saturday night advising him that his assignment in Syracuse was cancelled.

"The telegram was signed in my name. Heft said he was very perturbed because he thought it was a reflection on his work in the two previous games.

"I told him I never sent that telegram and assured him there was nothing the matter with his officiating," continued Kennedy.

"I checked with Western Union in Syracuse and discovered such a telegram was sent by a man of about 60 who said he was delivering it for me. Western Union said the original message was written in what appears to be a feminine hand.

"We are checking further."

Heft was more than slightly disturbed over the prank, "especially since Eddie Boyle, Pat Kennedy and I were given some severe criticism from the fans and press for our officiating in the first two games of the Syracuse-New York playoffs.

"Some of the folks in Syracuse must be thinking that I was afraid to show up for the last game," said Heft.

"I was so disappointed and downhearted when I received the phone call from Western Union Saturday night that I didn't bother to check. The telegram said, 'Cancelling your assignment, will call you Monday. Walter Kennedy.'

"Then when Kennedy called me this morning and asked why I hadn't shown up, I almost fell off my seat."

Johnny Nucatola, alternate official, filled in for Heft in Sunday night's game won by Syracuse 91-80.

The telegram episode was a fitting climax to the zany playoff series. The first game, won by Syracuse in Syracuse, 91-83, was followed by loud protests over the officiating from New York Coach Joe Lapchick. The Syracuse team sent Lapchick a basket of sour grapes for blaming New York's loss on the officiating.

The second game, in New York was won by the Knicks, 80-76. This time the Syracuse newspapers and fans blasted the officials for favoring the home team.

Under House Bill

Talley May Return to Ring Board

The full House District Committee reported favorably on a bill yesterday that provides for the return of Clarence Talley to the Boxing Commission.

Talley automatically was dropped from the commission when he retired recently as an inspector of the Metropolitan Police Department. Capt. John Agnew officially took his post yesterday.

The bill, H. R. 7623, was introduced by Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), chairman of the District Committee. It also would enable Talley to collect a salary for his Boxing Commission services—the base figure is $2400 a year—as well as his $3600 police retirement pay.

Talley, who lives in McLean, Va., said he was interested in resuming his boxing post. Commission Chairman Harvey L. (Heinie) Miller called Talley a "darned good man." "He's done a lot of good work for the Boxing Commission," Miller said.

Miller has been serving as chairman without pay since January 1 because he draws retirement pay as a Marine Corps colonel. There's a separate bill pending before the House Committee to also allow Miller to collect a Boxing Commission salary of $2400.

Magnet Sets Md. Record

Peters in an effort to stave off Magnet, was tiring gradually at the end and barely lasted ahead of the closing rush of Manchac for the place money.

Magnet, shipped here after a successful campaign at New Orleans, doesn't even possess a stall here. He is stabled and does his morning work at Bowie, being vanned to Laurel on the day of his races.

Magnet's record, one that is expected to stand for some time, was the second track mark time recorded on the program. The standard, for four and a half furlongs, being used here for the first time this year, was cracked again. Tillie Newsom's Panade, a $9.80 shot, was clocked in 53 4/5 and put the finishing touches on a $25 daily double started when G. E. Curtis' Maxtown won the first event as a $5.20 favorite. The combination was 1-and-2.

2 Run Homer By Nelson Wins Game

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 3 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals snapped a six-game losing streak today by nosing out the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4.

An inside-the-park home run by Rocky Nelson with Harry Walker on base in the fourth inning was the decisive blow. The American Leaguers outhit the Cards, 13 to 8, but were unable to score more than one run in any inning. It was their seventh defeat in eight starts.

Al Brazle, tall southpaw, who has seen little action this spring because of an ailing arm, started for the Cards, but had to retire in the second. Max Lanier and Cloyd Boyer finished.

Horse Group Elects Officers at Laurel Tonight

Laurel, Md., April 3.—Election of officers for the Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia Division of the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association will be held tomorrow night in the Laurel clubhouse following the race program.

Alfred C. Paul of Bethesda, Md., and Charles M. Feltner of Berryville, Va., are the candidates for the vice presidency, highest post in the division.

Ten directors will be chosen from a group that includes H. G. Bedwell, Frank Christmas, J. Yancey Christmas, Alan T. Clark, A. F. Dunne, Jack Edgar, Charles M. Feltner, John Foster, Stanley Greene, jr., George E. Harris, Sidney Jacobs, Edward B. Lee, John A. Manfuso, P. L. Nyberg, Alfred C. Paul, C. A. Plank, Cleveland Skinker, Edward D. Talbert, Charles W. Williams and Frank I. Wright.

Herring Are Scarce, Too

Calendar Says White Perch Season's Here But Potomac Fish Refuse to Cooperate

By Ralph Murdock

ANGLERS, the white perch are simply not perking—not yet. Phone calls to Georgetown boathouses and a survey of the upper Potomac reveal two things, namely: the herring are being taken in dribbles only and that perch are as scarce as hen's teeth. Doc Ayres, local angler, says he saw only one angler with fish. His catch was eight white perch. The location was in the Georgetown Channel opposite the gashouse.

The situation is lamost equal to that of Maine. The inland trout season opened on April 1 and practically all of the streams are frozen solid with ice. There the streams are all over the woods. Melting snow is building them up, plus an unusual amount of rainfall which did anything but help the situation for the angler. There's hardly a pond or stream which is wadeable at this time. (And all the time we were of the opinion that spring was here.)

We know of four fishing parties that went after the striped bass on Sunday in the Chesapeake Bay. The catches were 12, 5, 0 and 0. A strong southeaster that popped up around 2 o'clock in the afternoon destroyed the late fishing entirely. High winds chased them all into shore.

THE NORTHERN migration of waterfowl is on. The snowy whistling swans and Canadian geese, the first to head back to their breeding grounds are now in full swing. Peak flights of canvasbacks, scaups, redheads and other migrants are expected to be on their way north in the next ten days. Bay coots and old squaws are usually the first to arrive in warmer climates and practically the last to leave.

The outlook for more waterfowl this year is rather gloomy, according to Albert M. Day, director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, who gave his report at the closing session of the National Wildlife Federation. In part he said, "I was hoping that I could give you an encouraging report about the waterfowl situation — that I could substantiate the impression of an increase in ducks and geese that many of us gained from our observations afield last fall. Such a statement would be a welcome relief from the kind of reports that it has been my lot to submit during the past five years—but, again it can't be done."

East Capitol Span Okayed By House Unit

A bill to speed construction of an East Capitol st. bridge over the Anacostia River was unanimously approved yesterday by the House District Committee.

The action was announced by Committee Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) after an executive session.

Plans for the East Capitol st. bridge were developed by the District Commissioners, indorsed by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, and sharply opposed by Federal parks and planning officials.

District Committee indorsement of the bill sent it to the House floor. No date is set for House action.

McMillan said the committee also approved bills to:

1. Make cancer a disease which doctors here must report to the District Health Department. The bill applies to cancer and all "malignant neoplastic diseases"—including sarcoma, lymphoma, Hodgkin's disease, leukemia and other malignant growths.

2. Permit the body of a deceased person in the District to be removed to a funeral home by order of a physician other than the one in attendance during the last illness.

Thurman rapped Scarborough for a triple that figured in a fifth-inning run, and in the sixth he tripled again to deep center with two on to move 'em in front, 5-4. In the seventh, Scarborough gave up three more hits, and contributed a wild throw to the plate before he bequeathed a 7-4 deficit to Davis.

IN SHORT—Bucky Harris has ordered an off day for his Nats tomorrow, which could be viewed as two in a row. They were far off today in their licking by Springfield. Church to Aid 4 Dismissed On Ober Law

Baltimore, April 3 (AP).—Four Quakers have been promised financial help by their church if they decide to fight Maryland's new anti-subversive law in the courts.

The four all lost their jobs as public employes when they refused to sign a loyalty oath required by the statute.

The Society of Friends voted its support of them at the Baltimore Yearly Meeting of about 300 representatives from congregations in Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

A spokesman said that since the sect has no higher governing authority this action constitutes official sanction for any action the four may decide to take.

The meeting approved a recommendation which will permit the four members to go to court and promised financial assistance.

The four who lost their jobs are Dr. Mieiam E. Brailey, director of the tuberculosis bureau in the city health department; Doris Shamleffer, a personnel examiner in the state department of employment; Vera Shank, a Baltmiore public school teacher; and Elizabeth Haas, an employe at the City-supported Enoch Pratt Library.

House Bill Would Assist Maimed Girl

The House of Representatives today is scheduled to act on a private bill which will give $25,000 to a former Washington model injured when a soldier tried to kill her and himself with a handgrenade.

She is Miss Karen R. McAndrews, 27, now of 3501 Powelton ave., Philadelphia. The bill was introduced by Representative John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.).

The incident occurred July 25, 1948 in Munich, Germany, where Miss McAndrews was a special service hostess for the Department of the Army.

The committee report on the case states that at the time a soldier named Sergt. Griff M. Leach, 20, was "infatuated with Miss McAndrews and was jealous of her, that he was a person of moody disposition and showed tendencies of an antisocial personality."

One night he seized her, told her they were going to die, and pulled the pin from a handgrenade, causing it to explode, the report states.

Sergt. Leach died that day. Miss McAndrews sustaining multiple wounds, the most serious of which consisted of the amputation of three fingers from her left hand. She has lost the use of the hand for the most part.

Falls Church School Census Poses Problem

Falls Church schools must absorb nearly as many pupils within the next six years as are now in all three city schools.

This was one of the facts brought out by a special school census of all children up to 19 years of age who either are now in one of the three schools inside the city limits, or who will be entered within the next six years.

Irvin H. Schmitt, Falls Church school superintendent, yesterday released first figures on the Census Bureau tabulation showing a total of 6882 pre-school or school age youth. Of this number, 6681 are white children, either in Falls Church or its suburbs, and 201 are non-white.

Schmitt estimated that there are now about 2800 pupils in the three schools within the city limits.

But the census figures show a total of 3713 children 6 years old or younger, of whom 2594 expect to attend public schools. Of the remainder, 710 expect to attend parochial schools; 91 private schools. The parents of 318 are undecided as to the type of school the children will attend.

Of pupils who now are in the public school system in the area, 586 are between the ages of 13 and 17, and may be expected to be graduated within the next five years.

Purpose of the special school census was to help school officials learn where new school buildings can best be placed for at least a five-year period.

Now in the city's school system is only one school, Madison, which has an enrollment of about 1000. Two other schools, now county-operated, might come within the city's jurisdiction should annexation plans succeed. They are the Oak Street and Falls Church High School.

Schmitt pointed out that while Madison School has 26 classrooms, 14 are temporary, and must be replaced. He called existing facilities entirely inadequate to meet the expected increase in pupil load.

'Workshop' Set In Montgomery

An informational workshop will be sponsored by the P-TA Federation of Montgomery County April 13 at 7:30 p. m. at the Lincoln High School, Rockville.

Topics to be discussed include home-school relationships, school cafeterias, functions of trustees, mothers' clubs, parent study groups and safety and health programs.

Among school and P-TA leaders to participate will be Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome, Mrs. Durward V. Sandifer, president of the Board of Education; Dr. Webster Sewell, of the medical staff of the county schools, and Mrs. Aaron B. Nadel and Leslie M. Abbe, of the County Council of P-TAs.

Layoff Notices Due This Week for 600 VA Medical Employes

Six hundred doctors, dentists, and nurses in the Veterans' Administration will get 30-day layoff notices by the end of this week.

VA's Department of Medicine and Surgery has given out dismissal notices to approximately 4200 of its employes in the past three weeks, very few of whom are doctors, dentists, and nurses. Its officials had hoped it might be possible to give pink slips to other employes instead of firing medical and nursing talent.

Meantime, VA Administrator Carl R. Gray has told his staff he will seek additional funds from Congress to prevent the firing of most hospital and medical employes. He's reported to have discussed the project with the Budget Bureau and individual members of Congress. He's slated to discuss his budget Wednesday with the Senate Appropriations Committee.

An estimated 4800 employes in the Department of Medicine and Surgery either have or will get pink slips if the present layoff is carried out. Gray, however, is reported to lean toward a plan to have Congress produce funds to retain 3000 of these employes who actually work in VA's many hospitals. The remaining 1800 medical employes to be laid off are employed in VA's regional offices. The pressure to save their jobs isn't nearly as great.

On Capitol Hill, a special Senate subcommittee has been created to look into what effects the layoffs will have on medical service for veterans. Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) suggested the subcommittee and he was appointed its chairman by Chairman Thomas of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee. Serving with Humphrey will be Senators Pepper (D., Fla.) and Morse (R., Oreg.).

Humphrey hopes to start hearings in a day or so. He wants to quiz Administrator Gray on his plans to prevent part of the medical layoff from going into effect.

In addition to the 4800 medical employes, VA also has layoff notices out to 3000 of its administrative employes. The VA top command is said to be rejecting suggestions that Congress also be asked for funds to retain them in their jobs.

Many of the layoffs will become effective within a week. It will take fast work to save the jobs as Congress will take a 10-day Easter holiday beginning Thursday.

DISABLED VETERANS: A congressional subcommittee yesterday took steps to prevent the firing of disabled veterans who are amputees.

Representative George Miller (D., Calif.), chairman of the House Civil Service Subcommittee, yesterday asked the Defense Department, VA, Postoffice, and other major agencies that are reducing staff to halt the layoff of veterans who have a disability of 60 percent or more.

In his letter, Miller explained that the Senate already had passed the Humphrey bill that would give the amputee veterans what would amount to indefinite job security. The Californian explained that his subcommittee is now considering the Senate bill and he requested the layoffs of veterans who are covered by it be suspended until Congress acted on the Humphrey bill.

Miller said his subcommittee voted to hold public hearings on the Humphrey bill, since it wasn't clear how veterans' organizations stood on it.

CAPITOL HILL: The House yesterday quickly passed over two Federal worker bills which were: (1) The Thornberry bill to give free survivorship benefits to those Federal workers who retired prior to April 1, 1948, and (2) the Ramsey bill to restrict competition to Civil Service exams for apprentices to veterans. The latter measure is aimed at upsetting the recent test given by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to a few of its employes for plate printer apprentices.

NOTES: Civil Service has a new test open for medical officer jobs, $7600 to $10,000 starting salaries. . . . The Quartermaster General has openings for petroleum storekeeper, $3875 annually, in Okinawa, and laundry and dry cleaning specialist, $4600, in Germany. Fast Time Ballots Mostly 'Pro' So Far

That poll on daylight saving time for the District was coming to a close yesterday.

And just as everbody suspected from the beginning, District residents were heavily in favor of having fast time this summer—just as Washington has had for the past three seasons.

With nearly a third of the 200,000 ballots collected, the majority ran from 2 to 1 in the Thirteenth Precinct to 8 to 1 in the neighboring Twelfth Precinct.

Please do not ask for exact figures. In many a station house, the poor precinct policemen yesterday were just beginning to collect the ballots in batches. They'll have to count them, bind them neatly, and turn them over to the Superintendent of Police by Wednesday.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, his office reported, will thereupon "personally" turn the results over to the District Commissioners.

The House District Committee yesterday postponed action on a bill for daylight saving this summer pending the inevitable outcome of the poll.

Meantime, at most precincts the counting was being done by captains and lieutenants and corporals and privates—anyone with spare time.

Precinct by precinct, these were yesterday's reports:

No. 1—about 3500 collected, none tabulated; No. 2—total collected unknown, but "heavily in favor"; No. 3—5000 collected, 3 to 1 for; No. 4—1011 favor the proposition, 628 do not, and 326 don't care; No. 5—total collected unknown, but ballots favor by 3 to 1; No. 6—several thousand collected, majority in favor; No. 7—4123 for, 753 against, and 465 don't care; No. 8—5000 collected, 3 to 1 in favor; No. 9—3892 for, 1522 against, and 1009 don't care; No. 10—between 18,000 and 22,000 collected, 4 or 5 to 1 in favor; No. 11—1586 for, 264 against, 155 don't care; No. 12—several thousand collected, 8 to 1 in favor; No. 13—about 10,000 collected, 2 to 1 in favor; No. 14—1246 for, 561 against, 294 don't care, and counting will continue through midnight.

21st Death in 1950

Man Killed Running Into Path of Bus

District traffic deaths this year 21
Deaths this date last year....19
Total deaths, 1949.....71

Frank Joe Bauer, 55 to 60 years old, of 1943 New York ave. ne., was killed instantly early yesterday morning when, police were told, he dashed down an embankment directly into the path of a Greyhound bus.

The accident occurred alongside an overpass at New York ave. and 9th st. ne.

Milton C. Lawson, 37, of Baltimore, Md., the bus driver, was bound for that city with a load of 37 passengers, shortly after 3 a. m. He said that Bauer's dash in front of his vehicle was so sudden that he had no chance to avoid striking the man. Lawson was booked and held for the coroner and released in custody of a company attorney.

Police learned that Bauer had been employed until Saturday night at Newbill's auto service station at the address where he lived. That night, they were told, he was discharged. From then, until the fatal accident, no acquaintance that police could find had seen Bauer.

The police accident investigation unit, and Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, listed the case as the twenty-first traffic death of the year, though Dr. MacDonald has not yet issued a death certificate.

Capital Transit To Begin Battle For Fare Boosts

At 10 a. m. today the Capital Transit Co. opens its case for higher fares at public hearings before the District Public Utilities Commission.

CTC President E. D. Merrill and J. E. Heberle, company comptroller, are slated as the first witnesses in what promises to be a long, bitterly fought case. The hearings will be heard in the board room at the District Building.

Insisting present fares will quickly result in a large operating deficit, CTC has petitioned the PUC for permission to (1) raise the existing 13-cent cash fare to 15 cents; (2) eliminate the $1.75 weekly pass, and (3) sell six tokens for 80 cents instead of three for 35 cents.

Boy, 3, Succumbs To Injuries in Fall

Coroner A. McGruder MacDonald will divulge today the findings of a Walter Reed Hospital medical examiner in the death of Gene W. Smith, jr., 3-year-old son of the resident manager of the officers' quarters at Arlington Farms.

The youth died yesterday after being taken to the hospital last Tuesday when he fell to the ground from a fire-escape landing. Death apparently came from a fractured skull and brain lacerations.

Myers Takes Stand, But Fails To Kill Statement to Police

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

Ralph W. Myers took the stand in his own defense yesterday in an unsuccessful fight to prevent introduction of a signed statement in which he admitted starting the abortion in which Nina Jean Campbell lost her life January 4.

Myers testified for 20 minutes, out of the presence of the jury, and said a policeman threatened "to knock the head off my shoulders" while he was being questioned.

Sullivan told of finding the bloody, sadistically beaten body of the 20-year-old mother of two in the apartment at 1321 Fairmont st. nw., of Ruth Childs, a nurse who testified she lived and loved with Myers for three years.

Sullivan started to testify how he questioned Myers and took a statement from him, when Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin objected and asked for an immediate bench conference.

Laughlin challenged the voluntary nature of the signed statement, and Judge F. Dickinson Letts dismissed the jury to hear testimony on the manner in which the statement was obtained.

Under cross examination by Laughlin, Sullivan denied threatening to knock Myers' head off, or telling him "as a married man he ought to be ashamed of himself, running around."

Then at 2:50 p. m., Myers himself took the stand. He is a short, thin man, with a prominent nose and ears, and a deep voice. Except for clenched hands, he showed no emotion.

"I was all over the building (police headquarters) that day," Myers stated. "They didn't ask me where I wanted to go. They just took me. They would tell me to do certain things and I just did it. They scraped my fingernails . . . and different parts of my body. They stripped me and examined me for scratches. They put fluid around my fingernails. They took blood from my veins.

"I didn't feel I had any choice."

Laughlin showed his client the three and a half page statement and asked him if he recalled signing it.

"Yes," he said. "They told me it was required of everyone to make a statement."

"Had you been drinking (the night of Mrs. Campbell'se death)," Laughlin continued.

Myers replied he had consumed "my best share of what I had bought."

"How much had you bought?"

"Two fifths," Myers replied.

After brief cross-examination by Prosecutor John C. Conliff, Judge Letts admitted the statement in evidence.

In it Myers said he "blanked out" shortly after 9 p. m., January 4, and "the next remembrance was 7 o'clock in the morning . . . "I noticed a woman lying on the floor . . . Face down, and it looked like blood running from her mouth."

Myers said in his statement that he "tried to pick her up and that's when I got some blood on me."

Use of Sousa Urged to Ease Crowded Elementary Schools

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

School officials yesterday proposed a plan for relieving overcrowding at two Southeast elementary schools, the Kimball and Randle Highlands, by setting up elementary classes in vacant rooms at Sousa Junior High School.

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning yesterday said he will seek school board approval for the proposal at Wednesday's meeting.

Under the plan, elementary classes will be housed in six rooms at the new Sousa, 37th st. and Ely pl. se. At present, the Sousa with a capacity of a thousand students has an enrollment of 511.

The Kimball Elementary School, three blocks away at 34th st. and Ely pl. se., has an enrollment of 837 students crowded into a building with a capacity of 720.

The Randle Highlands School, 30th and R sts. se., has 407 students in a building designed to accommodate 288.

The plan, if approved by the board, is expected to prevent the two elementary schools from placing a portion of its student body on part-time.

The board's committee on buildings and grounds will consider the proposal at 12:15 p. m. prior to a meeting of the full board at 3:30 p. m.

Other matters to be considered by the committee and the board are Dr. Corning's plans for merger of Central and Roosevelt High Schools in the Roosevelt building and a proposal for the transfer of land from the Recreation Department to the schools as a site for a stadium at Coolidge High School.

VFW Favors Home Rule But Opposes Bill

District Council Takes Vote After Hearing Debaters

The council of administration of the District Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars last night put the 2500 District VFW members on record against the Kefauver bill in its present form but in favor of home rule "in toto."

The council acted in the Board Room of the District Building after listening to a debate on the Kefauver bill between Maurice L. Nee, chairman of the National Representation and D. C. Form of Government Committee of the Board of Trade, and Gerhard P. Van Arkel, counsel of the Senate District Committee.

Department Commander Robert F. Sutphin said the majority of the council in attendance favored the view that the Kefauver bill would give the District only "a puppet form of government."

The department wanted instead, he said, home rule both on the municipal and national level.

Speaking in favor of the bill, Van Arkel based his arguments largely on the contention that it would allow the District as democratic a form of government as the Constitution permits.

Van Arkel accused the Board of Trade, which strongly favors national representation instead of the Kefauver bill, of using national representation as a stall and a smoke screen.

He asked VFW members to urge members of the House of Representatives to sign the petition to discharge the Senate-passed bill from the House District Committee.

Central Suffrage To Push Rule Petition

Led by the Central Suffrage Conference, supporters of home rule will meet at a luncheon at 1215 p. m. today at the Carlyle Hotel.

Following the luncheon, the group plans to call on about 70 Congressmen to ask for their signatures on the discharge petition in order to bring the bill to a vote before this session of Congress ends.

Hogenson Takes Office

Judge R. A. Hogenson of Salt Lake City, Utah, took office yesterday as Commissioner of the United States Court of Claims.

Appointed by the court, Hogenson succeeds the late Raymond T. Nagle in the $14,000-a-year post. He resigned a State judgeship in Utah to accept the appointment.

Of $650

Bandits 'Ice' Grocer, Rob His Store

Non Solomon

A grocery store was robbed of $650 yesterday by a man who locked the proprietor and his brother-in-law in an icebox.

The two victims were Julius Non, 31, proprietor of a grocery at 523 Q st. nw., and his brother-in-law, Jack Solomon.

They told police that the holdup man munched some cakes until the store was free of customers.

Non had gone into the icebox. The intruder produced a gun, ordered Solomon to lock it. Solomon told police he "stalled" and Non walked out. Seeing the gun, Non fled to the basement.

Solomon was then forced into the box by the bandit, who closed the door, not knowing the latch was faulty. The bandit took the money from the cash register and fled. Solomon emerged from the icebox and Non from the basement.

Vice Raiders Arrest Barber

He was identified as Constantine Efantis, whose shop is at 1114 14th st. nw.

Lieutenant Blick said the arrest was made on a U. S. Commissioner's warrant charging possession of lottery slips, operating a lottery, and setting up a gaming table. Blick said the warrant was issued as result of several days' observation of Efantis' activities, but that no money or lottery slips were confiscated at the time of arrest.

The barber was released in $3500 bond for arraignment today before Cyril S. Lawrence, United States Commissioner.

Blick said that Efantis was arrested several times previously on gambling charges, but that in court the charges were dropped on technicalities.

Children's Hospital Requests $686,500

Board of Directors Approves Bid for Grant, Loan to Open Building Program

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Application for a $286,500 Federal grant and a $400,000 loan from Riggs National Bank to permit an early start on the long-awaited Children's Hospital building program, was authorized last night by the hospital's board of directors.

Board President James H. Lemon said "unexpectedly high" bids on the project forced yesterday's decision to seek the new Federal money under the Hill-Burton Act and the necessary 2-1 matching funds from local sources.

Previously hospital officials had hoped 2 million dollars would be sufficient to complete the basic structure of the new building, to be erected behind the old structure on W st. at 13th st., nw.

Bid Not Yet Awarded

The lowest bid was $2,330,000, submitted by Charles H. Tompkins Co. The bid has not been awarded.

Lemon disclosed the increase of the cost estimate to $2,650,000 which will cover also the four most "urgently needed" additional facilities.

The request for assistance will be presented to the Hospital Advisory Council Wednesday at the Municipal Center. The council is designated to make recommendations to District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger on allocation of Federal funds under the act.

$1,900,000 In Fund

The building fund now stands at $1,900,000, of which $1,300,000 came from private contributions during the 1946-47 campaign, $598,000 from the Federal Government and the remainder from hospital capital.

If the additional $286,500 Federal fund is granted, Lemon said ground probably will be broken May 1.

Money sought from sources named, added to the total on hand, is figured to meet the newly-set $2,650,000 building program, Lemon explained.

Alert Clerk Traps Suspect In Store Fraud

A perfume counter clerk at Kann's Department store, who must remain anonymous, did something yesterday that store detectives have been trying to do for four years.

She brought about the arrest of a woman who since 1946 allegedly has been making off with merchandise by charging it and giving a false name and address.

The woman is Mrs. Margaret Brandt, 30, of 428 Evart st. ne. She was charged with forgery and released in $1000 bond pending appearance in Municipal Court today.

The salesgirl sold the woman a bottle of hair lotion at noon yesterday, police said. The woman told her to charge it and gave her a name and address.

The woman returned at 4:30 p. m., police said, and sought out another clerk at the perfume counter. Again she charged a bottle of hair lotion. But this time the girl who had first waited on her overheard the woman give another name. She called the store detective and the woman was arrested.

Detective Sergt. Frank Dodson of the check and fraud squad estimated the woman had made about a thousand such "charges" in downtown department stores since 1946.

10 D. C. Firemen Overcome by Gas

Shooting, Stabbing

Pair Held For Jury in 2 Fatalities

One of the defendants, already charged with murder by police, is the Rev. William N. Martin, 52, "free lance" minister and plastering contractor. He lives at 615 Princeton pl. nw.

Last Saturday afternoon he was arrested after Eugene Bellfield, 29, tenant in his house, was shot to death. Martin told police he shot Bellfield when the latter threatened to "cut him up" and made a menacing gesture after an argument.

The other man ordered held for the grand jury is Joseph B. Acheson, jr., 19, of 5207 Nye st., Deanwood Park, Md. He was arrested the night of March 25 after A. C. Bradley, 32, of 1514 Trinidad ave. ne., was found stabbed to death on the street near Eastern ave. and Lee st. ne.

Police said that Acheson and Bradley had engaged in an argument over a girl.

Ten firemen were overcome by gas in a fire yesterday in two storerooms of the Pullman Co., 4th and T sts. ne.

Three of the firemen required hospitalization.

The fire burned out the roms so badly the cause may never be determined, according to Lieut. Charles Lechault of the Fire Marshall's staff. No damage estimate has been made.

The alarm was turned in at 3:45 a. m. and firemen had difficulty reaching the burning rooms through a smoke and gas-choked stairway and elevator shaft from the T st. overpass.

The rooms contained cyanogen chloride, used in fumigating cars; carbon tetrachloride and whisky. The combination of heat, chemicals and liquor created gas, which choked the firefighters and penetrated their masks, Lieutenant Lechault said.

The entire crew of six men on Truck Company No. 4, was overcome. Pvts. Theodore W. Purschwitz, 33, of 3304 Longfellow st., Hyattsville; Pvt. E. F. Schnaebele, 24, of 4804 R st. se., and Pvt. Earl Dodson, 22, of 4300 Emerson st., Hyattsville, all of Truck 4, were admitted to Casualty Hospital. Their conditions were reported good last night and they probably will be released today.

Others overcome and treated at the scene were Capt. A. F. Diegelmann and Pvts. M. Weiner and H. D. Reed of Truck 4. Lieut. E. C. Jones, Truck 15; Pvt. R. J. Curtin, Engine 12, and Pvt. C. E. Dameron, Engine 26.

Traffic on the overpass was suspended for four hours.

Mrs. Beadle Dies in Her 100th Year

Mrs. Jane Cole Beadle, widow of a newspaper publisher and a District resident since 1893, died in her 100th year Sunday at her home, 3547 Appleton st. nw.

Born January 1, 1851, near Evansville, Ind., Mrs. Beadle taught school in Evansville, and when 21 married John Hanson Beadle, lawyer and newspaperman.

She moved to Utah with her husband, who edited the only non-Mormon newspaper in the State for several years. Later, she returned to Indiana, where Mr. Beadle owned and edited the Rockville Tribune.

In 1888 they moved to New York and came to Washington in 1893, where Mr. Beadle served as special correspondent for the American Press Association, now defunct. He died in 1897.

Survivors include two daughters, Miss Mary Beadle of the Appleton st. address and Mrs. Charles Hubbard of Rockford, Ill.

Private funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. at home.

Address of Lottery Suspect Protested

In a report from police records, The Washington Post Sunday gave 5028 Nebraska ave. nw. as the address of Robert B. Warren, 39, who was charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Edwin Warren, who said he is the brother of Robert B. Warren, stated yesterday that his brother never had lived at the Nebraska ave. address. No other address for Robert B. Warren is available.

Dr. Woodson Dies; Negro History Expert

Carter Godwin Woodson, 74, editor, author and pioneer in Negro history, died at his home, 1538 9th st. nw., yesterday afternoon, apparently from a heart attack.

Dr. Woodson

The founder and director of the Association for Study of Negro Life and History had been in declining health and under doctor's care for the past two years. He was unmarried.

Dr. Woodson, a son of former slaves, spent the greater part of his life in research on his race.

He was born at New Canton in Buckingham County, Va., moving in his early youth to Huntington, W. Va., where he worked in the coal mines.

Self-schooled for his first 20 years, he later attended Berea (Ky.) College and the Sorbonne in Paris. The University of Chicago awarded him an A. B. ('07) and an A. M. ('08). He received his Ph. D. from Harvard University ('12) and an LL. D. from Virginia State College ('39).

A teacher in the Washington school system, 1909-18, he served a year as principal of Armstrong High School before becoming dean of the School of Liberal Arts at Howard University. A year later, he went to West Virginia State College in the same capacity.

At West Virginia, he organized and became president of the Associated Publishers, Inc.

In 1922, he retired from teaching to concentrate on research.

He is survived by a brother, Robert Woodson and a sister, Mrs. Bessie Woodson Yancey, both of Huntington, W. Va., and a cousin, Mrs. Eliza Jackson, of 1513 T st. nw.

Helen Chase, 77, Descendant Of George Mason, Dies

Miss Helen Mason Chase, 77, third generation lineal descendant of George Mason of Gunston Hall, Va., author of the Bill of Rights, died Sunday at a nursing home at 612 E. Capitol st., where she had been ill since last July.

Miss Chase, who was born in Alexandria, was one of the first women to pass the entrance examinations of the University of Virginia. She had attended the Kleinberg Female Academy in Nelson County, Va.

Before her illness, she had lived for 20 years at the Episcopal Church Home at 3315 Wisconsin ave. nw., and had been an active member of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, 3d and E sts. se. As chairman of the church periodical club there, she sponsored the collection and distribution of magazines, books, cards, pictures and puzzles to the needy.

Miss Chase's great-grandfather Mason, who fought through the Revolutionary War, received a Damascus blade, one of several sent by the King of Spain to George Washington to be presented to his bravest young officers.

The blade and several other mementoes of the family are now held by the Virginia Historical Society.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Wednesday at St. Mark's Church. Interment will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery in Alexandria.

Louis W. Richardson, Real Estate Man, Dies

Louis W. Richardson, 73, of 108 Earlston dr., Yorktown Village, Montgomery County, Md., head of a local real estate firm, died at his home Monday after an illness of five months.

Mr. Richardson had been ill with a heart conidtion.

A native of Loudoun County, Va., Mr. Richardson was the son of Dr. G. A. Richardson and Mrs. Sally A. Richardson. The family moved to Hyattsville, Md., shortly after Mr. Richardson's birth and his father practiced medicine there for more than two decades.

Mr. Richardson started in the real estate business more than 50 years ago as an office boy with his uncle, Louis B. Wine. At the time of his death, he headed the firm of L. W. Richardson & Son, 927 15th st. nw.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Gates Richardson; two sons, Louis G. and George W., and two grandchildren, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at Gawler's Chapel. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Hedge to Guard Dupont Statue, Group Told

The Dupont Circle Citizens Association learned yesterday that the Department of Interior had decided to do something about protecting the statue of Admiral Samuel F. Dupont, in the circle's center.

The department, in a letter to Association Secretary Lieut. Col. John H. Coffman, said that a 12-foot wide hedge would be placed around the statue, which was a gift of the Dupont family in 1884.

Action followed two resolutions addressed to the department by the association in the past nine months, protesting about vandalism in connection with the statue.

Other business before the monthly meeting at the Mayflower Hotel included a talk by Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d (USA ret.) president of American Planning and Civic Association, and a report by the nominating committee.

General Grant spoke on the need for an authority in the Washington metropolitan area which would undertake management of projects for the whole section.

The nominating committee recommended reelection of present officers: Col. E. G. Bliss, president; Harral Mulliken vice president; Mrs. Charles Collins, second vice president, and Herbert Gill, treasurer. Named to the board were Mrs. Helen Duey Hoffman and Clark Taylor. Elections will be May 1.

Southwest

The Southwest Citizens Association last night voted to ask Congress to appropriate $30,000 for lighting the Jefferson Junior High School playground for night games.

Action was taken at an association meeting at the Southwest Library, at which Alexandria Police Court Judge James R. Duncan urged citizens to get together with those of Maryland and Virginia and support efforts to clear the Potomac River of pollution.

The association also voted to ask the District Commissioners to remove a barricade of H st. sw. from 7th to 9th sts. Members stated they felt the barricade may have facilitated a robbery at Jefferson Junior High School last week.

Thomas Martini was appointed chairman of the association's nominating committee for the coming year.

Progressive

The Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown last night began making plans for the bicentennial celebration of the founding of Georgetown in 1751.

A committee was appointed to make plans for the observance during the group's meeting at Christ Church Parish Hall, 31st and O sts. nw.

The association also supported the move to turn the Old Stone House on M st. into a museum, and directed that a letter be written to the president of the Washington Gas Light Co., asking that he provide parking space for his employes "so they won't park all day in front of private residences in Georgetown."

Minnesota Center

If the 500 members of the Minnesota Center Citizens Association want it, they can hear a debate on the home rule bill.

The group last night voted to poll its members on whether to invite Herbert P. Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations and Edward F. Colladay, general counsel of the Board of Trade, to discuss the Kefauver measure.

Takoma Citizens

Louis St. George was reelected president of the Citizens Association of Takoma Park, D. C., at its monthly meeting last night in the Takoma Elementary School. Also reelected were Bruce E. Anderson, first vice president, and John H. Barnett, second vice president. Charles R. Lamay was elected treasurer.

Abraham Chaifetz and M. Stanley Nichols were named delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Manor Park

Opposition to any increase of Capital Transit fares was voiced last night by the Manor Park Citizens Association.

The group also opposed private use of District cars; asked for reduction of personal and sales taxes on automobiles as well as a cutting down of auto inspection, tags and operator's permit fees; and favored a stadium complete with an indoor swimming pool for Coolidge High School.

Forest Hill

The Forest Hill Citizens Association last night favored "reasonable increases" in general fares, and recommended raising of fare for school children on the Capital Transit lines.

The group, meeting at Murch School, 36th and Ellicott sts., nw., also opposed the Kefauver home rule bill.

Singing Star At Cancer Rally

MOLLY McNEILL,
is one of a galaxy of stars to be seen and heard at the opening rally of the 1950 Cancer Crusade in Constitution Hall tonight. Quota of the District drive has been set at $200,000. Beautiful Molly McNeill is a veteran of countless radio, stage and television appearances

Entertainment Figures to Open 1950 Cancer Drive

More than a dozen stage, screen, radio and television personalities will join in the opening rally of the 1950 cancer campaign scheduled for 7:30 tonight at Constitution Hall.

Among the entertainers will be Jeff Clark, Martha Scott, Lanny Ross, Nancy Carroll, Helmut Dantine, Mary Beth Hughes, David Street, Molly McNeil, Hal Le Roy, Faye Emerson, Dean Murphy, and Mary Curtis. Danton Walker and Igor Cassini will emcee the show, which will be broadcast.

The District quota of the $14,565,000 national cancer drive is $200,000. Dr. Charles Cameron, director of science and research for the American Cancer Society, will talk about the need for research funds. The society will have an exhibit in the lobby of Constitution Hall for the occasion. Other speakers will include society officials and Lloyd Carey, father of an eight-year-old boy who died of cancer last month at Children's Hospital.

Jury Returns 38 Indictments But Is Not Given Dismissal

The District grand jury yesterday ended its three months of service with the return of 38 indictments, but it was not dismissed as scheduled.

Assistant United States Attorney John Fihelly refused to disclose why the jury will continue in service, or for how long it will remain impaneled. He pointed out that although the grand jury normally sits for a three-month period, it can be kept in service up to 18 months.

Among those indicted yesterday were:

Aaron A. King, 54, of 259 Warren st. ne., charged with the second-degree murder of his wife, Mary E. King, 36. Mrs. King was found dead in their home March 12. She was badly bruised and had suffered a brain concussion.

Mrs. Helen N. Howard, 49, of 462 M st. sw., charged with performing a criminal abortion on the 21-year-old mother of two small children January 31. Mrs. Howard was arrested March 3, two days after the mother sought hospital treatment.

Lewis L. Wayne of 1131 8th st. ne., charged with performing a criminal abortion on a 31-year-old woman last December 1.

Herman Axelbank, 49, a New York sign painter, charged with two counts of impersonating a Federal officer. Axelbank was arrested by FBI agents February 8 after he posed as an agent of the Office of Naval Intelligence and tried to sell a strip of microfilm to the Federal Republic of Germany for $12,000.

The microfilm was supposed to contain scenes of German nations who are prisoners of war in East Germany. Actually, the films were part of an old newsreel, FBI agents said.

Josephine B. Freeman, 29, of 621 Quebec pl. nw., charged with blackmailing Eddie P. S. Brady, 54, of 747 Kenyon st. nw. Brady told police he gave Mrs. Freeman $180 after she threatened to tell the Parole Board that he had been drinking and gambling, police said.

Brady said he was on parole from a six-month to two-year sentence on an arson charge, police said.

James W. Fletcher, 32, of 3228 Grace st. nw., and Wallace G. Johnson, 25, of 2211 M st. nw., charged with the rape of a 31-year-old woman March 5. The woman told police Fletcher, Johnson and a third man forced her into their car, took her to the M st. address and assaulted her several times. The third man is still at large.

Lad, 21, Is Backing Away From Marriage Plans Made by Girl's Family, And Girl Is Losing Weight Because of His Wariness

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently I was informed that my girl's family is planning a September wedding for us, despite the fact that I've never committed myself to such a thing. So far as I know, Jane had never thought of me as anything more than a steady date; and we have had many discussions of my views on our friendship.

At this time I am 21 and Jane is 24, and as I've told her many times, I don't feel that I am ready to marry at my age. Furthermore, I have five years' advanced study ahead of me, and I am having a rather difficult time financing my college career. I certainly don't want her to wait all that time for me.

Finally, I am not in love with Jane and I don't wish to fall in love with anyone until I am fully prepared to cope with the special problems and responsibilities that go with marriage.

How Ease Out Most Tactfully

I HAVE BEEN dating Jane exclusively this past year primarily because her character is excellent, her looks much above average and her personality very vivacious. But now I have suggested to her that we cease dating altogether, or at least concentrate on dating other persons most of the time.

Three weeks have passed since we discussed these things, and yesterday Jane let me know that she has lost considerable weight and reduced herself to nervous prostration. Our acquaintance began in early childhood and I want to do the right thing, but I am hoping you can advise me how to withdraw from this situation in a way that will be most nearly painless for all concerned.

P. J.

Guilt Reactions Seem Unwarranted

DEAR P. J.: In condensing your letter for publication, I've eliminated the distrait flavor, but I think we should talk about your great defensive anxiety which seems to embody guilt reactions to Jane's despondency at having her marriage plans rejected.

In the event you'd been having an affair with Jane, she and her parents might have ethical justification for trying to contrive marriage even against your preference. And in such case, obstinate efforts on your part to evade their purpose would rouse guilty conflict in your soul, of course. But I gather your companionship with her has been strictly honorable from the moral view. Hence the plot to stampede you into wedlock seems purely presumptuous.

Thus it seems proper and rational of you to be stoutly on the defensive against their maneuvers, and I see no reason at all why you should feel guilty about standing them off. Jane's limp despondency isn't your responsibility, although I grant it poses a problem in which you've become involved due, I think, to your habitual shortage of self reliance and lack of social initiative. In all probability you and she are alike in that, and thus drifted together by chance, after your mutual friends had all paired off by positive choice, leaving you and Jane confronting each other.

Girl Is Trying Neurotic Dodge

JANE MAY BE a nice girl by conventional reckoning, but by psychological measurements of character, she is infantile, it seems. By her report to you of a substantial weight loss and drift towards nervous prostration since you suggested a break in relations, she advertises a weakling's reaction to major frustration. Such a reaction subtly dramatizes personal weakness, and seeks to play upon the sympathies of whomsoever opposes the desires of the infantile ego. This is a typical neurotic dodge that indicates Jane needs expert help in getting wise to herself, a great deal more than she needs you.

I firmly endorse your thought that you ought to stop dating Jane, if she wants marriage and you do not. A break that forces each to cultivate other interests will prove to be the most painless way of annulling her designs on you.

And I think you temporize not so much out of sympathy for her, as because you aren't sure you can readily form a new alliance against loneliness. You tend to value Jane's devotion as a form of social security, without wanting to be tied to her—hence you're "on a spot" and conscience stricken. But perhaps this bit of insight will give you rational control of conflicted impulses.

Rep. Bolton Defends Acheson At Republican League Meeting

Representative Frances Bolton, Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, yesterday defended Secretary of State Dean Acheson's loyalty but accused him of using "poor judgment."

"I don't believe for one moment that Dean Acheson has a disloyal thread in him," the Congresswoman declared at the annual meeting of the D. C. League of Republican Women at the Mayflower Hotel.

"But I don't think he realizes the implication of his remarks," she added.

Mrs. Bolton attacked the Administration's farm subsidy program and the stockpiling of surplus commodities "when there are so many people starving in the world."

Also, she stated that the "judiciary is completely unbalanced." She pointed out that less than 10 of the some 280 judges on the Federal Courts are Republicans.

In a lighter vein the Representative criticized architectural changes in the Capitol building. She particularly disapproved of removal of the painted glass emblems of the 48 States from the ceiling of the House floor.

"It's symbolic of what's been going on since 1932," she declared.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, program chairman, introduced Representative Bolton. League president, Mrs. Carroll D. Kearns, presided.

In a business session preceding the Congresswoman's talk Mrs. Joseph Farrington, president of the National Federation of Leagues of Republic Women and wife of the Hawaiian delegate, revealed plans for the Federation's School of Politics.

Each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in May the Federation will conduct training classes for party precinct workers at the headquarters of the Republican National Committee. Potential precinct workers from all over the country may attend.

What does "Denier" mean?

It's the thickness or weight of the nylon yarn. 10 and 15 denier is the sheerest . . . then 20, 30 and 40, the heaviest. Note that THE LOWER THE DENIER THE THINNER THE NYLON YARN.

What does Gauge mean?

Gauge means the number of stitches or needles per 1½ inches in full fashioned hosiery. The more stitches, the finer the texture.

Note that 66-gauge nylon is closer knit than 45, 51 and 54 gauge.

These are the hosiery facts that make fashion sense . . . that save fashion dollars . . . So why not make your own hosiery test by examining Beautiful Bryans 66-gauge nylons in our own fashion-wise shop on the first floor?

Easter Bonnet Luncheon

Puzzled Males Glorify 'Problem Hat'

By Peggy Preston

"IS that a hat?"

Many a puzzled male has pondered this question when considering the matter of feminine headgear. Well, this week three Washington bachelors are going to repeat the query—but with a definite purpose. They're going to give a prize for the chapeau that causes the greatest sensation at the Easter Bonnet luncheon of the Women's Advertising Club of Washington on Wednesday at the Washington Hotel. The award will go, specifically, to the gal wearing the best "Is That a Hat?" hat.

Just who the three daring fellows are who will make this decision is a carefully guarded secret at this date. But their identity will be revealed following the judging at the 12:30 p. m. luncheon and show. In addition, the trio is pledged to select the following prize-winners: "The hat that looks most like an Easter bonnet," and "the hat of the year."

All three awards will go to women guests at the party. But in addition, the program calls for a real hat fashion show, with local designers and millinery establishments participating. Commentator will be Mary Kelley, the spritely Irish lass who is an executive with New York's Millinery Fashion Bureau.

Invitations are out to a Spring Bridal Show on Thursday, April 13 at Woodward & Lothrop's. Commentator will be Miss Margaret de Mille of Mademoiselle magazine. . . . Miss Mary Strobel, who conducts the Virginia's Girl Friday column in The Washington Post, is currently presenting a series of fashion shows at Collingwood-on-the-Potomac. The shows are being held each Tuesday during the luncheon hour.

In Capital's Orange Blossom Procession

The Rev. Richard Pursel of Congress Heights Presbyterian Church performed the ceremony.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Armstrong of Canandaigua, N. Y. Mrs. Donald E. Sullivan, the bride's sister, and Donald Case of Indianapolis, Ind., attended the couple.

On return from their Southern wedding trip the newlyweds will live in Washington. Mrs. Armstrong was graduated from the University of Delaware and the Teachers' College of Columbia University. Her husband is a graduate of Purdue University.

Klein—Lawson

Miss Jan Lloyd Lawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Lawson of Fairfax, Va., was married March 18 at All Souls Unitarian Church to Robert Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Klein of Cleveland, Ohio. The Rev. A. Powell Davies officiated.

On return from their honeymoon at Rehoboth Beach, Del., the newlyweds will live in Washington. Both Mr. Klein and his bride are graduates of George Washington University.

Barron—Mitchell

The marriage of Miss Mary Bell Mitchell to Col. Elbert M. Barron of Washington and Texas, took place March 22 in Arlington, Va. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas J. Mitchell of Washington and the late Mr. Mitchell.

New British Invasion Promotes Parties

By Marie McNair

HARD on the heels of Lieut. Gen. Sir Frank E. W. Simpson, Britain's general officer commander in chief of the Western Command, now in Washington, will come the Prime Minister of North Ireland, Sir Basil Brooke, due to arrive on Wednesday. And the next day Britain's invasion of the Capital will be completed by Fleet Admiral Lord Bruce Fraser, G. C. B., K. B. E., first sea lord and chief of the Naval Staff of the British Royal Navy.

Yesterday while General Simpson was being entertained at luncheon by Gen. Harold Bull, Commandant of the National War College, Lady Simpson lunched with Mrs. Floyd Parks, wife of General Parks, Chief of Information, USA, at Fort Myer.

Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, wife of the Chief of Staff, was in the group asked to meet the visitor, and others were Mrs. Wade Haislip, Mrs. Alfred M. Gruenther, Mrs. J. E. Hull, Mrs. Harold Bull, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Clovis Byers and Miss Agnes Wark.

George McGhees Entertain Singer

WITH the voice of Elena Nikolaidi still singing in their ears, a group of friends of Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George McGhee went on from Constitution Hall last night to Mr. and Mrs. McGhee's house for a reception in honor of the Greek contralto.

Vice President and Mrs. Alben Barkley were guests in the box of the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis. Mr. and Mrs. McGhee had with them Mrs. S. Shepherd Jones and J. Burke Knapp.

Mrs. McGhee welcomed her guests in a short evening frock of beige chiffon with white lace apron skirt.

Mrs. Henry G. Rieber entertained at a buffet supper Sunday evening for her niece, Miss Betty Lou Vogel, and her fiance, James Carlton Stair, who will be married April 15 in Cumberland, Md. There were about 25 guests.

Busy Schedule For Mrs. Grady

MRS. HENRY F. GRADY, wife of our Ambassador to Greece, has a social program arranged for her that reads just like a timetable.

Expected in from Athens on Thursday, Mrs. Grady will spend Good Friday quietly with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Davies and their children. First on her schedule is the luncheon on Saturday at which Mrs. Lorton Sims will be hostess at the Mayflower, to be followed by a dinner that evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherrod.

MRS. HENRY F. GRADY
. . . Coming from Athens

Easter afternoon there's Mr. and Mrs. Justin Miller's reception in her honor and that night a dinner at which Mrs. J. Borden Harriman will be hostess.

April 10 is Mrs. Truman's luncheon in her honor at Blair House and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas' tea at the Shoreham.

Mrs. Grady will be honor guest at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Bruce Smith at the 1925 F Street Club on Tuesday, April 11 and Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Jack McFall have planned a dinner party that evening.

The Walter Wyatts will entertain at a tea for Mrs. Grady on April 13 and the following day she will devote to the Greek Cavalcade of Fashions, the real reason for her visit here at this time. Mrs. Grady conceived the idea in Athens last fall and has been working on the project ever since.

Mme. Pandit, Indian Ambassador, will entertain at dinner for Mrs. Grady, whose husband is former Ambassador to that country, on April 14, and earlier Mrs. Charles Brand will give a luncheon.

Cocktail time on April 15 will find Mrs. Grady at Anderson House for a party in her honor by Gen. and Mrs. Albert E. Cox and from there she'll go to the Women's National Press Club dinner. Also on that day is the Senate Ladies luncheon which Mrs. Grady will attend as a special guest.

There's the Frederick Livesays dinner April 16 and the next day a tea by Mrs. Edwin Nourse. Also Mrs. Grady will be honor guest and speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Women's National Democratic Club.

Will Spend Easter In Tennessee

REAR ADMIRAL and Mrs. Lloyd Harrison and their three children will leave on Friday to spend Easter with Mrs. Harrison's father, H. C. Sanford, at his home in Knoxville, Tenn.

Admiral and Mrs. Harrison's daughter, Miss Polly Randall Harrison, will go back to Tennessee in September to attend the annual Cotton Ball in Chattanooga.

Mrs. Montfort Moodie asked a few friends in for tea yesterday in honor of Mrs. Jean Miller Abbott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Miller, who is here from California for a visit to her parents.

Old friends of Mrs. Abbott who were invited were Mrs. Bernard Gallagher, Mrs. Milton Ladd, Mrs. Mary Jane Fridley, Mrs. Paul McGann, Mrs. John Davies and Mrs. Lawrence Smith.

Air Chief Marshal Sir George Pirie and Lady Pirie were the guests in whose honor Mrs. Hamilton Wright entertained at cocktails on Sunday.

Woodwards Go South Before European Trip

VICE ADMIRAL AND MRS. CLARK WOODWARD said au revoir on Saturday and left for Florida and Atlanta, Ga., to visit before sailing for Europe. They will be in Paris and Italy and will attend the famous Passion Play at Oberammergau. Col. and Mrs. Henry T. Allen, also Europe-bound, will sail on the New Amsterdam on April 28 and will go to their chateau in France where they propose to spend the next year or longer.

At the moment, having leased their house on Cathedral ave., they and their daughter, Patricia, are spending the next few weeks at Alban Towers. When they get to France they'll be joined by their other daughter, Cynette, who has been with relatives in France since last June.

DATE-BOOK DATA: The Ambassador of Thailand and Princess Wan Waithayakon have issued cards for cocktails on April 14 at the embassy.

Mrs. Eugene Cox, wife of the Representative from Georgia, will entertain at a luncheon at Wardman Park on Friday, April 14.

If the Small-Fry Want Modeling Clay Here Are Two Recipes Which Aren't 'Too Messy' and Discourage Eating

REMEMBER that question the other day about how to make homemade modeling clay?

We've had several replies from readers who have mixed batches of this "dough" for their youngsters. They follow substantially the same recipe and offer helpful suggestions.

Here is one for a clay "that is not too messy," sent in by Mrs. James Schwartz, 1107 Staples st., nw.

"Take 2 cups of flour, 1 cup salt and 1 teaspoonful powdered alum. Add enough water so clay will be neither too stiff nor too sticky to handle. To keep clay in good working condition when not in use, wrap in damp cloth."

E. D. L., of Alexandria, says that her children like colored dough and she makes it easily by adding a drop or two of cake coloring to the water used in the mix.

"Children won't eat this clay. Too much salt!" she adds. "By wrapping it in foil and putting it in the ice box, it can be kept for quite some time."

DEAR ANNE:
Where can I get a long skirt pleated? Who does such work?
J. B. F., Washington.

Be it knife, accordion, or sunburst pleating you desire, you can get it done at a shop on Connecticut ave. The telephone number: North 7469. One of the large department stores also does pleating, either on previously unpleated fabrics or to restore old pleats. Telephone District 5300, and ask for the dry cleaning department.

DEAR ANNE:
Can you tell me of a cabinet maker who would make custom-cut bench and table for a dinette? M. C., Washington.

Under "Cabinet Makers" in the yellow section of the phone book, you'll find the names of a number of firms that do such work.

DEAR ANNE:
I would like to pave two shuffle board courts in my back yard and wish to know where I could get information and diagrams on regulation dimensions.
Mrs. Edward Aaronson,
433 Longfellow st., nw.

If you will write the District of Columbia Recreation Department, 3149 16th st., nw., Washington 10, you can obtain a full description, including dimensions and other details, of such a court. There are two in District high school gymnasiums if you care to look at them—one at Roosevelt High, 13th and Upshur sts., and another at Central High, 13th and Clifton, nw.

DEAR ANNE:
In answer to a reader's query the other day about a class in Continental cookery, I'd like to tell you about my teacher, Mrs. Toni Goldstein. She is originally from Germany, but successfully conducted a school of cooking in Italy, studying at the same time with a famous Florentine chef. Her dishes are of German, Austrian, French, and Italian origin, all very authentic. She conducts small classes at her home here. Her telephone number is Hudson 5945.
Mrs. Marcus Mensh,
2022 Klingle, rd. nw.

DEAR ANNE:

I was interested in your advice the other day about painting a basement floor. From my own experience, you can overcome the trouble described by first painting the floor with aluminum paint, then applying any deck or floor paint over it.

I have painted two club-cellar floors in such fashion. One was over 10 years ago and the original paint is still intact. The other is in my present home and was done in December. My daughter and her friends roller skate on it about three afternoons a week (to the tune of Spike Jones records) and thus far, it has survived all onslaughts.

The same applies to oil painting outside masonry, It is so simple to do and works well.
R. E. B.,
Falls Church, Va.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

Pen Women to Elect Officers Today

The National League of American Pen Women, meeting in biennial convention, will hold their elections this morning, on the fourth day of the five-day meeting at the Statler Hotel.

Dr. Margaret Sebree of Washington, retiring president, is expected to be succeeded by Mrs. Cloyd Marvin, wife of the president of George Washington University, who has been nominated and is unopposed. Mrs. Marvin has been serving as vice president.

The annual press and journalism luncheon will be held at 12:30 today and the radio and drama dinner tonight. Awards for excellence in these fields will be made at the respective occasions.

Speakers at the luncheon will be Mrs. Eleanor Bridges, author of "Wearers of Silk," who will discuss "The Mid-Century Evaluates the Eternal Feminine," and Harold B. Hinton of the Washington Bureau of the New York Times, who will discuss "Covering the Capital."

Dr. Franklin Dunham, chief of the radio division of the United States Office of Education, will discuss "The Future of Radio and Television in the United States" at the dinner meeting.

"Marketing of Manuscripts" was discussed at the luncheon meeting yesterday. Workshops on writing were held during the afternoon.

Intensely Powerful

Dramatic 'Streetcar' Presented at Gayety

By Robin Dorr

Tennessee Williams' very moving, often intensely powerful, drama about a broken dream and the woman who clings to the last shreds of that dream opened last night at the Gayety.

It was a strange experience, seeing this kind of theater, an experience felt throughout the audience once they realized that drama had once more returned to Washington.

Not a tragedy, in the literary sense of the word, "A Streetcar Named Desire" cannot be classified as a melodrama pure and simple. It is, in a sense, the same theme Williams used in "The Glass Menagerie," and the heroine is much the same, with a few variations.

Blanch Du Bois is not the sort of woman one meets every day, and yet she is a completely understandable woman, one easily sympathized with, one easily recognized.

It is obvious from the moment Judith Evelyn enters the scene she is more than capable of handling the role of Blanche. Her fluid body movements, her expressive voice, and her apreciation of the undertones in the woman she portrays develop a character picture that intrigues the audience, from the beautiful and profoundly tragic description of her first marriage, to the final pitiful exit on the arm of the doctor.

Ralph Meeker, as the physically powerful, mentally inadequate husband of Blanche's sister, has done a fine job. There are moments of tenderness in scenes with the gentle Stella that hurt. Brutal in anger, he makes the quick transition to warmth and almost child-like devotion smooth and natural.

There is a dramatic contrast, in the role of Stella as played by Jorja Curtright. She shows all the femininity and all the strength that a wife of Stanley would have to possess to have faith in the innocence of her sister.

The supporting cast was disappointing. There was a decided false Southern accent in the cast, and more vitality could have been injected into the role of Mitch.

Probably "Streetcar" is not the greatest play today, but it is one of the best, and perhaps the best of Williams' plays. This production combined the fine performances of two actresses and one actor, the excellent direction of Elia Kazan and the superb sets of Mielziner. All it needs is two hours of audience participation and an appreciation for good art.

Postlude

New Artist Unveils Rare Voice Here

By Paul Hume

A great new voice was heard last night from the Constitution Hall stage.

Elena Nikolaidi, much-heralded Greek contralto, sang there, to benefit Athens College in her native country. In her first two offerings, Handel's Largo and the Bach-Gounod Ave Maria, Nikolaidi was assisted by William Watkins, organist, and Deno Geanakopoulos, violinist. The balance of her program was sung to piano accompaniments by Jean Behr.

The new artist's voice is a sumptuous, pure, rich contralto. We rarely hear a true contralto today and Miss Nikolaidi might have the lower field to herself if she chose.

At the present time, however, she does not choose to take advantage of her opportunities. Her arias were those of the high dramatic and coloratura soprano. Rosa Ponselle was in the audience, who in her singing days delivered the finest "Bel raggio" of Rossini in the country. And she probably also sang the Sleepwalking Scene from Verdi's Macbeth. And Ponselle was a true dramatic soprano.

Yet Nikolaidi ignored the brilliant possibilities of the contralto repertoire to try for the more theatrical effect found in higher notes.

In Greek and Spanish songs the artist came to the fore more clearly. All told, the recital was a revelation of a great voice, less satisfyingly used than we had come to expect.

VIEWPOINT — By Dave Gerard

"A dog is a wonderful thing for a boy! Teaches him responsibility when he has to feed and care for an animal!"

"The little mutt follows me around all day! I guess it's because I feed him—and give him a bath—and brush him—!"

Pope Pius XII—Priest and Statesman

Tense Days of Rome Occupation Before Allies Arrive

Kees Van Hoek, a native of The Hague and now an Irish citizen, has been a correspondent in London, Geneva and the United States. His first biography of Pius XII appeared in 1939. After much research and a private audience with the Pope last fall, Van Hoek has written in "Pope Pius XII, Priest and Statesman," a full and vivid description of the man and his career, from a delicate boy in Rome to supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic world. The biography is presented by The Washington Post during the present Holy Year in 24 daily installments.

By Kees Van Hoek

Chapter XVII—Open City

ONE OF the first steps taken by the new Italian government formed under Marshal Badoglio—who was willing to give the guarantees which Mussolini in his criminal pride had refused—was to have Rome declared an open city.

A month later, however, when Italy surrendered to the Allies, the Germans took possession of the city, the King and the lawful Italian government had fled to Bari in Allied occupied Italy and Field Marshal Kesselring established the headquarters of the German army at Frascati on a hill overlooking Rome, while a new Fascist Republican Government was set up again in Rome itself.

All Rome was occupied. German paratroops were posted on sentry duty outside St. Peter's Square, on the boundary line marking the border between the State of the Vatican City and of Italy proper. Their behavior was exemplary; at no time was the neutrality of the Vatican City violated; in fact, the Pope ordered that shelters be erected when he became aware that the sentries had to spend the nights in open cars. At the same time he took precaution to double his own guards on duty.

More Than 4 Centuries

OF all the units of the small Papal forces none is better known than the Swiss Guards, those bronze-faced, clear-eyed, martial young men whose yellow-sleeved medieval costumes were designed by Michelangelo himself. For 444 years now they have been guarding the entrance to the Papal Palace, true to their motto, "Tapfer und Treu" ("Brave and Faithful").

Of other Papal Corps, the black-uniformed, silver-tressed Pontifical Guards, with their Napoleonic cocked hats, were trebled in personnel and armed with modern rifles instead of their decorative Renaissance sidearms. The dark-blue-with-red uniformed Palatine Guards, recruited from the citizens of Rome, guard the Papal City State, and the summer residence at Castel Gondolfo, many months a refuge for the bombed-out population of the Pope's summer village. Over the immediate apartments of the Pontiff, in fact over his person, watches that exclusive corps, the Noble Guards. In it serve his nephews, the two Princes Pacelli, sons of the present Pope's elder brother.

In Februayry, 1944, the town of Castel Gondolfo was bombed in an Allied raid obviously aimed at Marshal Kesselring's Frascati farther down the Alban Hills, and bombs fell on the Pope's summer palace where some 10,000 already bombed-out people from the neighborhood had found shelter, causing many dead and wounded.

Voices Indignation

THIS continued harassing of Rome and its surroundings caused the Pope to voice his indignation that Rome could not be spared, yet the Allies had come to a tacit understanding with the Germans not to bomb German-occupied Athens as long as the Germans did not bomb Allied-occupied Cairo. If a famous Hellenic town and a great Moslem city could thus be guaranteed against destruction, how much more reason to spare the capital of the Catholic world.

As a result of these continued air raids, the German government offered the Pope protection in Germany. It was a singularly clumsy move, so much so that in many quarters the offer was thought to be but a gloved threat to seize the Holy Father. The Pope refused to consider leaving Rome and that in the sharpest words he had yet used to any foreign power. Within a few days he called the Cardinals together in the Sistine Chapel to make it clear before the entire world that under no circumstances would he freely move the seat of the Apostle.

The Italian campaign — characterized by some of the toughest fighting of the war—came ever more threateningly near to the gates of Rome. Already the world-famous Benedictine Monastery of Monte Casino, one of the greatest treasures of civilization—only 90 minutes from Rome by rail or car—had been razed by shells. The Germans began to put Rome into a state of defense.

Nine-Day Novena

THE POPE ordered the statue of Our Lady of Divine Love to be brought to the Church of St. Ignatius for a nine-day novena of uninterrupted prayer so as to beseech her protection of the city. He himself went to the church to set the Romans an example. In the night of the eighth day the Germans left the city.

Shepherds Help

THERE is some truth in the rumor that shepherds of the campagna had shown Allied tanks how to get 'round the city. Very real also was the influence here of the then German ambassador to the Vatican, the onetime Under Secretary of State of the German Foreign Office, Baron Ernst von Weizsacker. A nobleman of high tradition and a Protestant, he helped materially to render the Hitler order for the defense of Rome, which would have meant the destruction of Rome, ineffective.

Rome ultimately was saved. Rome more than once in her long history stricken and sacked, invaded, plundered, and deserted, came through its World War ordeal almost unscathed. All through the night of the 3d and the morning of the 4th of June, 1944, long German convoys of cars and trucks rumbled out of the city on their way to the north. On the evening of the 4th, one million people pressed into St. Peter's Square and clamored for their Pontiff with such never-surpassed fervor that Pius XII came out onto the balcony over the Basilica. Early the next morning the first American jeeps swung 'round the Coliseum of the Caesars, the Army of Gen. Mark Clark had arrived.

FBI Seizes Man On Bogus Check, Car Theft Charges

A man wanted in Washington on auto theft and bad check charges was arrested yesterday in Baltimore by the FBI. He was identified as James Matthew Walsh, alias Arthur Collins.

The FBI said he stole $4560 worth of travelers' checks in Baltimore last November 19, and left a trail of them, forged, through Baltimore, Washington, Virginia, West Virginia, Louisiana, and Texas.

He also stole an auto here on December 14, according to Metropolitan Police, and the FBI said he is charged at Birmingham, Ala., with transporting it there. Indications were that he will be tried in Baltimore on check charges. Police here said they will place a detainer against him.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Even Teachers Should Enunciate Clearly

The National Audubon Society ain't going to like this, but Post Jay Aitch tells me that his 8-year-old nephew came home from school the other day with the news that he'd have to have some extra money because his class was contributing to the "Atom Bomb Society."

ᔓᔕ

SO EASY IT'S TOUGH

The other day I used a little jingle about the ages of "Mother and Dad and Brother and me." I said several answers were possible, because no relationship was established for Brother's age with the rest of the family.

Morris Katz, the mathematical whiz who draws the charts on our financial page, informs me that this is the understatement of the week.

He says Brother can be an infinite number of ages, "within reason—just so he's somewhat younger than his mother and father."

David Neihouse of 1417 N. Scott st., Arlington, Va., adds that if District Liners like this type of puzzle, they might as well try one that's so simple it may give them a bit of trouble.

A boy goes into a candy store and buys 30 pieces of "two-for-a-penny" candy. Then he goes to another store, where he finds the candy priced at "three-for-a-penny." He buys 30 pieces more. So his purchases add up to:

30 units @ 3-for-1-cent — 10c
Total spent — 25c

But 60 pieces of candy at the rate of 5-for-2-cents come to 24 cents, and not 25. So: Can you account for the missing penny?

As usual, you'll find the solution at the end of the column.

BRIGHT NEW WORLD

The Army announces that it has developed a secret radar sight which automatically aims an airplane's guns and rockets. The gadget is so uncanny that it does everything except fly the ship. And researchers are already at work on an improved model which may do that, too.

This is unquestionably a step in the right direction. The only kind of war that will ever become really popular will be the fully automatic type, fought by machines and not men. That way, nobody of importance would be exposed to danger.

Of course, the taxpayer would still be in the line of fire, but he's always in need of first aid, even in peacetime, yet somehow manages to survive.

Another example of the peculiarities of this language of ours, this one from E. Seidenberg of 1416 Saratoga ave. ne.:

"Have you ever stopped to think that very often what a merchant can't sell in a store he stores in a cellar?"

ᔓᔕ

PERSONAL NOTES

D. C. Cameron, 2651 16th st. nw.: Good catch. Our picture editor concedes that the lady who took the pictures was not "just passing by."

ᔓᔕ

GIVE-AWAYS

"Lovely, playful female Angora kitten." (Michigan 9269 after 6 p. m.).

ᔓᔕ

HERE WE GO AGAIN

It took me about 15 minutes to drive one block on Connecticut ave. yesterday, past Porter st. nw.

When I finally threaded my way through the single lane of traffic, I found out what was causing the delay.

A work crew was painting lane lines. Not content to do one side of the street, and then, later, the other, they had blocked off both sides simultaneously. And there was no policeman assigned to the mess, to help untangle it.

I still contend there's a more practical way to do this work—and that one begins by doing most of it at night, to minimize the delay and confusion on heavily traveled arteries.

ᔓᔕ

ANSWER TO PUZZLE

Part, but not all of the candy, was bought at the rate of "5-for-2-cents."

In order to obtain this composite rate, we must combine three pieces of the cheaper candy with each two pieces of the more expensive stuff.

So we can use up all 30 pieces of the "3-for-1-cent" candy in combining it with 20 of the 30 pieces of the "2-for-1-cent" variety. This gives us a "5-for-2-cents" rate which covers 50 of the 60 pieces bought, at a total expenditure of 20 cents.

But the remaining 10 pieces of "2-for-1-cent" candy cost an additional 5 cents—making the total 25 cents. The "5-for-2-cents" rate is fallacious because it does not apply to the entire purchase.

See how simple it is, now that you stop to think about it?

THIS JOKE IS IN A STATE OF COMMA

'Fifty Books' Show Opening Here Tonight

The annual "Fifty Books" show sponsored by the American Institute of Graphic Arts will be formally opened at 8:30 tonight at the Coolidge Auditorium, Library of Congress.

Ben Grauer, radio reporter and secretary of the AIGA, will be the speaker at the opening program, which is sponsored by the Library of Congress and the Washington chapter of the AIGA.

The books on display have been chosen on the basis of excellence of design, printing and other physical qualities. Frank Mortimer, director of typography and design for the Government Printing Office, named as members of the arrangements committee Thomas Simpson of the State Department, Ralph Patterson of Nation's Business magazine and Herbert J. Sanborn, exhibit officer.

Similar shows will also open tonight in San Francisco, Philadelphia, Boston and New York.

U.S. Employe Overruled On Free Hospital Care

Federal employes are not entitled to free medical care at Glenn Dale Sanatorium, operated by the District, the District Commissioners ruled yesterday.

The action came in a denial of a request for rebate filed with the Commissioners by a woman Federal worker who had paid for care at the local institution. The city heads acted after Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West informed them the United States Employment Compensation Act limits free care to Federal institutions.

BALDNESS due to AGE?
Perhaps, but . . . your hair should grow fastest when you are 30 to 40!
Consult Ray W. Plasterer, one of the Nation's leading Trichologists Think twice before you blame your thinning hair on your age, and let it go at that.
Age is not the trouble in most cases. Trichologists say that hair naturally grows most rapidly between the ages of 30 and 40—the years, oddly enough, when most men are getting bald! If your hair does not prosper during these years some local disorder (dandruff, dryness, or excessive oiliness) may be robbing your scalp of a healthy head of hair.
Bring your problems to the Hair and Scalp Clinic, let Ray W. Plasterer remove that local disorder, and normalize your hair and scalp.

More Scotch Marked For Shipment to U. S.

London, April 3 (AP).—The British Food Ministry earmarked an extra 450,000 gallons of scotch for the United States market today.

It raised the export target for the year beginning May 1 from nine million to 9,600,000 gallons. Three-fourths of all exports are reserved for the dollar area.

Evidence Consumption Blocks Liquor Charge

Sewickley, Pa., April 3 (U.P.).—Detectives, who raided a cockfight in a barn near here today said they will have to drop charges of illegal liquor sales because the 102-man audience drank up all the evidence.

When the detectives appeared, the onlookers rushed to a makeshift bar and drank up all the whisky and beer before the officers could stop them. The men paid fines of $5 each.

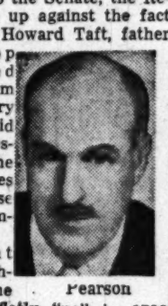
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Withholding Files Is Old Issue

By Drew Pearson

When it comes to turning over loyalty files to the Senate, the Republicans are up against the fact that William Howard Taft, father of their top leader, sided against them and with Harry Truman. So did six other Presidents of the United States and a House judiciary committee.



Pearson

President George Washington was the first to say flatly "no" in 1796 when he refused to give the House a copy of instructions to U. S. diplomats who had negotiated a treaty with Great Britain. George Washington said: "As it is essential to the due administration of the Government that the boundaries fixed by the Constitution should be preserved, a just regard to the Constitution and to the duty of my office forbids a compliance with your request."

President Thomas Jefferson continued the precedent by refusing to allow two Cabinet members to supply documents at the Aaron Burr trial. President James Monroe also declined to give up papers about the conduct of naval officers, while Andrew Jackson was ordered by the Senate to supply a memo read by him to his Cabinet on removal of public money from the Bank of the United States. He refused.

President John Tyler even sent a message to Congress spelling out his reasons for refusing to give War Department reports on Cherokee Indians to the House of Representatives.

Senator Taft's father spelled out the issue quite clearly, though it was after he left the White House. "The President," he said, "is required by the Constitution from time to time to give Congress information on the state of the Union. But this does not enable Congress or either House to elicit from him confidential information which he has acquired for the purpose of enabling him to discharge his constitutional duties, if he does not deem the disclosure of such information prudent or in the public interest."

In 1879 the House Judiciary Committee even rebuked an investigating committee for trying to pry out State Department records regarding the conduct of George F. Seward, a consul-general in China.

"Under our theory of government," the Judiciary Committee ruled, "all the records of the Executive Departments are under the control of the President. Whenever the President has returned (as sometimes he has) that in his judgment it was not consistent with the public interest to give the House such information, no further proceedings have ever been taken to compel the production of such information. Indeed, upon principle, it would seem this must be so. The mischief of the House calling for documents might easily be a very great one."

Blocking Communism

This column recently secured a copy of a letter written to Prime Minister Nehru of India by the Living Buddha of Western Mongolia, now a refugee in Baltimore living under the wing of Owen Lattimore, the Johns Hopkins professor whom Senator McCarthy has charged with being the top Communist spy in the United States.

India has long been considered by the United States as the key country in blocking the spread of communism, which is one reason we gave Prime Minister Nehru the royal-carpet treatment on his visit here last fall. The Living Buddha seems to have similar views. Anyway, here is the letter sent to Nehru by the man whom "top Communist spy" Lattimore brought to the United States:

"The teachings of communism, expounded and propagated by Lenin, have spread widely and now prevail over more than four-fifths of China," the Living Buddha wrote. "The remaining one-fifth is about to encounter danger, and the terror of communism seems to be approaching near to Tibet. The road is difficult for a military offensive against Tibet, yet if they were able to win the mind of Tibet, they would with small numbers be able to dominate large numbers. . . . I pray earnestly that Your Honor, with your vast understanding, will protect Tibet and show that country and teach it how to proceed and understand.

"Mongolia and Tibet are alike in religious faith," the Living Buddha continued. "Moreover, the fundamental policy of communism is not to make use of any religion, but wherever its teachings may reach, to extinguish immediately the religion of that land. In Outer and Inner Mongolia now, religion is vanishing altogether.

"If Mongols fleeing from Red terror should reach your honored country of India, I pray with profound faith that they may be aided and protected."

Battle Over Gas

Usually fair-minded Speaker Sam Rayburn revived memories of whip-cracking Uncle Joe Cannon, by his haste to get House approval of the Kerr natural gas bill.

Rayburn had colleagues dizzy with his deft backstage maneuvers to speed a Senate version of the bill through the House.

However, Congressmen Ray Madden of Indiana and John McSweeney of Ohio of the Rules Committee furiously objected to the "star-chamber" proceedings and the fact that Rayburn arranged the rules meeting on sudden notice while liberal chairman Adolph Sabath was out of town.

The Speaker, whose Texas friends are clamoring for action, wouldn't even agree to delay the meeting for a day, to enable Chairman Sabath to return to Washington. So the Rules Committee meeting was called to order by Dixiecrat acting chairman Gene Cox of Georgia, poker-playing partner of the Speaker, which caused Madden to remark:

"If I didn't see the sun outside, I'd think this meeting was being held in the dead of night. I just learned accidentally about 10 minutes ago that we were to be called into session.

"Why all the secrecy?" continued the Indiana Democrat. "And why hasn't the chairman been notified? He'd be here if he was given proper notice that this bill was to be considered. I object to this unorthodox procedure."

When Cox explained that he had called the meeting "at the instance of the leadership," Madden fired back:

"Well, I'm still objecting to further procedure. Here's a bill that has been widely publicized as a measure that will take 100 million dollars out of the pockets of consumers. We ought to have more chance to study it."

In the showdown vote all the committee Republicans and all the Democrats, except Madden and McSweeney, supported Rayburn and the natural-gas interests. It was a golden opportunity for Clarence Brown of Ohio and the other committee Republicans to show a little independence—and also put their party on record as for the consumer in the coming campaign. But as usual they tagged behind the Dixiecrats.

Russia and Poland Walk Out on U. N. Body

Lake Success, N. Y., April 3 (U.P.).—Russia walked out of the United Nations for the twentieth time today after renewed charges by Poland that Chiang Kai-shek plans to transfer Formosa to the United States.

Both Russia and Poland "took a walk" out of the Social Commission when they failed to have Nationalist China excluded from the 18-country group.
